HAWKEYES BOW TO HOOSIERS, 12-0

Huge Parade Will Feature Homecoming Fete

Three Mobilization Points to Concentrate Students for Line of March to Iowa Union

Sections Will Converge for Yells, Songs, Talks

A mammoth torchlight parade, with every student on the campus participating, will signal the start of the University of Iowa's twenty-first Homecoming celebration next week end. Three mobilization points, located at strategic places throughout the city, will concentrate in three sections all students in fraternities, sororities, and dormitories, as well as those living in private houses.

Sections of the university band, representatives of Pi Epsilon Pi, pep fraternity, and members of the Homecoming committee will lead each of three groups along a specified line of march to Iowa Union, where a program of yells, songs, and short, informal talks will be presented.

At 6:45 p.m. Friday, the three sections will start along the line of march, to be announced later by the committee, converging at Iowa Union by approximately 7:15 p.m. An automobile parade of noise-makers will precede the torchlight parade by about 15 minutes to provide the signal for mobilization.

A pep committee consisting of one representative in every fraternity, sorority, and dormitory has been appointed for the purpose of obtaining the cooperation of every member of each group.

The success of the plan depends on the cooperation of every student. Bailey Webber, chairman of the program committee said yesterday, "If every student realizes the necessity of joining in the parade and pep meeting in order to make this Homecoming celebration the greatest Iowa has ever known, the plan cannot fail to be successful."

It is being planned by the committee in charge of the pep meeting at Iowa Union to introduce the new Iowa Victory Song at that time, and arrangements are being made to have the band play the song at the game with Minnesota Saturday afternoon.

Further details of the parade and pep meeting will be announced by (Turn to page 2)

Group Plans Full Program

The Westminster Fellowship of the Presbyterian church has a full program on Sunday, designed to meet the interests of all ages of students. Two church school classes meet every Sunday: one at 9:30 a.m., with discussion led by Prof. P. A. Bond, on "A vital religion for today"; and another at 5 p.m., with discussion led by the Rev. W. P. Lemon, on "How to know the Bible."

Supper is at 6:45. Frances Hartley is chairman of the supper committee. Virginia Hussey and Charles Simmons will act as reception committee.

The student vespers program is at 8:30 p.m. "Amidst all the babble of tongues is there a language of all mankind?" will be the subject for discussion.

The following people are taking part in this program: Harold Turpin, Margaret Velch, Irene Kline, Everett Mays, August Anderson, and Lois Schilling of the University high school. Miss Schilling will speak on "The universality of music." Elizabeth Crosbie will act as chairman of the meeting. These meetings are open to all Presbyterians and friends.

WEATHER

Frohman Will Lecture Here

'Dean of Theatrical Managers' Opens Series

Daniel Frohman, known to the American stage as "dean of theatrical managers," will open the 1932-33 series of university lectures, when he speaks Thursday at 8 p.m. in natural science auditorium.

Worked With Stars

During their early careers, Mr. Frohman, his brother, Charles, and David Belasco, were associated in the production of plays starring such personages as Lillian Russell, Otis Skinner, Richard Mansfield, Sarah Bernhardt, Lily Langtry, Sothern and Marlowe, Maude Adams, William Gillette, and others.

Fifty Years Experience

His personal experiences cover more than half a century and his reminiscences of this period tell of the rise of that era's stars to fame, how they were discovered and developed, and something of their personalities in every day life as well as in the footlights' glow.

84 Yard Gain

The Hoosiers pushed deep into Hawkeye ground by the longest gain of the game, a 85 yard forward pass from Opasik that Dickey plucked out of the air and ran with to the 19 yard line for a total gain of 54 yards.

Will Attend World Premiere

Mr. Frohman will remain in Iowa City over Friday in order to attend the world's premiere of Frank Elser's "Low Bridge," which will be presented to Homecomers by University theater, Friday evening in natural science auditorium.

Dies of Injuries

WINTERSET (AP)—John Burns, 83, a farmer, died from injuries incurred when he fell from a hay rack.

Those who would secure rooming accommodations for Homecoming guests this next week end will have the assistance of the university housing service, it was announced yesterday by Prof. Fred E. Holmes, manager.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Democratic chieftains, desirous of further campaigning by Speaker John N. Garner, awaited today a decision from the vice presidential nominee on a proposed tour of the west.

Saying their desires had been enhanced by the reception of the speaker's address last night, the strategists have urged the nominee to head west through the corn belt to the Pacific coast.

"Jack" Hart, athlete and religious worker at the University of Pennsylvania, who will visit the Iowa campus tomorrow and Tuesday, has for 20 years been a member of the Christian association staff at the eastern institution, and is recognized as the unofficial chaplain of the university.

At present he is visiting a selected group of colleges and universities for the purpose of giving informal lectures and studying present day student life in these schools.

Mr. Hart will discuss "possibilities in campus social life," at a reception given him by the University Commission on Religious Activities on the sun porch of Iowa Union at 4:10 p.m. tomorrow. Students and faculty are invited to this function. Light refreshments will be served.

Mr. Hart will be a guest at Kappa Sigma fraternity, of which he is a member, tomorrow noon. He will meet with the Morrison club at 6 p.m. tomorrow, will address the class in religion on "Religious trends among students today," at 8 a.m. Tuesday, and will be entertained by the Theta Xi fraternity Tuesday noon.

Mrs. Seashore, Professor Daley Talk on Party Issues

Hold Debate at Meeting of University Women

"Campaign issues of 1932" was the subject of the program presented to 75 members and guests of the American Association of University Women at a luncheon in Iowa Union yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Carl E. Seashore discussed the Republican side, and Prof. Clara M. Daley of the history department, upheld the Democratic standards. Each was allowed a 15 minute talk, and a five minute rebuttal.

Backs Business
Mrs. Seashore said the Republican party is interested in the advancement of business.

"In an inquiry sent to all persons included in 'Who's Who' as to which presidential candidate each favored, 14,000 replies were received. Hoover led with 10,000 votes, Roosevelt drew 3,000 and 650 favored Thomas.

"Advancement of the machine is largely the cause of unemployment, which neither party can help. The Republican policy of high tariff protects the country, and through the market, the farmers and laborers.

Ask Repeat
"Democrats ask a straight repeal of the prohibition act. Republicans favor submitting the plan to states, and if the repeal is preferred, the control will be left to the federal government until a new plan is worked out."

Professor Daley replied that his torians are seeing, more and more, that the Civil War was a conflict between the industrial and agricultural groups, and at the time Lincoln was nominated, it was a concession on the part of the eastern industry to win over the agricultural votes of the middlewest.

Nothing for Farmer
"Today, Republican leaders of progressive groups in the middle west, see and admit there is nothing in the conservative Republican party for the middlewestern agricultural group. The conservative Republicans look to the industrial welfare after capital rather than to the people's general welfare."

"Hoover calls the unemployment relief a dote, and stands against any untried experiments. Roosevelt is for federal aid to the needy, and the Democratic party, as a whole, stands for both state and federal aid in the way of pensions and old age insurance."

Following luncheon the committee chairman were introduced and each outlined the plan of work for the coming year.

Girls' Club Plans Party

A Halloween party to be held Oct. 29 at the Masonic temple was planned during a regular business meeting of the Order of Rainbow for girls yesterday afternoon. Marriage Takes Place at Iowa City Church Yesterday

The marriage of Lucile Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Nelson of Iowa City, and John Hartzell Spence, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William H. Spence of Mason City, was solemnized at 4:30 p.m. yesterday at the First Congregational church with the bridegroom's father officiating.

The altar was lit by cathedral tapers held in silver candelabra. Palms, chrysanthemums, and other autumn flowers adorned the altar and the chancel of the church.

Mrs. Maud Whedon Smith furnished the bridal music and played organ selections during the assembling of the guests.

Attended by Cousin
Mrs. Nelson was attended by her cousin, Mary Louise Kelley, Fraser Spence, brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Thomas G. Nelson, the bride's brother, and Joseph B. Morris were the ushers.

The bride wore a white satin gown, fashioned simply with a fitted sleeve lace bodice and full length sleeves. Her veil was caught into a cap with a band of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Kelley wore a chiffon velvet gown, a silver turban, and blue sandals. She carried tallman roses.

Following the ceremony, the bride's aunt, Mrs. T. Dell Kelley, entertained at a reception and high-tea for 95 guests. The tables were decorated with pink roses, ivory tapers in pink holders, and miniature bride and bridegroom placecards.

Will Reside in Des Moines
The couple will reside in Des Moines, after a short wedding trip to Chicago, Ill.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Spence are graduates of the University of Iowa. In the June class, 1930, Mrs. Spence was affiliated with Alpha Delta Pi, Theta Sigma Phi, University Players, Erodolphian literary society, and was a member of The Daily Iowan staff.

