SCHOLARSHIP "TAG DAY" gton County School Children ise Funds to Train Teachers

The amount necessary each year is $500.

The scholarship plan was started two years ago, and for two years it was financed by direct assessment on the Parent-Teacher Associations throughout the county. This year it was decided to divide the burden by having the school children sell tags, which would not only bring in a part of the money, but would also be a means of acquainting parents throughout the county with the work.

A majority of the schools in the county co-operated heartily, some of them returning more than their quota. In a school where the supply of tags ran out, one resourceful little chaptore his tags in two and doubled his receipts.

tore his tags in two and doubled his receipts.

The sum raised by the sale of tags was $311.54. The balance will be raised by the Parent-Teacher Associations in the county, which will contribute 75c for each teacher in their schools.

Following is a list of the schools which sold tags and the amount for each school. Some of the smaller amounts came from one room schools.

Dr. Brotemarkle Tells Mothers

Dr. Brotemarkle Tells Mothers of Mental Problems of Boys and Girls

In addressing the Burlington County Council of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations at its mid-winter meeting held in Mount Holly last Wednesday, Rev. Robert A. Brotemarkle, psychologist at the U. of P., said:

"A child's brain has ceased to grow at the age of eight. The normal growth depends upon such a multitude of things that we wonder the percentage of deficients is not greater than it is. Food, environment, heredity are some of the factors. Fortunately, the present day methods of mind measurements make it possible for the psychologist to determine the brain development. If a ten-year-old child has the mental power of a seven-year-old it is useless to try to educate along certain lines that poor little mind. However, such a deficient may be trained to a life of usefulness along mechanical lines, thus insuring happiness for the individual, as well as financial independence."

Dr. Brotemarkle illustrated his lecture with concrete examples, giving a better understanding of the moral and social delinquencies of sub-normal mentalities. The sympathies of his hearers were all for the little tenion, and social delinquencies of sub-normal mentalities. The sympathies of his hearers were all for the little tenion and social delinquencies of sub-normal mentalities. The sympathies of his hearers were all for the sympathies of his hea that come to the notice of our efficient helping teachers and attendance officer.

As a mark of appreciation of the splendid work done by Miss Elva Hughes, as county attendance officer, during the time she held that office, the Burlington County Council presented her with a Westinghouse radio set which was installed in her home at Vincentown on Saturday. Miss Hughes had the vision to see what the Traveling Dental Clinic and the Hospital Bed at Mount Holly would mean to the children of Burlington county and set in motion forces which resulted in the realization of her ideals.

She was also one of the early workers for the establishment of the Burlington county traveling library. Action was taken by which it is going to be possible to have published the Burlington County Educational News and at the same time provide means by which the two scholarships at the Trenton Normal School can be supported, and an endowment fund created for its perpetuation.

Miss Caroline B. Leconey, county helping teacher, spoke briefly on the hot lunch and health work carried on in our county.

Miss Alice R. Shreve, county helping teacher, spoke heifly on the on in our county.

Miss Reba A. Troxell, county attendance officer, spoke about her work and the obstacles that must be overcome, and asked for more follow-up work along medical lines.

The Bejtz store, 115. East Broad street, Palmyra, formerly occupied by the Rex Variety Store, will be reopened on March 2 as the Fields' Delicatessen. The place has been entirely remodeled and refinished inside and presents a most attractive appearance. This store will carry a full and complete stock of all the things found in a well-appointed delicatessen.

Three Attempted Robberies

On Tuesday night of last week the home of William Powell, Broad street, was entered by thieves, who gained entrance through a window in the diningroom. Drawers were ransacked, but nothing was taken. It is thought they were scared off by the barking of the dog before they had time to find anything of value. Footprints in the snow led to a window in the Thomas Carroll home next door to the Powell's, but they were apparently scared away from there before they gained entrance. They also tried to get into Quinn's store, but as they opened the window the burglar alarm went off and they took flight. Wednesday afternoon two strange then were noticed in the neighborhood of Elmer Wallace's, Hylton road, and Officer Beck was notified, but when he got on the scene the strangers had disappeared.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Widow and Her

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Jesus the Fearless Teacher.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Jesus Answering His Opposers.

