Mr. and Mrs. Jack KELLY Honoured At Reception

A public reception was held in the Memorial Hall, Blyth, on Tuesday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kelly, recent new-weds. About 150 friends and neighbours gathered to enjoy an evening of dancing, and social chat.

Following lunch Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were called to the front of the Hall, and a presentation of a purse of money and other gifts were made. The chivari gang presented the couple with a smoking stand and a sewing box.

The following address was read:

Dear Jack and Betty:—

You your friends and neighbours have gathered here this evening to extend to you and Betty our sincere congratulations on your happy wedding event. Jack, we have been watching you for the past year, and you seemed to be ploughing a much straighter furrow than in the past, and now since you have such a splendid help-mate in your esteemed bride, we will be looking for a much straighter one in the future. However, we take much pleasure in welcoming her to our community, and hope she will overlook any of our misgivings especially that Chicago the other night. And now as a token of the high esteem in which you both are held, we ask you to please accept these two small gifts, one from your neighbours and friends, the other from the old gang.

With best wishes for your future health and happiness.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours—Bernie Craig, John Phelan, Tom Kelly, Lloyd Pease.

Before her marriage Mrs. Kelly was Elizabeth Kukukuchka, of Welland.

Happy Days Are Here— For The Kids

The long summer holiday for the children has commenced—or at least it will have by the time this item is read. The Senior room of the local public school closed on Tuesday. This was made necessary to enable the principal, J. A. Gray, to preside over Entrance Examinations at Duggan School, which were held on Wednesday and Thursday. The Junior room closes this Thursday afternoon.

And now commences two months' of hilarity for the children, and two months of headaches for the parents, particularly those with smaller, industrious lads and lassies, who at least a dozen times a day come up with the question, "Mom, what can I do today," and which after a brief argument, usually ends up the same way, with the young "upstarts" disappearing with trunks and bicycle, for the "old swimmin' hole", at the Arch.

Don't you wish you were a kid again.

Victory Loan Sales Reflect Huron's Splendid Patriotism

The following letter has been received by Mr. Leslie Hilborn, Local Victory Loan Salesman in the Sixth Victory Loan, from the County Chairman, Rev. W. A. Beecroft, of Wingham:

Dear Mr. Hilborn:—

I have just received the twentieth bulletin of the Sixth Victory Loan Campaign, and I am sending to you this brief summary:—

1. Sales through Salesmen, Banks, Payroll, Payroll Savings, and Armed Services, $3,364,550, or 107.99 percent of objective.

Armed Services alone, $271,900, or 10.99 percent of objective.

Special Names, $165,000 or 110 percent of objective.

2. Total applications 10,662, or one application in every 3.89 of population.

3. There were 658 sales through deferred payment letters for a total of $198,403.

4. For this Sixth Loan the per capita purchase of the people of Huron was $79.76.

These figures reflect a good selling job on the part of our Huron County Victory Loan Organization, and a good response on the part of Huron County people. I want to share with you my feeling of satisfaction over the results of our pride, and of pride in Huron County.

Yours Faithfully,

W. A. BEECROFT, Chairman,
Huron County War Finance Comm.

A Letter From Pte. Phil Phillips

Recently Mrs. Harold Phillips received the following letter from her son, Pte. Phil Phillips, who has been in Italy ever since the Allies invaded that country. His brief impressions of the country, and the people, may be of interest to our readers:

"Dear Mother:—Well here we are starting another week and the weather is still hot.

I think I'll tell you (try to) my impression of this country. War time, and when battles are being fought, is a poor time to judge a country. Well, anyway, to start with, that song with the words "Blue Italian Skies Above", is sure right. The sky is always blue and the waters of the Mediterranean are a lovely blue and clear as crystal. The roads are narrow, and like Canada, only the main ones are paved. The land is mountainous on a whole; the only level space of any size that I have seen is the Liri Valley.

In the southern part of Italy olive orchards are found in abundance in the valleys and on terraced strips up the side of the mountains.

Tractors are unheard of. All the work is done with oxen or by hand. Women and children work alongside the men. Oranges and lemons are grown in the south only, and not to the extent as in Sicily.

In the northern section you see no orange or lemon groves and very few olive groves, it's mostly vineyards and wheat. They still harvest the crops by hand, cutting the grain with a scythe, and tying it into sheaves by hand.

The Italian people as a race are good musicians, but inclined to be filthy. The towns are strictly backward, no paved streets, no sewers, and no sidewalks. The pigs and goats (cows are scarce) sleep in the house with the people. The cities are much like our own only every building has a marble floor. I have yet to see a wooden floor in a house in Italy or Sicily.

Well, that's my brief impressions of the country, or at least part of it.

How is everyone at home? I'm enclosing a "wop" 50 Liri note and a one shilling note.

Will have to close now.

All my love,

PHIL."

RED CROSS MEETING

The regular meeting of the Red Cross Society will be held in the Work Room on Tuesday, July 4th, at 8 o'clock. Please note change of time.