Mr. Spence was a member of Phi Kappa Psi, A.F.L., the university band and The Daily Iowan staff. He is now a staff member of the United Press bureau in Des Moines.

Out of town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Gray, Mrs. Edmond Meade, Kathryn Howard, Fernette Betts, Sarah Jane Evans, Sylvia Walker, Grace McKee, Mary Crowe, Lillian Buttrick, Mabel Honett, Mabel Woodridge, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Killebrew, all of Des Moines.

Guests
Mrs. J. Morrell Tudor and son, John Morrell, Jr., of Lincoln, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. J. George Waldschmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Rayner, Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Gregg and daughter, Phyllis, and Lyman C. Hedge, all of Burlington.

Virginia G. Lee and Carl J. Nelson, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tom Harris Loses in Match at Country Club, 2 Up

Tom Harris, professional of the Iowa City Country club, was defeated by seven women, two up, in a match yesterday morning, to which he challenged the women, all members of the Country club.

Competing with Mrs. N. W. Embley, Mrs. Harold L. Hands, Mrs. Henry G. Walker, Mrs. J. Hubert Scott, Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mrs. J. W. Grant, and Mrs. Paul M. Moore, Jr., Mr. Harris played against the best ball, giving a handicap stroke to the women on the four long holes.

A prize was awarded by Mr. Harris to Mrs. Embley for having tied the most holes with him, and to each of the women, he presented a Dunlop ball.

Following the match, Mrs. Embley entertained the group at a luncheon in the club house.

Prof. C. H. McCloy Leads Discussion on Status of China

Prof. C. H. McCloy lead the round table discussion on the general situation in China at the weekly dinner meeting of the Triangle club last night in the club rooms at Iowa Union.

Dean Henry S. Houghton, of the college of medicine, and Dr. Andrew H. Woods, director of the psychopathic hospital, provided the sources for material used in the discussion. Professor McCloy, Dean Houghton, and Dr. Woods have spent several years in Chinese hospitals. Dean Houghton was dean of the medical college of Peking university while in China.

The open forum began at 7:30 p.m., and after its close the remainder of the evening was spent informally with a late lunch served at 10 p.m.

Radio Program to Revive Ghosts of Former Iowa Pep

Gay old football days of pennants and muffs will stage a comeback tomorrow from 9 to 10 p.m. when a revival of the University of Iowa's first Homecoming in 1912 is broadcast from station WBSU under the auspices of the speech department.

This will be presented in commemoration of the twentieth Homecoming anniversary, to be marked by the festivities of next week end.

A riotous mass-meeting in natural science auditorium, in which lantern slides of past and present football heroes are projected on a screen and "pep" speeches are made by returning alumni, will be brought back over the air. Two-steps and waltzes from the Freshman Party (admission 15 cents) will be heard.

Yarns from the men's smoker at "Iowa Union," then two rooms in the Unitarian church, will be spun. And the game with Wisconsin, with all the old yells and songs, will be re-enacted.

Major roles in the dramatization will be taken by Virgil Tacy, A3 of Council Bluffs, who will preside as master of ceremonies; Augusta Tower Reid, G of Iowa City, who will be "Ellen," an alumna of 1902

Quality Speaks For Itself---

You need not augment the quality factor of quality merchandise by shouting price—it speaks for itself, whether the garment is on a display rack or worn on the street.

And more than that, whether it's on the street, at a party, or at the football game, quality garments are always outstanding much to the constant satisfaction of the wearer.

In buying, we anticipate that there are always enough people interested in quality apparel to justify our making a selection with that angle in mind.

Look to Osborn's for your next dress, coat, or hat. We know you will like our standard of quality and you have our assurance that the price will always be right.

As the Press Rolls

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., son of George Cabot Lodge, grandson of Henry Cabot Lodge, and candidate for election to the Massachusetts house of representatives, is represented on the Houghton Mifflin fall book list with "The Cult of Weakness." . . . Lloyd Stern, author of "Star's Road," a novel of tramp athletes and coeds recently released by Vanguard Press, was himself a tramp athlete not many years ago . . . As a paid athlete in various colleges he played baseball and football and was an all-star high jumper. With a fictionalized background his novel tells much of his own experiences as a subsidized amateur . . . The conclusion that the making of profits is the cause of depressions and the enemy of true prosperity is reached in "Profits or Prosperity?" by Prof. Henry P. Fairchild of New York university. Harpers are publishers . . . Edward J. O'Brien's first venture into biography is "Son of the Morning: A Portrait of Friedrich Nietzsche," published last week by Brewer, Warren and Putnam. O'Brien is best known for his yearly anthologies of short stories, both American and British.

The Literary Life of the Early Friends, 1650-1725, by Luella M. Wright; Columbia University Press, $3. Reviewed by Frank Luther Mott.

When she planned this study, Miss Wright probably gave no thought to the matter of fitting it to the tempo and the tempo of American civilization, A.D. 1932; but the plain fact of the matter is that the book which she now gives us is good for what ails us. This study of the life and letters of the primitive Quakers should interest all those who find something vitally significant for today in the importance attached by men like Gandhi and Kagawa to mere contemplation or in Dean Inge's medievally inspired interest in the same phenomenon, or even in John Cowper Powys' much more modernly motivated reliance on the fruits of introspection. The appeal which quietism has for victims of the stress and strain of this our current crisis makes Miss Wright's study a book for the hour.

The core of the book is an analysis of the writings of Friends from the publication of Fox's "Way to the Kingdom" in 1653 through the first quarter of the eighteenth century, when the Second Day Morning Meeting, wielding an effective censorship, had effectively clipped the wings of the more soaring Quaker memoirists. The works published within these years, and thus included in Miss Wright's study, cannot, for the most part, be ranked as belles-lettres; and yet they sometimes have such a power and lift innate in their simple prose that one can scarcely exclude them from that sacrosanct domain which we call literature, with a capital L. At any rate, they are vital; and the very fact that their authors stressed the feelings and "innate knowledge" rather than learning gives them that emotional quality a lack of which usually keeps theological works far from the portals of literature.

But the book under consideration is by no means wholly devoted to a classification and criticism of the early Quaker books and pamphlets. It traces, simply and swiftly, the early development of the doctrine of the inner light, and gives us, as a background for a later discussion of the memoirs and histories, an outline of the difficulties under which the new gospel was preached. Pamphlets and books were the very ammunition of the battle, so that their story cannot be told without sketching in the smoke and action of the whole conflict. This may seem rather a quietistic sect, but it must be remembered that the early Quakers were militant if not military.

The book as a whole gives the impression of thoroughness and adequacy. It is good criticism; not only is the author always alert to study significances as they appear, but she is sometimes unusually shrewd and clear-sighted. Her study is an interesting piece of literary scholarship; and it is, besides, an excellent brief introduction to Quakerism.

I should like to add to this review a news note about a second little book of Miss Wright's which is now in press. Its title is "Literature and Education in Early Quakerism," and it is to be issued in the Iowa series called "Humanistic Studies." There are chapters on the "level of culture" of the primitive Friends, on their views concerning education, and on the motivation of their literature. This second study may also be commended as good reading for those (and there are many of us) who are fugitives from the overstress of the times. Moreover, both these books are readable commentaries on an important historical phenomenon—the emergence of the Society of Friends.

The author: Luella M. Wright was born and reared in Cedar Falls. Her father was the late D. Sands Wright, professor emeritus of religious education at the Iowa State Teachers college, where Miss Wright completed the elementary course.

She took her senior college work at the University of Iowa, and her B.A. degree here. Later Miss Wright studied at Columbia university, where she received her M.A., and later her Ph.D., degrees.

From 1927 to 1929 she had a Roberts scholarship, and spent the summer of 1927 in England, where she had access to the manuscripts and records of meetings and rare tracts in the Friends Reference library of London in preparation of her book. Miss Wright spent the summers of 1928 and 1929 working on this research in the library of Haverford college, Pennsylvania, generally considered to be the best equipped in Quaker material in the country.

Miss Wright has been associate professor of English in the university since 1920.

I Cover the Waterfront by Max Miller; Dutton $2.00. Reviewed by Virginia Maxson.

Max Miller existed through his first season as waterfront reporter on the hope that the next year he would write a book composed of characters he had met. Six years later found him still haunting the harbor boats for "color" stories on transient celebrities, still squeezing a satisfactory smile and tear out of sailors' widows tales, to the city editor's approval, still tapping off the semi-annual feature about Cabrillo's discovering the harbor in 1542. The only reason he didn't make carbon copies of the Cabrillo yarn for future years was that he thought he wouldn't be there to use them. By then the potential novel would be published, and he,

Former President Calvin Coolidge at the microphone at Madison Square Garden, New York, where he made his first political speech since he left the White House, nearly four years ago. Over forty thousand persons jammed the hall to hear the former president praise his successor.

Max Miller, would have become a New York columnist, "the kind of columnist who can use dots."

But the novel remained unwritten. The characters he had met weren't definitely good nor bad." So he wrote anyway. "I Cover the Waterfront" is the result, a series of sketches of waterfront life and people. Of swordfish-harpooner Medema; of Chris Loch, harbor-dragger, and his houseboat. Of abalone fishing and tuna-clippers.

The author had his breaks, too. There was Hoover, not yet president, stealing away for a week end fishing trip; Laura La Plante with a cold in her head, who couldn't wipe her nose for fear of smearing grease paint; "Silim" Lindbergh worrying about the money for return passage in case he "got across."

The incidents are recounted in terse, journalistically unadorned language. They are not epoch-making events—not even the wild seal capture. Yet there is a freshness, a suggestiveness about the style which somehow penetrates. Miller is whimsical, wistful, disarmingly honest. He satirizes, good-naturedly, newspaper offices, newspaper people, newspaper wives. He pokes fun at himself. He even philosophizes a bit, though a trifle apologetically. When he says, "I did not want to be a pilot. What I wanted to be is a great novelist," one suspects that this 28 year old waterfront reporter may realize his ambition.

the proceeds from their sale have been enough to defray all costs of the celebration. At times it has even been possible to make special expenditures with the surplus, such as the purchase of the W. O. Finkbine portrait which now hangs in Iowa Union, and the installation of the flood lights on Old Capitol dome and University hospital tower.

Included among the regular expenses occasioned by Homecoming are the erection of the corn monument; construction of the arch which was formerly placed on Washington street, but which is now raised over the Iowa avenue bridge; arranging of the reception and mass meeting held at Iowa Union the night before the game; and expenses incident to the entertainment of visitors Saturday.

Another expense is that of general decorations, in which the Homecoming committee agrees to match, dollar for dollar up to $25, the amounts spent by various departments and colleges for the decoration of their buildings.

Under the Homecoming badge system originated by Professor Kuever, every one can thus contribute a small amount toward the entertainment of the city's and university's guests in one of the largest celebrations of the year.

Both city and university authorities have placed their approval on the badge sales, distinguishing between such a cooperative enterprise and the private endeavors of certain out-of-town concerns to profit by the sale of similar badges and souvenirs.

Alumni Back Plan

The plan is backed by the alumni of the university has been indicated by the scores of persons who, although unable to attend the games, have ordered badges to be sent them. Requests for the insignia have come from as far away as Washington, D. C., California, Boston, Mass., Canada, and the Gulf states.

This year's sale will start Tuesday at 7 a.m., and will continue until the first whistle blows in the Iowa-Minnesota game Saturday. The three organizations chosen to sell the badges this year are Delta Delta Delta, captained by Alice Walker, A3 of DeWitt; Alpha Xi Delta, captained by Gertrude Mowry, A2 of Newton; and Kappa Delta, captained by Katherine Spain, C4 of Conrad.

With the slogan of "A badge for every student and for every member of every family in Iowa City," every effort will be made this year to outdo the records of previous years.

Andree and His Balloon

In 1897, the explorer Andree and his companions left Spitzbergen in a fantastic balloon with sails, hoping to drift across the North Pole to America. They never returned and their fate remained a mystery for more than 30 years. On August 6, 1930, however, a Norwegian scientific expedition found their bodies in a camp on White Island, near Spitzbergen.

An Old, Old Problem

WITH EACH new trial that gains nationwide attention the inadequacy of the U. S. jury system and courts in general strikes home with ever-increasing sharpness.

The latest failure was made public yesterday when a Florida jury returned a verdict of not guilty against one of the two prison guards indicted for first degree murder in the Arthur Maileffert sweatbox death.

Maileffert died last June at Sunbeam prison camp in a sweatbox. He was strangled to death on a chain which was locked around his neck and looped about an overhead rafter.

The convicted guard had claimed that he acted only in a fatherly manner toward the young New Jersey prisoner, that he placed him in the sweatbox only as a last resort to keep him from escaping.

Both guards claimed in their defense that Maileffert had committed suicide rather than serve nine years for robbery. The guard who was found guilty will appeal the verdict.

All of the evidence in the case pointed to gross inability on the part of prison officials to cope with the situation. The best they could do was revert to the cruelest sort of punishment.

In this age of enlightenment, details of life in Sunbeam prison camp are revolting. They undo all the hopes of those who view this civilization in the light of progress.

They mark a definite rut in the path of knowledge and advancement. They point out a significant shortcoming of the entire system of prisons and handling of criminals.

The convicted guard expects "to have better luck in the next trial." The chances are in his favor. In England, the court of appeals not only can change the decision in favor of the prisoner but can change it against him.

But in England the Maileffert case could never have happened. There is realization and understanding of the criminal code among the British and their court system which puts that of the United States to shame.

The Wickersham report attempted to prove to the people of the United States that a crying need for reform exists, that such reform should be undertaken without delay.

As far as can be determined at the present time, that need has become so urgent that further delay will bring more irreparable injustice than can ever be overcome by subsequent changes.

Here Today—More Tomorrow

MORE THAN 100 panaceas for the present depression have been gathered together at Columbia university to be published in seven volumes for reference in future times.

Students a few decades from now will read of this peculiar civilization of ours and of the queer social sickness known as depression. They will laugh at the naive theories now advanced for its cure.

As students of the present generations laugh at the remedies employed by primitive doctors for treatment of the sick.

As in the past, he who first comes forward with the true remedy will be laughed down, ridiculed, perhaps denounced as an enemy to society.

Pasteur was bitterly opposed by many of the leading scientists of his time. But somewhere, someone will make bold enough to try some new remedy for curing depressions.

they appealed, through one of London's great newspapers, to the statesmen of the world to reduce arms before it is too late.

As a basis for arms reduction and the insurance of peace these men and women (26 of the leading citizens of London) urged adherence to the four principles of the disarmament conference resolution of July.

Their warning is not made without reason. For the last several years the ugly shadow of armaments has been growing blacker and blacker.

Peoples of all nations have cried continually for peace at whatever cost; at the same time nations have repeatedly gathered around council tables and argued, fearing each other.

In none of the armament conferences has there been any shadow of cooperation. Italy, Russia, and Germany have offered complete disarmament if the rest of the powers will do likewise.

The reason is not far to seek. The statesmen of the world are, for the most part, conservative men. They are afraid.

Complete disarmament takes them off their feet and leaves them breathless. But there is more than that.

Most of the nations have won their present power through the force of arms. The prospect of losing their battleships and their armies and their airplanes appalls them.

Another potent reason for the seemingly inevitable failure of arms conferences is the attitude of the United States.

The most powerful nation in the world, with its fingers of trade reaching into every corner of the earth, the United States maintains an attitude of aloof superiority.

Before each conference, our statesmen make high sounding promises and suggestions. But we are yet to be represented at a real conference by a representative with authority.

We make only suggestions. Before world cooperation in the matter of armaments can be possible, the United States must be taught that it is no longer an isolated land of 13 colonies dependent on no one.

But a far scattered power dependent upon the people of the whole world for sustenance and continued existence.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Common criticism of our educational system is that it falls in its primary purpose—to make people think. There is a widespread impression, for the most part correct, that university curricula serve only to fill youthful heads with much information.

and many facts, but fails to point out just how that mass of knowledge is to be sorted out and adequately commanded.

The trend, however, is away from textbook learning, except in those branches of study where experiments and experiences of those who have led the way serve to ease the labors of those who follow.

Teaching students to think is fast becoming the watchword and keynote of educators alive to the exigencies of the age.

A great deal remains to be done in that line, and on the University of Iowa campus plans are continually going forward to instill first a deeprooted desire to think and secondly to develop the mental processes that must function smoothly to bring about the desired result.

Emphasis in many courses that have long been archaic, stagnant, behind the times, is now being shifted from the old to the new.

Some of the results have been most gratifying, others only show the extent to which the student mind has been represented in its thinking, underdeveloped in matters of universal importance, stunted in its development toward high ideals of life.

Printed below are a few excerpts from expressions of students in a popular course that has as its aim the development of student thought along subjects that are new before the world in greater prominence than they ever have been before.

These remarks are presented here for the purpose of demonstrating to the violent critics of the whole educational scheme that something certainly is happening to growing minds.