Brick Yard Pond Drained

Mr. George Radford's large ditching dredge has been busily engaged during the past couple of weeks just south of town, in Hullett Township. Last Thursday afternoon a short spur was run from the main drain up to the old brick yard pond, and about three feet of water was let out. For many years the pond has been a source of trouble in the piping of the year, as the drains running from it were practically plugged, and the water would back up and flood many acres around it, but that difficulty has been entirely removed. The pond was not entirely drained, as Mr. W. M. Henry wished enough water left to insure drinking water for his fine herd of jersey cattle, of which he has twenty-two at present, and intends to increase the herd.

Mr. Radford's dredge carried on up through the old railroad tracks, and is at present working on the property of Mr. George Sloan, where there was a section very badly in need of draining.

Old Rubber Horse Shoe Found

While digging through the sight of the former C.N.R. tracks, an old horse shoe, made of rubber, was discovered. It was wonderfully preserved, and displayed the name of the maker, the Dunlop Rubber Company, quite plainly. It is estimated that it might have been there 60 or 70 years.

Considerable repair work was necessary on the highway bridge, where the drain crosses No. 4 Highway. During the digging of the drain several muskrats were dug out of their dens, and several fair-sized trout were thrown out with the buckets-ful of dirt. One day two suckers came ambling along to the bridge where the highway gang were at work, and these were quickly cornered and caught.

A short letter from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fraser, former Blyth residents, who have been residing in Bayfield for some years, informs us that they are this week moving to Clinton. Many old friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. Fraser is much improved in health following a slight stroke a year ago. In the letter they stated they would welcome a visit from any of their old friends when ever they found it convenient to be in Clinton.

A Cheery Note From Dr. Vokes

We are in receipt of a cheery note from Room 5, Clinton Hospital, where our good Dr. Vokes is convalescing following an operation. In it he states that he is making splendid progress, and will be sitting up on Thursday, and also that he has appreciated so much the many cards and flowers "which have made the day seem much cooler." He hopes to be home before long, a fact which everyone will be glad to learn.

Has The Heat Got You?

Have you a leaky roof? Have you bats in the belfry? In other words has the rain and the heat of the past week got the better of you?

The editor had a bad case of both during the past week. During the heavy down-pour of Friday night we heard the patter of rain drops, and they weren't on the roof, but on the floor of the second compartment (top stairs). We had that repaired, and the roof should be in good shape.

Today (Wednesday) we sweltered down to the White Rose Service Station, as we thought for a short respite from the intense heat (and a bottle of pop), but alas, we took a gander at the thermometer, which is definitely in the shade on the north side of the building. The mercury was perched at a plump 98. We hurried back to the linotype machine where we still continue to swelter beside a red-hot metal pot, which is necessary if we are to turn out this week's paper.

Music Teacher Resigns At Public School

Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, A.T.C.M., has resigned her position as teacher of music in the Blyth Public School.

In honour of the valuable services she rendered during her term of seven years, the pupils and teacher of the Junior Room presented her with a beautiful bouquet of roses and a box of stationery. The following address, written by Jack Kyle, was read by Mrs. Mills by Brock Vadden:

Blyth, Ont., June 2nd, 1914.

Dear Mr. Mills: We were very sorry to learn that you are not going to teach music any more. We know in the past you have been "not very well." We wish that you will get better and stronger, so you can come back in 1915 or '16. We hope you will enjoy this token we are giving you. We will miss you very much. We are very grateful for our opportunity to learn music. And we hope very much that you will get well again and will come back to teach us.

Your Pupils In Room 1.

The teaching of music is a very important subject in school work, and we believe the majority of parents would like it to continue. No successor has been appointed to carry on the work given up by Miss Mills, but undoubtedly some action will be taken before the long holiday passes.

East Wawanosh Adopts School Area Plan

At a special meeting of the Council held last Wednesday evening, the Township of East Wawanosh endorsed the Township School Area Plan. This move was taken following a public meeting in Belevue when the majority present favoured endorsement of the plan. The vote of the Council was unanimous.

The plan will embrace all the schools in the township and they will be administered by a board of five who will be nominated and elected in a similar manner as the council and at the same time. The plan goes into effect the first of 1915. In order that the various schools in the township would receive about $2000 this year it was necessary that the by-law approving the Township Area Plan be passed prior to July 1st.

Former Blyth Man In Car Accident

The Wingham Aigvanc-Times reports the following mishap to Mr. George Fell, a former resident of Blyth:

"When making the turn at the end of the Diagonal Road Sunday afternoon, George Fell failed to negotiate the turn and drove his car into Henderson's field. The car when it left the pavement leaped for the ditch and took with it the guide that held the last post of the fence at the turn. It went over the bank but did not upset keeping an upright position. The car was not badly damaged as it was driven to Bluevale later under its own power. George was given a shaking up and also received a cut on his forehead, which was treated by Dr. Crawford.