"The church today is indeed a sorry spectacle. Its ministers are thwarted, apologetic, and apprehensive. Its pews are vacant. Its treasury is empty. Its members have divided loyalties. Spirituality has been neglected in our machine age. It . . . need not be a thing of the past if it uses intelligence and supplies the need . . . for a new and richer spirituality and devotion to a higher cause."

"Have a religion that your reason will accept. Don't put too great a strain upon your faith."

"Man needs a new response to nature—a closer acquaintance with fields and rivers."

"Well might we say that he has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world a little better than he found it. . . ."

"Our problems today are so difficult and complex, that we become confused, baffled, discouraged; so we just turn our questions over to God, the unknown, or to chance. It is hard to be a philosopher and ask questions when there is no answer to them."

"Modern science has multiplied man a thousand-fold, and yet he is still in danger of losing himself in the complex knowledge and power of his own creation. Around him he sees the ever-mounting strength of the machine, the increasing narrowness of world dimensions, and with these things he sees his individuality disappearing."

Book Bits—(From Penelope's Man, by John Erskine) "It's common sense," said Daphne. "You people who fight wars and kill animals and can't swim and don't know the first thing about the secret of life, you drop in here and call us primitive. Don't you feel a little foolish?"

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD - By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Next Richard Barthelmess starring picture will be "Grand Central Airport," and Warners are sending the company to Amarillo, Texas, and to Chihuahua, Mexico, on location. This announcement ended the uncertainty about Dick's immediate film activities and won Hollywood's approval as another smart move on the part of Daryl Zanuck. The fans liked "The Dawn Patrol" better than any recent Barthelmess film. Now, with sufficient time elapsed, Dick is to do another air story, a thrilling melodrama about smuggling, mail robbery, battles over the clouds and the like. Jack Moffett, Kansas City newspaperman, wrote this story and two of the studio's accepted signatures. Later on, the diva made a film test with Robert Leonard for a director. . . Golfers here were startled the other day to see a young man playing in a pair of shorts and shoes. Owner of the bizarre costume was Johnny Weismuller. He got by with it because the course was operated by Edgar Rice Burroughs. . . Stanley Smith's orchestra opens here at the Biltmore on November 5, night of the California-University of Southern California game. Once the pal of film stars, "Gagi," the spider monkey has been presented to the city of Albuquerque. More than 300 school children met the train which brought Douglas Fairbanks' pet to his new home. The wife of the mayor was there to receive him and "Gagi" rode through the streets on a fire engine. Later on, he'll be put in the city zoo. Claudia Dell and Eddie Sulton have been seeing the late spots together—particularly the La Boheme Cafe. . . And, though I haven't seen him with my own eyes, they say Allee White has a new boy friend. DID YOU KNOW— That both Ken Maynard and Jack Holt studied engineering at the Virginia Military Institute? That Wallace Beery came to Hollywood to direct and used to be right-hand man to the famous cowboy hero, "Broncho Billy" Anderson? That Joan Blondell's father was the stage actor, Eddie Blondell—known as the original Katzenjumper Kid?

Mathematics Teachers End Meeting Here

Speakers Put Emphasis on Need of Sound Reasoning

By "putting a kitchen apron on geometric logic and reasoning," Mary A. Potter of Racine, Wis., believes that the logic of geometry can successfully be taught to "Johnny" and others like him in the public schools of Iowa.

Speaking yesterday before the closing session of the seventh annual conference for teachers of mathematics, held in Old Capitol, Miss Potter told some 125 delegates that one of the most important phases of geometry is teaching pupils to think logically.

"There is no royal road to learning geometry," she said, "but good sound everyday reasoning will go a long way toward helping illuminate the rocky path for students."

The trick of interesting pupils in the subject, she explained, is to get them interested first in some similar form of reasoning in every day life and then transfer the principles of the problem to appropriate geometric applications.

Miss Brakensiek Speaks
This same idea of connecting classroom geometry with the world of realities was again emphasized, when Jessie D. Brakensiek of Quincy, Ill., high school spoke on "Geometry and the ordinary man."

"The average man is interested in computations in his everyday life," she declared, "and we as teachers, should endeavor to make our classroom courses applicable to those computations."

"The eyes of the ordinary man are opened to the geometric forms around him," she continued, "and he accepts the challenge to construct the unsolved problems of geometry."

Breslich Plays Textbooks
Prof. E. R. Breslich of the University of Chicago, third speaker of the day, played the type of textbooks which carefully isolate the various divisions of geometry. The model book, he argued, should create a constant interdependency between these parts. The whole articulation of geometry, he said, should be such that there are no gaps in which the student may lose his way.

Prof. J. F. Reilly of the university mathematics department presided over yesterday's session of the meeting which was arranged by the extension division and the mathematics department, the college of education, and the extension division.

SLAYER, PATH OF DEATH

To avenge what she thought was an old wrong, Mrs. Aurelio Libo Lorenz (above) of Milwaukee, Wis., hurled her 4 year old nephew, Milton Libo, and her 5 year old niece, Vivian Libo, and herself from the sixteenth floor window of a Milwaukee hotel. Accident—Suicide?

A difference of opinion between the medical examiner and detectives exists over the death of William Haskell, 3rd, son of Major General William Haskell, adjutant-general of the New York state militia. Young Haskell was found in his New York apartment with a bullet in his brain. The medical examiner said the case was one of suicide, while detectives who investigated the tragedy insist that the shooting was an accident, the gun having apparently been discharged while Haskell was cleaning it.

county Republican club at 6:30 p.m. in the river room of Iowa Union. Dean Glimore, who has known the secretary intimately for a number of years, will preside and introduce the speaker. Other long acquaintances of Wilbur who will be at the speakers' table are President Walter A. Jessup, and Dean H. S. Houghton of the medical college. Several state and local Republican leaders will also be seated at that table.

Immediately after the dinner, Secretary Wilbur will go to the natural science auditorium, where he is to be introduced by State Senator George Clearman of Oxford.

Born in Iowa
Like President Hoover, the secretary of the interior in Mr. Hoover's cabinet was born in Iowa, at Boonesboro April 13, 1875. Mr. Wilbur received his bachelor of arts degree at Stanford university in 1896, and a master of arts degree there the following year. He then took up medicine at Cooper Medical college in San Francisco, graduating in 1900. In 1903 and 1904 he studied in London and Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and nine years later spent two years at Munich.

In 1919, both the University of California and the University of Arizona awarded Secretary Wilbur an honorary LL.D. degree. The University of Pennsylvania followed with the same degree in 1925, and the University of Syracuse honored him with the degree of doctor of science. He holds membership in both Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi.

Starting as an instructor and lecturer on physiology at Stanford and Cooper Medical college, Dr. Wilbur became dean of the Stanford Medical school, an office he filled from 1911 to 1916. In 1919 he was made president of the university, in which position he remained until he was granted leave of absence in 1923 to accept the secretaryship of the interior offered him by President Hoover.

During the World war, Secretary Wilbur was chief of conservation for the American food administration, a member of the California state

Engineering Magazine Editors Will Meet in Convention Here

Transit Board Will Act as Hosts This Month

Engineers with a flair for journalism will meet at the University of Iowa Oct. 27, 28, and 29 when Engineering College Magazines Associated, holds its twelfth annual convention with the Iowa Transit as host.

E.C.M.A., as it is known, is composed of engineering magazines in the leading engineering schools in the country. Organized in 1921 to improve the quality of the member magazines and to secure adequate representation of widely scattered, but similar, publications in soliciting national advertising, the association has become one of the strongest undergraduate magazine groups in the United States.

Hold Round Tables
Featured at the convention will be the editorial and business round tables in which the delegates from all the magazines take an active part. These discussions help to iron out the difficulties encountered in publishing a technical journal.

The program of the convention will include business and editorial sessions Thursday and Friday all day and Saturday morning, the presentation of awards in recognition of outstanding work in the past year, group luncheons Thursday and Friday noons, and the convention banquet Thursday evening. The delegates will be the guests of the Associated Students of Engineering at the Techni Ball in the main lounge of Iowa Union Friday night.

Sponsor Convention
The transit board which is sponsoring the convention is composed of Ted R. MacDougall, E4 of Conesville, Eugene R. Clearman, E4 of Iowa City, Edward J. Lynch, E4 of Clinton, Curtis Shew, E4 of Centerville, Prof. E. B. Kurtz, Prof. Joseph W. Howe, Prof. J. H. Scott, and Prof. F. G. Higbee.

Mr. MacDougall, convention chairman, has announced the following committees who will plan the details of the convention:

Registration: Henry J. Kehe, chairman; Earl H. Sorg, Carlos O. Kampmeier, and Robert C. Harlan. Dates: Francis Murray, chairman; Ivan Peterson, and Elwin Lohse. Campus tour: Charles O. Slemmons, chairman; K. E. Ristau, Adolph Topinka. Banquet and luncheons: Edward J. Lynch, chairman; Earl Ewald, Walter Shump.

Physical Education Students Beat Iowa City in Hockey, 4-1

Senior physical education majors won 4 to 1 over the Iowa City Hockey club in a game held yesterday morning on the women's gymnasium field.

Twenty-six players came out for the first game of the season.

Jane Shurmer, instructor in the physical education department, is president of the Iowa City Hockey club and Helen Brandt, A4 of West Liberty, is student captain.

The group holds practice every Tuesday and Saturday, and an invitation is extended to all who are interested. Several games have been scheduled for the coming season.

WSUI to Broadcast Second of Special Cooperative Series

Second in the series of cooperative radio programs sponsored jointly by the Iowa Child Welfare Research station and child development department of Iowa State college, Ames, is to be given tomorrow. The program will be broadcast by station WSUI, beginning at 8 p.m.

Prof. Ralph H. Ojemann of the WOI at Ames.

HELD AS KIDNAPERS

Arrested after brilliant detective work had connected them with the kidnaping of little Jackie Russell (inset), son of a Brooklyn, N. Y., broker, some time ago, George Clark (left), insurance collector, and his employer, Allen August (with coat over face), are shown in Parkville, N. Y., police station, where, police say, they admitted they had abducted the boy. Both are married and fathers of young sons. In their alleged confession, August and Clark said they had planned to obtain ransom with which to cover shortages in their insurance collections.

Miss Station Master

This pretty young Sicilian maid, Marie Parini, is not only decorative but efficient. She is in charge of the railway station at Licata, Sicily, which serves the principal trading town on the southern coast of her country. The town has a population of 25,000 whose comings and goings are supervised by the lovely station-master.

parent education department will speak on the subject, "Are standards of child development helpful to parents." Professor Ojemann will discuss standards of child development in regard to the parents' viewpoint. The same feature will be re-broadcast Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. from WOI at Ames.

Firemen Will Begin Survey of Residences

Firemen have inspected over 600 public buildings in the last week and are now ready to inspect private dwellings for fire hazards.

Fire Chief Herman Amish offers free services of the city firemen, beginning tomorrow, to the citizens of Iowa City who wish to have their homes inspected. Call 2475 and ask for an inspector.

"Sixty-five per cent of the fires in Iowa City are in dwellings and from 30 to 85 per cent of these are the result of carelessness," said Fire Chief Amish.

"Preventing a fire this year in your home may depend upon potential causes and hazards, perhaps not apparent to you, being pointed out by the firemen. The sole object of this inspection is to aid the residents of the city, at no cost. They are offered the expert advice of firemen trained to 'spot' fire hazards," he said.

Library Conference Concludes Meetings

The regional conference of the American Library association, attended by 11 members of the university library staffs, closed yesterday at Des Moines.

About 600 representatives from five states were present. The main headquarters of the conference was the Hotel Ft. Des Moines. Meetings of the various sections took place at the Des Moines public library and at Drake university.

Margaret Farrish, Alpha Delta Pi first team took an easy victory over the Currier team. The score was 6-0, 6-0. Thelma Kenefick and Betty Coultas played for the winners and Phoebe and Barbara Pfeiffer played on the Currier hall team.

Women's Net Meet in Second Round

In the second round of the women's intramural tennis tourney which is now in progress, the Delta Delta first team won from the Alpha Chi Omega firsts, 6-4, 6-4. Hildegard Frese, and Gertrude Neas played for the winners. Marjorie Shane and Esther Griffiths composed the losing team.

Delta Gamma firsts beat Gamma Phi Beta firsts 6-0, 3-6, 6-1. The Delta Gamma team was represented by Janet Larabee and Virginia Lyon. On the Gamma Phi Beta team were Nancy Emerick and

Piper Receives Praise for Poetry by Famous Critics

Prof. Edwin Ford Piper, who will read a group of his published poems over station WSUI tomorrow evening as a part of the radio series, "The Midwest in prose and poetry," has received the favorable comment of several outstanding critics of American poetry.

Carl Sandburg, Harriet Monroe, Agnes Lee Freer, and others of equal distinction in the world of poetry have announced Professor Piper's work as being of exceptional merit. Besides Professor Piper's three books of poems, "Barbed Wire," "Barbed Wire and Wayfarers," and "Paintrock Road," much of his work has appeared in "The Midland," "Poetry," and other magazines of similar nature. He is at present working on some new poems.

Ripley Explanations

YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
The election of a dead man—R. J. Estes of Melbourne, Ark., popular sheriff and collector of Izard county who died Sunday, Aug. 7, 1932, two days before the Democratic primary was held in which the deceased figured as a candidate for re-election, was the recipient of a remarkable tribute to his popularity.

Despite the fact that every voter was aware of his passing, the deceased received 1251 votes to 593 votes cast for his living opponent. The result of this curious election created a unique situation in the county. The voters manifestly expressed a preference for a man they knew to be dead. There is no local precedent to guide the powers that be in the declaration of an existing vacancy.

SPORT Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

ALTHOUGH Iowa's Hawkeyes went down in defeat before the rush of a powerful Indiana eleven, fighting before the Hoosier Home-comers, they did prove conclusively that Coach Ossie Solem improved his team's play a great deal during the last week. Even the most optimistic could hardly have selected Iowa to beat Indiana, and the low score was not at all disappointing.

The Hawkeyes looked well during the first half, but slipped during the last 30 minutes of play somewhat. They played the game characteristic of the rather green team that they are. Marvin Kubn, playing his first game at fullback for Iowa, fumbled several times, no doubt partially due to over-anxiousness. But the team looked better than it had. And Saturday, with another week of practice under their belts, they should be vastly improved over yesterday.

It is a little early for predictions, but right now, that Iowa team looks like at least an even bet against Minnesota here at Homecoming Saturday. The Gophers are apparently a slow starting outfit, while Iowa, on the other hand, seems to play its best game during the first half. And if these Hawkeyes get the taste of blood in the form of points against a Big Ten opponent, they may click like champions. It should be a great Homecoming game.

Chicago Whips Knox, 20 to 0 Maroons Tally Three Times in Final Quarter

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP)—For full three periods, plucky little Knox college played the University of Chicago eleven to a scoreless tie, but then wilted before a driving onslaught launched by Amos Alonzo Stagg's Maroons in the final quarter. Three touchdowns were rushed over the Knox goal in the last 15 minutes, two points after touchdown being made good to add to the total.

Badger Harriers Win Quadrangular Meet

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 15 (AP)—Wisconsin runners finished one, two, three today to win the quadrangular cross country run over a three mile course against Illinois, Notre Dame and Northwestern. The Badgers' point total was 27. Swabach finished first in 16:51 and was followed across the finish line by his team mates, Crumney and Lasaine, in that order. Other point totals were Illinois 38, Notre Dame 65, and Northwestern 95.

Newman Leads Wolverines in Great Win; Pardonner's Drop Kick Whips Badgers

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Headed by an intrepid leader, Harry Newman, a great Maize and Blue football team from Michigan today beat a gallant Ohio State eleven before a crowd of 42,000 persons. Turning back everything the home team offered, the Blue horde struck twice with deadly precision at the Ohio goal in the first half to record a 14 to 0 victory.

Michigan was then content to go on the defensive. It withstood five Ohio scoring threats, each time bracing with the ball within its 25 yard line. It was Newman and his accurate aerial heaves that spelled defeat for the Buckeyes. From scrimmage Ohio State gained 144 yards to Michigan's 46. But two accurately thrown forward passes, one when the game was only five minutes old and the other in the second period, gave Michigan its winning margin. Newman booted two perfect kicks from placement.

Early in the second half Fay robbed Ohio of a touchdown by knocking a pass out of Hinchman's hands as he was standing over the goal line. Score by periods: Michigan 7 7 0 0—14 Ohio State 0 0 0 0—0 Michigan scoring: Touchdowns, Regecki and Williamson; points after touchdown, Newman 2 (placekicks).

Luther Trips Tutor Eleven by 14-0 Score

DECORAH, Oct. 15 (AP)—Luther outplayed the Iowa State Teachers, Iowa conference leaders, 13 to 0, today in a homecoming game which saw the Purple Panthers' goal line crossed for the first time this season. The visitors never penetrated inside the Norse 20 yard mark and were outgained 10 first downs to six.

The first Luther tally came early in the second quarter after the Panthers had been penalized 15 yards for holding. Taking the ball on the visitors' 30 yard line, an end run by Nesset and line bucks by Captain Christiansen put the ball over. Hanson placekicked the extra point. Gaining again on an exchange of punts, the Norsemen carried the ball on runs by Carlson and Hanson to the Teachers' 35 yard line in the last period. Then Nesset circled right end behind perfect interference and raced across the goal. Hanson's second placekick attempt was blocked.