Young Pilot Forced Down In East Wawanosh

Friday afternoon's storm gave quite a thrill to a young pilot from the Central airport, who was making his first solo in an Anson bomber. The young chap, Ted Elliott, by name, a native of England, was at a point just over George Cart's farm on Currie's Road in East Wawanosh, when the fierceness of the storm forced him to bale out at a height of about 1000 feet. He landed O.K., and his plane circled a moment, and then crashed in a swamp close by where the airman landed. The young chap struck a thing worse than a minor scratch on one finger and a bump on the forehead. The plane was a complete wreck, and drew many visitors to the scene.

Peace—It's Wonderful

As calm and peaceful as if the war were on another planet is the scene above, which shows some of Gen. Claire L. Chennault's fighters in the China-Burma theater of operations relaxing at Camp Schiel. Located on one of China's most healthful plateaus, Camp Schiel is equipped with basketball courts, boats, hunting facilities and tennis courts.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Will you come exploring with me — just you and I and Tippy. You will? — that's fine, then let's be going. But wait, we had better take that mosquito dope along — many little animals, those mosquitoes, they can sure take the joy out of life. It's pretty warm, you like? Well, yes, but then it's summertime, isn't it, so what else can we expect?

Come along, we will start up the back lane, through the pasture field, across the bush and over to the track. Yes, you guessed it — we're to go exploring for wild strawberries.

What a wonderful growth of grass there is in the lane — that's because the cattle had not yet been pastured here — next week it will be a different story, and the walking a little easier. See how well the spring crop looks... yes, there are daisies there — and chicory too along the fences. We don't like the look of them at all but still there is a limit to what one man and his wife can do on a hundred acres. Look — do look — over there near that blackthorn tree...

did you ever see a wild canary quite so yellow... and hear how sweetly he sings.

Now we must hunt for that place in the fence where we always get through to the track. How the years fly... such a little while it seems since daughter and our wee son came exploring with me. And how soon they tired of picking berries — the creek was a much greater attraction. There was far more water in the creek in those days and in it both the children learnt to swim. Right here at this bend — we called it "the raspberry corner" — is where Bob's nearly drowned. He was about three years old and was playing happily at the edge of the creek while I was teaching sister to swim. But he didn't stay there... and he went down twice before I reached him.

Well, here we are at the track. Mercy — where's Tippy? I hear a train coming — it will scare the life out of her. "Here, Tippy... come here little dog. Yes, we'll pick you up and hold you good and tight until the train has gone by. Don't tremble so, little dog, nothing is going to hurt you. See, there's the engine driver waving to us."

Well now, we had better start looking for strawberries in real earnest. After all, that's what we came for, wasn't it? Or was it?

Strange how even a wild strawberry patch will run out. This is the place where the berries were so thick year after year — and now there is hardly a berry. But here is a new patch... "No, Tippy, I am not kneeling down to play with you... scam now... go chase a rabbit. How can I pick berries if you sit down on top of them?"

And so it goes... we wander around, picking where we can, climbing fences when we come to them, swatting, every now and then, at mosquitoes which persist in attacking us despite our attempts to repel them. We are enjoying our rendezvous with nature, and we don't want to go home. But we must. There are hens and chickens to feed and, on a hot night like this, Partner will be looking for a drink while he milks. Come — to think of it, we could do with a drink ourselves.

How many berries have we got? Is that really so important? Well, if you must know there are enough to make a good feed for two people for dinner tomorrow! Was it worthwhile, did you say? — wouldn't it have been more practical to slip down town and buy a quart, even at 35¢? Well, that depends on one's sense of values. Out here where, as one looks towards the far distant horizon — which doesn't seem so very distant after all — earth and heaven seem to merge into one. There is a "peace that passes all understanding" and one's faith is once more restored. Faith that somehow, sometime, all the ugliness and suffering that is in the world today will come to an end. That out of the maelstrom of human misery there will emerge a better world in which all men may live in peace.

You see what I mean? One cannot buy hope and a new faith with a box of berries from a store, but one can find them out where the wild berries grow, out where the birds sing songs of freedom for all who wish to hear.

The Portion For Caleb

"Then the children of Judah drew night unto Joshua in Gilgal; and Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite said unto him, Thou knowest the thing that Jehovah spoke unto Moses the man of God concerning me and concerning thee in Kadesh-barnea." Caleb meets his old comrade and leader, and reminds him of the Word which Jehovah had spoken to Moses concerning them both (14:21, 30).

"Forty years old was I, when Moses the servant of Jehovah sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land; and I brought him word again as it was in my heart." Well would Joshua and Caleb remember the day when they were sent by Moses to spy out the land. They saw all the difficulties and dangers, but in their vision they saw that with God on their side all would be well.

Blessings for the Faithful

"Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me... because Thou hast wholly followed Jehovah my God" Caleb and Joshua threw their whole power into the effort to save the people from cowardice and disaster, wholly following the Lord. Great blessings are promised to the faithful who follow the Lord, not partially but wholly.

"And now behold Jehovah hath kept me alive... even so is my strength now, for war, and to go out and to come in." God not only prolonged his life but had preserved his strength in full vigor. There is no doubt that Godliness tends to longevity, or that by living for self and sin we shorten life.