Illinois Loses to Wildcats by 26 to 0

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 15 (AP)—Northwestern's Wildcats regained a big chunk of territory in their comeback campaign today by ripping out a 26 to 0 triumph over the fighting Illini of Illinois. There had been rumors that Coach Bob Zuppke was prepared to hand Northwestern an unpleasant surprise, and during the first period and part of the second, it looked as though the Wildcats were willing to help him. They were sluggish on the offense and only 57% defensive work kept the Illini from becoming dangerous.

After Northwestern had muffed a chance to score in the first period, Pete Yanusuk, Illinois halfback, snatched one of Pug Rentner's passes and raced 52 yards before he was hauled down. The Illini could not gain, however, and threatened no more until the fourth session. Score by periods: Northwestern 0 7 13 6—26 Illinois 0 0 0 0—0 Northwestern scoring: Touchdowns—Manske, Olson, Rentner, Sullivan (sub for Kawal). Points after touchdown—Olson (drop-kick), Riley (placement).

Gophers Get 7-6 Triumph Manders' Kick Provides Margin of Win Over Nebraska

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—A placekick by big Jack Manders wobbled in a high wind, then bored its way unceremoniously between the uprights today to provide an extra point and a 7 to 6 victory for Minnesota over Nebraska before 20,000 spectators. It was more than an ordinary wind. It blew down the field from the open end of Memorial stadium, raising havoc with punts and contributed to the day's high fumble total of 11.

Nebraska, in the first renewal of an old rivalry with the Gophers since 1919, started the game with the wind at its back and gained steadily in the first period through an exchange of kicks. Well advanced into Gopher territory, George Sauer, fullback, took further advantage of the wind, with a high, long pass to Bernie Masterson, who brought the ball to the Minnesota 5 yard line for a gain of 34 yards.

Sauer, desperate on the fourth down, hurled a pass far over the goal line which Masterson brought down in a brilliant catch to a touchdown. Sauer's kick on the try for point went wide. Forward—Lateral Pass Minnesota took advantage of the same high blowing force when it had the wind at its back in the second period. The Gophers gained steadily on an exchange of punts, but twice after bringing the ball into scoring range, once to the 24 yard line and later to the Nebraska 10 yard line, they were unable to overcome the hard fighting Nebraska forwards.

Cornell Out-Passes Simpson in 12 to 6 Parents' Day Victory

MT. VERNON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Cornell college scored a 12 to 6 victory over Simpson today in an aerial duel before a parents' day crowd. Two of the three touchdowns came as the result of passes and the third followed a 43-yard Cornell pass that brought the ball within scoring range. Liddicot, rangy Simpson back, was on the receiving end of the Indianapolis team's scoring toss in the opening period. His feat was matched by Sergeant of Cornell in the same period. The Purple shoved over its winning marker in the second quarter.

Baseball Men Continue Fall Conditioning

Neither hail, nor sleet, nor snow shall keep these messengers from their daily rounds—and this is the motto being followed by Coach Lawrence Harrison and his baseball charges this fall. Working out under ideal football conditions, Coach Harrison has managed to keep the baseball spark alive with the assistance of members of last year's freshman nine. Almost the entire freshman squad has been turning out daily at the north field diamond, going through batting and fielding practice. While the fall practice is primarily for testing new material, the supply of recruits has been very small, but Coach Harrison expects to have an excellent nucleus with which to start real baseball practice next spring. Although the workouts are scheduled to stop with the advent of cold weather, the conditions under which the squad is working indicate that the boys will be sliding through snow-drifts and shagging flies on skis, before they halt activities.

TEXAS CAPTURES STATE FAIR CONTEST, 17 TO 10 DALLAS, Oct. 15 (AP)—The University of Texas made it six in a row over the Oklahoma university football team, 17 to 10, today in a feature of the Texas state fair. Texas used her power steadily to overcome an early 3 point lead for Oklahoma and then go on to victory over a lighter but hard fighting opponent.

Steve Banas Again Leads Irish Attack

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—In a thrilling, desperately-fought football battle high above the Hudson this afternoon, Army's hard-charging forces had the answer for everything the Pittsburgh Panthers offered except the combination of Warren Heller, versatile halfback, and Joe Skladany, elusive end. These two stars combined to produce three touchdowns, offset the Cadets spectacular comeback, and give Pittsburgh its fourth successive victory of the season, 18 to 13.

Heller pierced the Soldiers' defensive twice in the first half and then engineered the counter-thrust that put the Panthers back in the lead to stay, in the last half, as Army's gallant rallies twice fell short of their objective. The crack Pitt halfback romped 54 yards for the first Panther touchdown and twice passed nearly half the length of the field to the blue-fingered Skladany, once over the goal-line and later, in the critical third period, for a 48 yard gain that enabled Weinstein, plunging Pitt fullback, to go over for the deciding touchdown. Army Comes Back Army not only regained the lead in the third period, 13 to 12, but missed scoring a third time by only a yard and, in the closing moments of the game, passed twice to within a dozen yards of the Panther goal. The strong Pitt defense and the final whistle combined to put an end to this thrilling bit of the Cadets.

Iowa State Handed 26-0 Loss by K. U.

AMES, Oct. 15 (AP)—Kansas University's switch to Ad Lindsey as head coach paid huge dividends today when the Jayhawkers defeated Iowa State, hitherto considered one of the ranking teams of the Big Six, by a 26 to 0 score. Kansas gained almost at will throughout the game, passed ad. advantageously, outkicked the Cyclones and had little trouble in stopping the Iowa State backfield. Schaeke, Jayhawk left half, was the reincarnation of "Jarring Jim" Bausch as he gained constantly in the Kansas power plays and punted deep into Cyclone territory. Dumm, Captain Beach and Weaver also gained ground steadily. Iowa State's plunging and passing had little effect against the Jayhawkers and only in a few snaky runs by Capt. Dick Grefe and the fewer drives of Theophilus did the Cyclones resemble the team which last week threw a scare into Nebraska. After several exchanges of punts during the first seven minutes, the Kansas attack began to function and late in the first quarter Schaeke and Weaver alternated at packing the ball, and a pass, Schaeke to Beach, carried the ball to Iowa State's 6 yard line. The Cyclones momentarily held, but Smith carried it over on the fourth down. Schaeke's kick was good. From then on, it was mostly Kansas.

Cornell Gets 22-33 Victory Over Iowans

Hawkeye Harriers Lose Opening Dual Meet of Season

Letting loose a strong combined spurt in the last half of the race, Cornell college harriers defeated the Iowa team yesterday morning on Finkbine field, 22 to 33. Ralph Itnyre of the Purple squad won individual honors by breaking the tape for the two mile run in 10:45.5, 30 yards ahead of his teammate Speck, who capped second.

abreast of the lanky Itnyre with Speck holding in close. At this point Carver began to fade as did Campisi, dropping way back, gave way to Speck who held the position to the finish.

Encouraged by their teammates success, the other Purple men who had been hanging back passed the closely bunched Iowa runners McElroy, Schlaser, Mityvalsky, and Rosenberg. The Hawkeyes tried a last minute spurt but were unable to overcome the big lead.

HAWKEYES LOSE Versatile Hoosiers Get 12-0 Triumph

The drive led to two points, however, when Schmidt misjudged his distance from the scrimmage on the punt and stepped too far back. Makes Field Goal The Hawkeyes kicked off from their own 20 yard line after the safety, and Veller scooped it up for a long return to the Iowa 48 yard line. Two forward passes put the ball on the 29 yard line and then after Indiana failed to gain, Lyons dropped back to placekick the field goal. He missed his first attempt, but the Hawks were offside and the second try was good.

With a 12 point lead in the third quarter, Coach E. C. Hayes tried a number of backfield combinations during the remainder of the game. Page Goes 17 Yards The Hawkeyes flashed a sustained drive late in the final period. Taking the ball from their own 14 yard line down to the Indiana 31 yard line on a sweeping 17 yard run by Page, substitute halfback, a long pass from Teyro to Loufek good for 21 yards. Here the threat ended, however, when further pass attempts were knocked down by a suddenly alert Indiana secondary. George Teyro, the 151 pound quarter from Hopkins, Minn., was the spearhead of the Iowa attack, his accurate aerial heaves and his dashes past the end bothering the Hoosiers considerably. Working smoothly with Laws, the Colfax, Ia., halfback in the first quarter and with Page, Newton, Ia., speed boy in the final minutes, Teyro uncocked some puzzling reverses and pass plays that caught the Indiana team off balance frequently.

Iowa Gets 8 First Downs Although Iowa failed to make a serious scoring threat, the Hawks accumulated eight first downs to 14 for the Hoosiers. Indiana outgained the visitors in gains from rushing, 153 yards to 112. The Hoosiers completed seven out of 14 passes attempted for a total gain of 112 yards while the Hawkeyes, made good five out of 10 attempted for 59 yards. No passes were intercepted.

Indiana, with Jones and Edmonds doing the punting, had an advantage in the kicking, averaging 39 yards to the Hawks' 35. Indiana was penalized 35 yards and Iowa 55, the Hoosiers gaining two of their first downs by this route. Iowa fumbled three times and Indiana twice. An Iowa fumble at the beginning of the third period preceded Veller's touchdown dash.

Ed Wells, veteran southpaw, has seen little duty with the Yanks this year. The Yanks picked him up in 1929 from Birmingham after his release by the Tigers.

Walter Brown, who puts more than 250 pounds back of the ball, is the heaviest hurler in the majors. The Yanks called him in from Newark this season.

SYNOPSIS Young and beautiful Patricia Braithwait adored her father so much that she was willing to sacrifice love and happiness to insure his future independence by marrying middle-aged Harvey Blaine for his wealth. It was Aunt Pamela who suggested that Pat marry wealth, warning that "the glamour of love wears off". Pamela spoke from experience; her own marriage to handsome Jimmie Warren, a young lawyer, was becoming dull. Jimmie, furious at Pat's engagement, awakens to the realization that he, himself, cares for her. Pat, with youth's optimism, hopes in vain that the young camper whom she only knows as "Jack", and saw only once, will rescue her from Blaine. Jimmie finds her in the garden, sobbing. He takes her in his arms and, in despair and hungry for love, she permits him to kiss her. Next day Pat breaks her engagement. Pamela is suspicious when, immediately following Pat's broken engagement, Jimmie offers to loan Pat money to study art. Pat's father is delighted with Jimmie's art study suggestion.

"That Patricia could have considered such a marriage," Mr. Braithwait was saying—"even for a moment, distresses me, Pamela."

of sins was the absence of Beauty; in Pamela's, it was the evidence of human emotion. Not for a moment did she suspect Patricia of guilty participation in Warren's obvious plans. She was not the type of good woman who suspects every other woman of evil. She knew Patricia for the clean-minded girl she was. But recalling the child's comment concerning Jimmie's eligibility and looks, which she, Pamela, had looked upon as the modern girl's way of appearing superior, she now saw that, unknown to Patricia herself, she was distinctly attracted by Jimmie. And Pamela was amazed by the sense of desolation, the tearing pain and fear that possessed her.

Young girls were, she knew, given to "crushes". This was not of itself a serious matter, even if Patricia fancied herself in love with Jimmie. But with him actively responsive, her "crush" immediately became a menace. "That Patricia could have considered such a marriage," Mr. Braithwait was saying—"even for a moment, distresses me, Pamela." The distress in his fine old eyes told her.

She explained to him how the affair had come about, taking the entire blame and feeling suddenly ashamed under his grieving gaze. "You, Pamela?" he said. "No, Cousin John. Not I; but the world I live in." "No, not the world you live in, but the false conceptions you live in. Don't you see, my dear, that there are no blind alleys such as you evidently felt we were in when you advised my child to commit moral suicide as her only road to life? Don't you see that there are always other roads if we but keep our vision clear? The reason I didn't see the way out of our difficulties was because I was blinded by the false conception of a tradition in our family which forbade our women to earn their own living. That out of the way, my road was clear."

cial situation, or that there was or might be any need for such a step. In fact, thinking I would disapprove, she had it in mind, the little mix, to wait until we were alone on the plantation, then hammer at me until, to get rid of her hammering, I'd agree. But upon discovering, as she thought, my financial inability to help her, she had recalled her secret dream as among the impossibilities. I suppose that was when she gave her consent to that unthinkable step, which, thank heaven, she at once saw in its true light."

A slow tell-tale red stained Warren's fair face. "Well, it's fine that you are agreed." "Enthusiastically agreed. I felt as if a great weight had been lifted from my heart. We have decided to bring our stay in Florida to a close. In fact I shall probably leave for the plantation tomorrow if you and Pamela will be good enough to look after my little girl for a couple of weeks. It shouldn't take me longer than that. As soon as I can wind up a few necessary affairs at home, I'll have Patricia meet me in New York. We will sail at once for Paris."

"Paris! Warren's color fled. 'But why Paris! She can get excellent teachers in New York. At least in the beginning.'" "True. But you see, my dear Warren by living abroad she can not only have the best instruction from the first; but we can live comfortably for perhaps half the cost."

"No, it wasn't understood. At least by me. And while both Patricia and I appreciate your generosity, the cost would inevitably be an item. If we borrowed from you, the debt would be hanging over Patricia's head for payment eventually. As it happens, I'm proud to say we won't find it necessary to accept your offer. I have fifteen thousand dollars insurance, fully paid, which I can draw upon demand. Living abroad, and on a different scale, it is ample to carry us for several years. I dare say two thousand a year will keep us in moderate comfort. In seven years Patricia will undoubtedly have found herself."

Iowa Cities Make Extensive Plans for Care of Unemployed

Heads of Community Chest Drives Marshall Forces for Funds to Aid State's Jobless

Community Wood Piles, Husking Bees Get Under Way

(By the Associated Press)

In several Iowa cities plans are now going forward for caring for those to whom winter will mean want and hunger and unemployment.

Leaders of community chest drives are marshalling their workers for a drive for funds. Already hundreds and hundreds of cans of vegetables and other foods have been put up in anticipation of an increased demand among the needy.

Furnish Jobs

Community wood piles, husking bees, improvement projects, and other "made work" schemes are starting to function in an attempt to provide the most desired relief of all—work.

And, despite estimates that those requiring help will be more numerous than before, leaders in more than one community have announced that all who need help will be cared for.

Just as significant is the apparent fact that more private individuals than ever before will have something to do with charitable enterprises.

Reappoint Committee

Keokuk's Committee of Thirty, which last year supervised the spending of about $15,000 on wood-cutting, graveling, and community improvement projects for the unemployed, has been reappointed, and in a week or two will start a campaign for a like sum with which to carry on the work again.

Plans for a "made work" program, financed by an unemployment relief fund of $175,000, to be sought in a drive opening Monday, are being made in Cedar Rapids where, it is estimated, 2,000 persons are without work.

Does Not Include Chest

This fund will not include donations to the community chest, for which a campaign probably will be made early in 1933.

In Council Bluffs all regularly employed persons are being asked to contribute two per cent of their salaries in October, November, December, and January for poor relief. In this way it is hoped $40,000 will be made available for the care of destitute families.

Confidence Has Been Lately

expressed by members of the Civic Planning committee in Davenport that the drive to raise $168,327 with which to provide for the 2,313 families already registered will soon meet with success.

Raised $120,000

Last year the Davenport group raised $120,000 to care for 2,310 families. This fund was supplemented by a $75,000 bond issue by the city and used for public improvements which furnished work for a large number of otherwise unemployed persons.

About 700 Families in Webster county are now being helped. A canning kitchen was operated in Ft. Dodge the last two months with several women's organizations in charge and prepared more than 30,000 cans of food. A "can-a-can" campaign brought 10,000 more jars of food, and an association of unemployed persons put up 1,400 quarts.

The Red Cross in Ft. Dodge and Webster county is in charge of the sewing of clothes for the poor.

Heads Burlington Relief

Relief measures in Burlington are under the general supervision of the Social Service league, with which co-operate virtually all other agencies, including the city administration and Des Moines county authorities.

It is estimated that 500 families are now being cared for and the league, with the American Legion auxiliary and the Salvation army, is conducting a commissary where the needy can obtain groceries on orders on one of the three agencies. Groceries for this store are purchased at wholesale.

Ask Funds in Des Moines

Nov. 12 to 19 has been set as the dates for a community chest drive in Des Moines. The amount to be sought has not yet been determined, but Public Welfare bureau officials said "considerably less" than last year's budget of $350,000, which was oversubscribed, would be asked for.

Meanwhile about 3,000 families are being taken care of in Des Moines, the relief load now being five times the normal demands. Under the supervision of the mayor's unemployment relief committee and other agencies, various plans for work, canning, making clothes, and the like are going forward.

Hope to Raise $75,000

A community chest drive in Waterloo will begin Nov. 14, when efforts will be made to raise $75,885. About 2,000 families in Waterloo are now destitute, or nearly so. Relief last year was administered to about 1,000 families, comprising about 4,500 persons.