Caleb's Inheritance

"Now therefore give me this hill-country, whereof Jehovah spoke in that day; for thou heardst in that day how the Anakim were there, and cities great and fortified; it may be that Jehovah will be with me, and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spoke." The hill-country was still in the hands of the enemy but Caleb knew that if God was with him, and he had no doubt about this, then none could withstand him.

"And Joshua blessed him; and he gave Hebron unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh for an inheritance. Therefore Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh to Kenizzite unto this day; because that he wholly followed Jehovah, The God of Israel."

For the third time we are reminded of Caleb's whole-hearted allegiance to the Lord, and this time we are told it was because of this that this special inheritance was granted to him.

Success Through Faith

"And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses had spoken; and he drove out thence the three sons of Anak. And the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day." Caleb was a man of faith and completely succeeded in the difficult tasks which he believed God led him to undertake; the children of Israel equally promised victory over their enemies, did not complete these victories as they should, but failed to utterly drive out the enemy, simply because they did not wholly follow the Lord.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

New U. S. Superfortresses Strike Mighty Blow At Industrial Japan

America struck a mighty blow against Japan last week, says The New York Times. Making their first offensive thrust against Nippon's home islands, the new B-29 Superfortresses, operating from bases in China, struck at industrial Japan in the longest-range air raid in history.

The air blow at Japan brought into play a battleship of the air that reduced the Flying Fortress, Liberator, Lancaster and Halifax to the status of medium bombers. Designed and built under wartime pressure, the Superfortress' 112-foot wing-span compared with the 102 feet of the Fortress; its 98-foot length to the Fortress' 73-foot length. It is armed with 50-caliber machine guns and 20-mm. cannon mounted in power turrets that can be swung in all directions. Powered by four 2,200-horsepower Wright engines (the Flying Fortress uses four 1,200-horsepower engines) it is reported able to carry more bombs farther and faster than any other plane in the world, perhaps reach a fifth of the way around the world.

Days of Preparation

A tremendous effort was required to bring these huge planes into combat. In India tens of thousands of Indians and thousands of Americans labored building rear bases for the big ships. The Americans worked sixteen and eighteen hours a day and astonished British "old India hands" by persuading Indians to work similar hours. In China, where advanced bases were built, the task was even more difficult.

The story of how the B-29 bases in China were built is one of the most inspiring of the war. Plans for the bases were developed in Washington in the fall of 1943. In mid-January, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek ordered the greatest conscription of man-power in Chinese history since construction of the Great Wall 2,000 years ago.

Within 17 days, an initial force of 200,000 Chinese peasants and been assembled at the site in West China and the work began without cement mixing, rock crushing or road building machinery, or other mechanical devices.

The power was provided by human beings; the equipment was their hands. The force sometimes numbered 400,000.

The crushed rock used for each of the fields was enough for a 20-foot wide highway 60 miles in length. The Chinese also built barracks for crews of the B-29's but material was scarce so the buildings were primitive affairs.

2600-Mile Trip

Almost a year to the day after the first Superfortresses rolled off the assembly lines, the Twentieth Air Force, set up especially for these huge aircraft, to employ them for strategic purposes anywhere in the world, sent them out for their first major mission over the east China Sea to Japan, a trip out and back that could not have been less than 2,600 miles and was probably much more. Long-range flights in the European theatre seldom exceed 1,000 miles.

The first Superfortresses arrived over their target, Yawata, center of the Japanese steel industry, source of perhaps 50 per cent of Japan's pig iron, at 10:50 in the evening, sent huge block-busters down on the forest of chimneys below. Japanese searchlights sought out the tiny specks that may have been 20,000 feet or more in the air.

hill-country, whereof Jehovah spoke in that day; for thou heardst in that day how the Anakim were there, and cities great and fortified; it may be that Jehovah will be with me, and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spoke." The hill-country was still in the hands of the enemy but Caleb knew that if God was with him, and he had no doubt about this, then none could withstand him.

"And Joshua blessed him; and he gave Hebron unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh for an inheritance. Therefore Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh to Kenizzite unto this day; because that he wholly followed Jehovah, The God of Israel."

For the third time we are reminded of Caleb's whole-hearted allegiance to the Lord, and this time we are told it was because of this that this special inheritance was granted to him.

Success Through Faith

"And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses had spoken; and he drove out thence the three sons of Anak. And the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day." Caleb was a man of faith and completely succeeded in the difficult tasks which he believed God led him to undertake; the children of Israel equally promised victory over their enemies, did not complete these victories as they should, but failed to utterly drive out the enemy, simply because they did not wholly follow the Lord.

And that of the allied planes. Night fighters failed to the attack.

All But Four Return

All but four of the Superfortresses came back safely. Two were lost in operational accidents and the crew of one was saved. One was downed by the Japanese. The fourth is listed as "missing" Japanese propagandists told their people: "We should not think that we have been passively attacked, but that we have actively pulled the enemy toward us." Allied observers estimated the raid had knocked out 15 per cent of Japan's steel production, at least temporarily.