In addition to the amounts budgeted for relief organizations from the 1932 chest fund, $8,000 is to be set aside as an emergency relief fund. Besides this help, several other systems are now in force to provide food, milk, clothing, and shelter.

Ottumwa Asks $25,000

Ottumwa's community chest campaign will be from Oct. 31 through Nov. 5. This year $25,000 will be asked, as compared to $15,000 last year. R. E. White, chairman of the Ottumwa emergency relief committee, estimates that 500 families there will need aid this winter. Jobless men this summer raised garden crops of an estimated value of $10,000. Numerous other relief projects are being conducted or planned. One of the most important of these is the building of a $200,000 waterworks, on which 890 men have been given work.

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

Why the Rush?

After a long period of exceptional dullness in the marriage license field, two persons filed applications in the office of Clerk of Court Walter J. Barrow yesterday.

One of Them

One of the seekers of marriage licenses was Keith A. Kellogg of Osage, who intends to marry Mary Louise Fleming of Ipana, Ill.

And the Other

The other one is George A. Aplicher of Kalona, who applied for a license to marry Velma Gingerich, also of Kalona.

Three More

Royce Ladd, P. F. Campbell, and E. F. Rate paid their $1 dues yesterday to the Overtime Parking club at the court of Police Judge C. L. Zager.

Rushing Business

The marriage license department is not the only thing that is picking up at the court house. In the office of Sheriff Don McComas 10 persons appeared yesterday to apply either for drivers' licenses or for duplicates. The usual number is three or four.

Political Lapels

At Republican headquarters in the Johnson County Savings bank building yesterday, the secretary was kept busy distributing buttons for participants to pin on their coat lapels, stickers for their cars, and reams of general propaganda.

Another Try

Indications are that the fourth time will be the charm for the jury. After appearing three times and being told that there were no cases to be tried, the jury has been asked to report again tomorrow. They will probably get to try a case this time.

Psychology

During the excitement of the game between Iowa and Indiana yesterday, when a crowd of almost 2,000 persons was watching the plays on The Daily Iowan's grid-iron, two automobiles bumped each other a half block away on Dubuque street. About two thirds of the crowd rushed down the street and swarmed around the astonished drivers. A fender was slightly scratched.

Attend Girl Scouts' Sale

Mrs. W. H. Bates, in charge of the white elephant sale yesterday in the American Legion Community building by the Girl Scout executive council, said last night that the sale was a complete success, "because of the cooperation of the members of the council, and the donors who responded to the appeal to make it a red letter day for the Girl Scouts."

At 8:30 a.m. yesterday the lobby of the Legion building was packed to the doors, half an hour before the sale was scheduled to begin. By 10 a.m. the ballroom was well filled.

The few articles left will be divided between the social service league, the American Legion Unemployment Relief association, and the local Red Cross bureau.

Roberts Case Opens in Court Tomorrow

Trial of David Roberts of Downey on a charge of rape is expected to begin in district court Monday at 2 p.m. with the impaneling of a jury.

Roberts, who was indicted by the grand jury in June, has pleaded not guilty. County Attorney F. B. Olsen will prosecute the case. E. A. Baldwin is attorney for the defense.

Giblet Eating Tilt
Will Feature Chicken Dinner at Elks Lodge
A chicken giblet eating contest will feature the annual chicken dinner of the Elks lodge, to be held Wednesday night after the regular business meeting.

Last year, according to the committee in charge of the dinner, someone neglected to serve the giblets. The dinner raised a storm of protest. The giblet eating contest is designed to satisfy last year's slighted banqueters.

W. P. Russell, chairman; L. G. Walters, and Verne Bates are the committee in charge of the supper, which will be served buffet style.

Suit Follows Auto Collision
Damages of $11,167.69 are asked in a petition filed with the clerk of court yesterday for Lillian Godard against the Ideal Overall company of Moline, Ill., Morris Meyer, K. Rodney Smith, and Maurice Mitchell.

The damages resulted from an automobile crash on U. S. highway 6 east of Iowa City May 10. The plaintiff alleges that a car operated by Mitchell and owned by Meyer and Smith, business partners in the Ideal Overall company, was being driven in such a negligent manner that it collided with the car in which she was riding. Robert Leaper was owner and driver of the second vehicle.

The plaintiff asks $5,000 for her own injuries; $3,000 for injuries to Lillian Abbott, a passenger in the Leaper car at the time of the accident; $3,000 for Lena Gurvitz, also riding with Leaper; and $167.69 for damages to the machine. The last three claims have been assigned and transferred to the plaintiff.

The petition was filed by Messer and Nolan, attorneys for the plaintiff.

Report Gain
DES MOINES (AP)—Bankers Life company reported its September paid in business total of $6,107,000 was the largest for any September during the last four years. The total was more than a million dollars above that of August this year.

Giblet Eating Tilt
Will Feature Chicken Dinner at Elks Lodge
A chicken giblet eating contest will feature the annual chicken dinner of the Elks lodge, to be held Wednesday night after the regular business meeting.

Last year, according to the committee in charge of the dinner, someone neglected to serve the giblets. The dinner raised a storm of protest. The giblet eating contest is designed to satisfy last year's slighted banqueters.

W. P. Russell, chairman; L. G. Walters, and Verne Bates are the committee in charge of the supper, which will be served buffet style.

Suit Follows Auto Collision
Damages of $11,167.69 are asked in a petition filed with the clerk of court yesterday for Lillian Godard against the Ideal Overall company of Moline, Ill., Morris Meyer, K. Rodney Smith, and Maurice Mitchell.

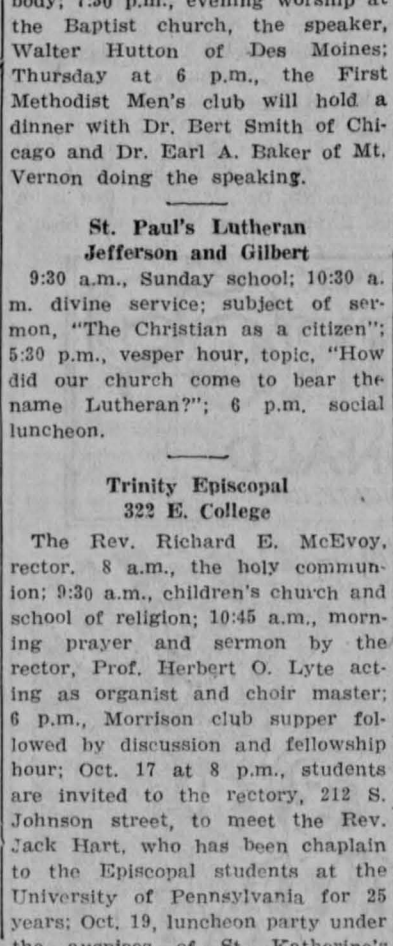

The damages resulted from an automobile crash on U. S. highway 6 east of Iowa City May 10. The plaintiff alleges that a car operated by Mitchell and owned by Meyer and Smith, business partners in the Ideal Overall company, was being driven in such a negligent manner that it collided with the car in which she was riding. Robert Leaper was owner and driver of the second vehicle.

The plaintiff asks $5,000 for her own injuries; $3,000 for injuries to Lillian Abbott, a passenger in the Leaper car at the time of the accident; $3,000 for Lena Gurvitz, also riding with Leaper; and $167.69 for damages to the machine. The last three claims have been assigned and transferred to the plaintiff.

The petition was filed by Messer and Nolan, attorneys for the plaintiff.

Congregational Church Offers Study of Leaders of Religion at Student Class

Iowa City churches, now that school is well under way, have their programs for university students thoroughly organized. Activities have been provided in most of the churches for all classes and ages and special features are being offered in most of the denominations.

One of the most interesting features this week is a course opening today at the Congregational church in "Studies in religious biography," by Dr. I. H. Pierce, and a special study of "The life and teachings of Jesus," directed by Dr. A. E. Lambert. Today's subject in the first series will be "Pope Gregory the first."

Monday at the Trinity Episcopal church students will be invited to the rectory to meet the Rev. Jack Hart, for 25 years chaplain to the Episcopal students at the University of Pennsylvania.

Wednesday at the Congregational church, the Woman's association will hold its annual thank offering luncheon at the home of Mrs. A. H. Woods, 1109 N. Dubuque street. It will be a picnic luncheon and the women are asked to bring sandwiches, a covered dish, and table service. Mrs. H. S. Houghton will be the speaker. A social hour will follow the program.

Thursday at 6 p.m., the first meeting of the Methodist's Men's club will be held with a dinner. Dr. Bert Smith of Chicago and Dr. Earl A. Baker of Mt. Vernon will be the speakers.