The attack opened the possibility that soon Japan would suffer the same kind of strategic bombing that has cut so heavily into German war production. Japan, experts have pointed out, is more vulnerable to air attack than Germany. Japan's industry is largely concentrated in six major areas, four of them on the island of Honshu and two on the island of Kyushu. It would take less effort to spread havoc here than it did to damage Germany's more widely scattered industrial centers.

Iceland Severs Denmark Ties

The people of Iceland, one of the world's oldest democracies, voted 70,339 to 263 to sever their 700-year-old ties with Denmark and form an independent republic, final figures on last week's plebiscite just released showed.

About 98 per cent of the eligible voters on the island participated. The young republic probably will be proclaimed June 17, an Iceland national holiday.

The Althing, Iceland's legislative body, prepared to convene June 10 to name the island's first President, who will serve for one year. Thereafter, a president will be elected by the people for a four-year term.

They Were Waiting To See Montgomery

That's a nice little story which has tickled out of Denmark regarding Rommel's anti-invasion inspection.

A crowd of Danes filed the street in front of Rommel's hotel in Copenhagen, but remained after he had come out and had driven away. The police tried to move them on, but without success, and finally they asked them why they waited.

"We're waiting to see Montgomery," several of them replied. "He always comes along right behind Rommel."

Chinese Use Pigeons In Jungle Warfare

That the Chinese have used carrier and racing pigeons for hundreds of years is pointed out by a British officer in Calcutta, India, and he tells of one firm that has used them 500 years without interruption. The Chinese division he had been with in Burma had great success with them in jungle warfare.

PHIL OSIPHER OF LAZY MEADOWS

By Harry J. Boyle.

Imagination is a great thing. Sometimes it takes very little to spur children into activity. In fact, once you start them the whole thing can become embarrassing. In fact it's a great deal easier to get children started than it is to get them stopped. A child's imagination is something like a snowball rolling down the side of a hill on a wet day. It gets bigger and bigger.

Patricia Ann and two of the Higgins children were noying on the back kitchen porch. They had been playing dolls and gradually this seemed to lose solid attraction for them, so they just sat down. Going into the house in the middle of the afternoon for something I asked them what the matter could be. Usually they're about as inactive as a mosquito lumber. They just didn't have any ideas. Being just a child of heart I suppose, I offered the idea that they play store. They smiled and thanked me and sat on. I went on into the house feeling just a little disappointed.

The idea seemed to catch on however because when I went on out to the barn again they were in the middle of building a store in the backyard. They were lugging boxes out of the woodshed and planks from the lumberpile in the orchard. The sight of the three little people tugging away at the big barrels was too much for me. I set it up for them . . . and just as I stood back to admire my handiwork I caught a glimpse of Mrs. Phil looking out the pantry window. She was laughing quite heartily at the sight of the "children" working away like a caterer before a county folkie picnic. I went on back to the hayfield and forgot about the whole thing. At supper time you can imagine my surprise to find an old sheet spread over a canopy arrangement over the top of the "store". That looked like the work of a grown-up and Patricia Ann admitted that her "company" had come out to play in the back. I discovered also that they had once an array of fine chandise on the shelves. There were dolls and clothes and dolls and dolls of all descriptions and six cotton dolls, two and one Spina dolls. Mrs. Phil was sitting on a chair in front of place along with her best piece, that came from a single child's toy, and the other two for a while. They wanted a show but settled for the smaller amount.

Mrs. Phil had dropped her pants. It seems that the youngsters taking advantage of her father's position, the sheet canopy had tumbled the pantry. Dolls and all things were laid out and filled with a sort of a green nature. When the Higgins children departed, Patricia Ann protested vigorously because her child hood must had to be dismantled.

Tearing away at night putting back the lumber and boxes and filling one of the good trees empty of a ribbon to tie up a cut box I would not to myself if it were such a good idea this summer of children's imagination.

1944 FRUIT CROPS PROMISING

The National Outlook for 1944 fruit crops is reported to be very favourable, according to the Bureau of Vital Statistics. It is still too early, however, to predict the probable harvest accurately.

They say that judging by the bloom in British Columbia orchards, a record crop of all fruits is considered likely. There also appears to be a general increase in the amount of ground given over to vegetable crops this season all over Canada, and the current prospect is satisfactory.

The first local disappointment came when the majority of people failed to secure more than a very small portion of the amount of strawberries they required for canning and cold storage. In fact there hardly was enough to eat on the table. Rains came too late apparently, to help the crop.

Soup Again

Yesterday's gravy makes tomorrow's soup. . . . careful about making it too rich though. Dilute with vegetable water, add vegetables. . . . brew it a bit for good flavour.

The Little More . . .

. . . . And how much it is. Rinse out jam, jelly, marmalade, honey and molasses jars with a little boiling water. Save this syrup and use for sweetening pudding sauces and other desserts. And when only a little catsup, chili sauce or other pickle is left, rinse the bottle with vinegar, and use in salad dressing.

Save vegetables by washing right away and packing gently in the crisper.

Save heat by turning the gas or electricity down after the kettle or pot begins to boil.

Save meat by knowing the various cuts of meat and buying only according to your needs.

Save money by knowing prices. . . . when a real sale comes along be ready to take advantage of it.

Call Sent Out For Nurses Need Urgent

"Nurses are urgently required for general hospitals, sanatoria and mental hospitals," a Department of Labour official pointed out recently. He went on to say that the Dominion Department of Labour at the present time is conducting a campaign to enlist and utilize more effectively the services of graduate nurses in Canada.

"At this time when the need is so critical, nurses who are not working at their former profession are being urged to return to it," the official said. When nursing services of a less essential character are being performed, National Selective Service is presently appealing to these nurses to take on more important duties. In many cases long holidays have already been curtailed by nurses themselves in order not to add to the already acute shortage of nursing staff.

Selective Service officials have commended the contribution made by busy housewives from Nova Scotia to British Columbia who have returned to their former nursing duties on a part or full time basis.

"Further details as to where a graduate nurse may help are available at the nearest Nurses' Registry or the local Employment and Selective Service office," said the official.

FLANE CRASH NEAR GODERICH

A Three-Mach training plane carrying PO J. C. Russell of Sky Harbour and an unnamed student of the Fleet Air Arm, crashed on the farm of Alex. Johnston, two miles southeast of Port Albert airport at 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday. According to the statement issued by

SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Last Week: Jaspur escapes from the police and the others are allowed to go home. Bill tells Christine he saw Wilmet near the studio at 9.0. at Jaspur was trailing her. She realizes the inspector was certain she knew Jaspur.

CHAPTER X

"Then," Christine said slowly, "if you're right, Bill — if he is skulking in the dark somewhere — and if he does kill some one else, I'll be — well, a sort of accomplice, won't I — because I didn't tell the police who he was and have them lock him up?"

"Nonsense! Not telling all you know doesn't constitute you a criminal. If it did, most of us would spend a lot of time behind bars."

But in spite of Bill's light words, his voice was tense with worry.

A newshy came along the Boardwalk shrilling, "Wuxtry! Read all about it! Moider on the Boardwalk! Wuxtry! Wuxtry!"

Bill bought a copy. "Here's a good light," he said; and they stopped to read.

Most of the first two pages were devoted to the sensational murder of the wealthy and exclusive widow, Mrs. Emma Talbert.

At one of the items Christine stared with blanching checks.

"You said awhile ago," she faltered at last, "that not telling all I knew didn't make me a criminal... What would this make me?"

"An unknown person," the item read, "has mailed to this office a document purporting to be the will of Mrs. Emma Talbert. According to that will, the dead woman's entire fortune — except for a substantial bequest to the butler who has served her for years — is left to her only relative, Miss Christine Thorsen."

"It couldn't make you anything but what you are," Bill tried to say reassuringly, "sweet and good and honest."

A good deal of space was given up to the mysterious beach-comber who was at large after having been arrested in connection with the case. The rumors were (1) that he was a notorious underworld character; (2) that he was an anarchist who hated the rich; (3) that he was a homicidal maniac.

A great deal of significance was attached to the footprints leading from the rowboat toward the booth where the body was found, one pair of which, police were reported to have said, had been identified as Mrs. Talbert's.

One item told of a strange sea-going launch which the Coast Guard lights had picked out, apparently drifting at anchor a mile or so off shore, directly opposite the booth where the tragedy had occurred. According to the newspaper, a detail from the Coast Guard had motored out and boarded it, only to find it abandoned.

A last-minute story told of the finding of the murdered woman's car, and the discovery in it of a hypodermic needle and a quantity of a powerful drug.

"So the inspector's key did open the car," Christine said.

"Key?" echoed Bill, who was frowning over the item.

In a moment he added, "Oh, those boys use can openers"; but his voice sounded flat and strained.

Aside from the space given Jaspur, Bill and Christine received the lion's share of publicity. Bill came off with flying colors. The impression conveyed was that he had pursued the killer along the beach in an heroic attempt to prevent the crime.

But Christine was horrified to find herself played up in lurid colors as the "Boardwalk Mystery Girl"... "WHY," one headline screamed, "WAS THE COUSIN OF THE WEALTHY MRS. TALBERT MASQUERADING ON THE BOARDWALK UNDER AN ASSUMED NAME?"

There was a gruesome description of the finding of the body, graphically contrasting Mrs. Talbert's rigidly cloistered life at exclusive Beachmont with the law-dry setting of her violent death.

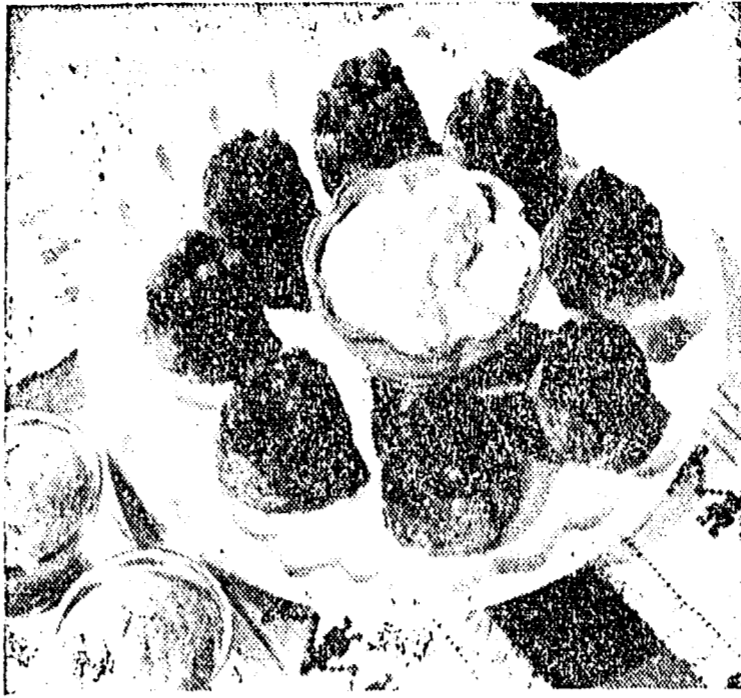

Over that, Christine shed her first tears.

"Oh, Bill," she choked, her voice breaking at the stark paths of it, "all these years she hasn't had any one but me, and I — I never really tried to be nice to her... And now I haven't any one either."

Bill drew her to one of the benches that lined the Boardwalk and gathered her gently into his arms as if she had been a very little girl, and she sobbed against his shoulder until gradually she found relief.

Presently, he said, close to her ear, "You've got me, Christine. You'll always have me — if you want me... I didn't mean to tell you — not for months — because I didn't dare think you'd believe me... I hardly believed myself that it could happen all at once

A Vote For Variety

Are you a cut-way cook? When you start with cherries do you always arrive at cherry pie? Don't be so set in your ways. Venture into new flavor fields. It makes menu planning much more exciting!

Try a cherry pudding. Not just an ordinary one but this one made with All-Bran. It has a nut-like taste that is a perfect foil for cherry flavor.

SOUR CHERRY PUDDINGS

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup All-Bran
1/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup drained, cooked cherries
Blend shortening and sugar together thoroughly; add egg, beat well. Soak All-Bran in milk; add flavoring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add to first mixture alternately with All-Bran and milk. Put five or six cherries in bottom of each greased custard cup and fill two-thirds full with batter. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 25 minutes. Serve hot with Cherry Sauce.

CHERRY SAUCE

1 1/2 cups cherry juice
1 1/3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
Add juice to cornstarch and stir until smooth. Add salt. Cook slowly, stir until mixture is clear and cornstarch is thoroughly cooked. Serve hot over Cherry Puddings.

Note: Use sweetened, canned cherries. Water may be substituted for part of juice if necessary.

that way. But this is what I've wanted from the first."

Because she had been so sure from the beginning that Bill was safe and wholesome as the fresh sea air and sunshine; and because she realized all of a sudden that this was what she had really wanted from the beginning, too, Christine did believe him, and clung to him as the one sure, sane refuge in a world suddenly gone insane.

And because this was Surf City, concerned first and only with its own interests, its own amusement, its own desires, the Boardwalk crowd eddied and passed without a backward glance.

At length Christine sat up, pre-testing between tears and laughter, "Bill — all these people! I couldn't have believed I'd ever do a thing like this."

And Bill said, a little unsteadily himself, "So far as they're concerned, we're not even here... Anything could happen to any one on this Boardwalk, and no one else would even notice."

Later, in the crisis that rushed upon them with such cruel inevitability, Christine was to remember his words.

When they finally reached Christine's door, Bill took her almost roughly into his arms again.

"I wish to God I didn't have to leave you alone," he said, his voice hoarse with trouble. "Promise me that you'll be careful, Christine — if you have any idea what the word means."

Once in her own room, Christine set systematically about the examination of her belongings.

In a superstitious fool, she thought in the release of her new happiness. But I've got to be sure. At length she found it — in a big manila envelope into which, before she had left New York, she had hastily stuck some canceled checks she didn't quite want to throw away.

"It" was a thick sheaf of thousand dollar bonds. There was nothing to indicate whose they were; and Christine did not look through the bundle to find out how many there were. After the first frightened look, she dropped them as if they burned her fingers and sat staring, her shaking hands tight at her throat.

Her first impulse was to call Bill; but there was no telephone in her room. To reach one, she must go into the public hall and risk being overheard.

She did the only other thing that occurred to her. Making sure that her rather flimsy door was locked, she pulled the heavy bureau in front of it, and went to bed.

Christine did not hope to sleep; but after a while she did.

She was hardly dressed next morning before she was summoned to the telephone. It was Bill calling.

"Bill," Christine said swiftly, "I've got to see you. Something —"

"Listen!" Bill's voice was sharp with warning. Don't use words that mean anything over the telephone. You've probably got a reporter in each pocket... And don't be worried when you read in the paper that the shoes of one William Yardley have been found to fit into one pair of footprints found by the police."

And the other pair, Christine remembered, were Cousin Emma's.

MOTHERCRAFT HEALTH NOTES

COMPLEMENTARY FEEDING

By complementary feeding we mean the giving of additional food immediately after the baby has nursed. In all cases where the supply of breast milk is deficient it should be complemented with a suitable artificial food. The chief purpose of this feeding is to maintain baby's normal growth while we endeavour to bring up the mother's supply.

We must first ascertain the daily allowance of food necessary for baby's age and weight. Having discovered what baby needs for one day, we proceed to find out what he actually gets in a day. The method of test weighing is as follows:— Weigh baby in his clothes before and after each nursing and make up with the artificial feeding what he should have for his age and weight. When test weighing baby you will find that he does not obtain an equal amount of milk at each nursing. Usually he obtains larger feedings in the morning and smaller ones during the afternoon and evening.

It is important not to over complement as baby should go to the breast sufficiently hungry to suck vigorously. Another important point is to take care that baby does not get the food too quickly from the bottle or he may refuse to nurse.

A mother sometimes wonders how she is to know whether baby's feeding is adequate or not. Here are some guides which will help her:—

1. Baby's weekly gain in weight.
2. His general behavior whether he is contented, sleeping well, and not showing any signs of being upset.
3. The type of bowel action, whether they are normal or frequent green and curdled.

MOST ENJOYABLE SUPPER

Many people partook of the enjoyable supper, sponsored by the Ladies Guild of Trinity Anglican Church, at the Rectory on Monday evening. The ladies served a very sumptuous repast.

Youngest Soldier in Burma Serving With Chinese Army

The youngest soldier in the Chinese Expeditionary Force in Burma is 13-year old Ma Kuokwang, according to the Chinese News Service.

American soldiers serving in the same force call him Marvin and marvel at his versatility. Standing four feet two and weighing hardly 50 pounds, Marvin can drive both jeeps and mules, and when either mule or jeep balks he can speak to it in English, Mandarin, Burmese, Hindustani, Kachin and Naga. Having lived through his childhood in a foreign land, Marvin learned to speak Mandarin from his Yunnanese parents. All he can write in Chinese is his own name.

Marvin joined the Chinese Army two years ago in Burma when he was only 11, according to the News Service. Fleeing the invading Japanese from Rangoon among an endless stream of refugees, Marvin and his father were separated during the Japanese bombing and strafing of Lashio. For a few days Marvin combed the town, searching the debris and watching every passing refugee in a desperate effort to locate his father.

Then came the Chinese Army and the thousands of refugees trailing behind it. Marvin followed the Army through tortuous jungle trails in northern Burma and over the 6,000-foot Naga Hills into Assam. For six days they had nothing to eat but bananas and tree pulp and found little water to drink. Hundreds of the refugees dragging on behind collapsed in the jungle and died from exhaustion. Marvin was able to stagger on. It was during this retreat that he learned to speak Kachin and Naga. Too young to be a fighting man, he enlisted as an interpreter.

"I joined the Army because I don't want to see the Japs ruin my home again," said the youngster in English with a slight British accent.

Minister Stresses Need For Workers

The urgent need for 10,000 workers required in shell filling and explosive plants was recently stressed in a radio broadcast by Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labour. This labour is needed immediately in Quebec and Ontario plants.

A special appeal for women workers is made in view of the fact that women can be satisfactorily utilized for three-quarters of the required number of jobs.

As National Selective Service officers have pointed out, the operations in shell filling and munition plants are quite simple and light; previous training or special skill for this work is not required.

Any persons who are available for this type of employment for the summer months or longer, or any workers now employed at this time in essential industry, are urged to apply to their nearest employment and selective service office.

NO CHANGES IN SCHOOL STAFF

We understand there will be no changes in either the Public or Continuation School staff for the next school term, all teachers having re-hired at an increase in salary.

With the teaching situation so acute we are most fortunate in having our present teaching staff remain for another year. Many schools may have to close as the results of the shortage in teachers.

21 CANDIDATES AT DUNGANNON

21 candidates are writing their Entrance Examinations at the Dungannon Centre, where J. A. Gray of Blyth, is presiding officer.

The fact that many Entrance pupils now obtain their Entrance Standing on the basis of their year's work, has the effect of greatly reducing the number who must write these Exams.

CEILINGS

THE FIFTH WALL OF EVERY ROOM.

The ceiling, which is usually larger than any single wall, should be considered as a fifth wall. Thus when planning the decoration for a room it is just as important to select a correct ceiling paper as it is to choose the proper wall decoration. Your preference may favour one of contrasting colour. Don't be afraid that a "Colour-Planned" room will exceed your budget. To realize this you can readily do so by seeing my samples over 500 to pick from.

scribe a British "Mosquito". British have used it with great success as a night intruder and a "train-buster". Experts say that with one motor stopped it can go faster than a heavy bomber flying all out.

Apart from its two engines and engines, it contains no metal. It is built of wood bonded together with a plastic. The first stage is made in two halves and stuck together. As they put it, "Any competent carpenter with a saw and chisel can effect a major repair."

Letters from home are sure-fire morale builders for the men and women overseas. For this reason, letter writing should rate as a Number One job for Canadians.