The popularity of Jesus after the triumphal entry greatly troubled the rulers of Israel. He met their wicked challenge as to his authority in such a skillful way as to place them under condemnation for their unbelief. This condition was accentuated by the parable of the householder.

1. The Question of Paying Tribute (20:19-26).

1. Spies Sent to Entrap Jesus (v. 20). The rulers were too cowardly to do this themselves, so they employed underlings to do their mean work while they hid away. This diabolical method is employed today in political and religious life. Many times questions are raised under the guise of sincerity, when the real purpose is to do mischief.

2. Wicked Flattery (v. 21). They sincerity, when the real purpose is to do mischief.

2. Wicked Flattery (v. 21). They complimented His truthful teaching, His impartiality and courage. They certified to His faithfulness even to that extent that He would face Caesar himself. This compliment was true, though insincerely given. Back of this flattery was the base purpose to destroy Jesus. Many today praise to the face in order to stab in the back.

3. The Cunning Question (vv. 22-28). "Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Caesar or not?" At this time the Jews were galling under the yoke of the Roman government. To have answered this question either by "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. To have answered "yes," would have conveyed the impression of endorsing all that the Roman government did. To have answered, "no," would have at once brought him into conflict with the government. It is not always an easy matter for a Christian to determine his right relation to civil government.

Christ's repuly to this question prop-

Christian to determine his right re-lation to civil government.

Christ's reply to this question prop-erly understood and applied is the final word on the subject. Until the civil authorities demand that which is a violation of God's law we are bound to render unto them obedience. Render unto Caesar the things due within the realm of the rights of gov-ernment.

within the realm of the rights of government.

But while Christ's answer sets forth their duties to civil authorities, He used the occasion to impress upon them the duties due to God. Render unto God the things that are God's. Man bears the image of God. Therefore he should honor and serve Him. Since he enjoy's God's protection and care, it is his duty to own allegiance to Him, yield his life to Him in service, worship and praise. Everyone who enjoys the benefits of civil government is obliged to pay the taxes which are necessary for the support of that government, and everyone who receives God's favor is placed under a like obligation unto Him.

11. Jesus' Estimate of Gifts (21:1-4).

DEATHS

Maria Albertson, widow of the late Elmer Albertson, passed away at the residence of her son, William H. Albertson, 413 Linden avenue, Riverton, on Saturday, in her seventy-ninth year. A stroke of apoplexy, which she suffered on February 12th, was the cause of her death. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the late residence, Rev. E. A. Robinson officiating. Interment was made in the M. P. cemetery, Glassboro. The deceased is survived by one son, William H. Albertson, with whom she has made her home for the past nine years.

"Yery good," said Lady Erythea with atisfaction, "I engage you. I must varn you," she added with sudden cauthat you would not allow me to recompense you, but I have no doubt that I have acquired an excellent chautfeur. And now—you will be gled of a bath and a meal."

She rang for the butler, and gave him an order. Mr. Tarbeaux and Billy departed in each other's company.

Alexander Lambe breathed heavily. "My dear aunt," he said, "you are a law unto yourself, and I have known you do some remarkable things. But is it wise to engage as servant a man of whom you know nothing, without character or references?"

"Alexander,," said his aunt, "you almost betray imbecility. What better references could I have than the restoration of the Lambe emeralds and the refusal of a reward, when the man could have made a fortune for himself without any risk of detection?"

Mr. Lambe was dumb.

"That abominable creature Boxail," said Lady Erythea, "had unexceptionable references, and was chauffeur eighteen months to the bishop of Latchesfer. You know what his record was here." She turned upon Alexander. "Do you, a shepherd of men, pretend to say that you think that "I observed him, and I am certain he is homest," said Adexander after a pause. "But—er—his manner is very peculiar."

"We must make allowances," pro-claimed Lady Erythea, "for the inde-pendence of the American. In theory I have always believed it detestable. Actually I find it not unattractive."

CHAPTER XIV

The New Parlor Maid.

Aimee, sitting in the morning su light near the mouth of her burror heard a rustling among the bush and at once dived back into shelfs and at once dived back into shelter. Presently there was a soft whistle, which she answered. Mr. William Spencer parted the brambles very quietly and entered the cave. "Billy!"

He clicked his heels together and touched his cap.
"Anything I can do for you, miss?" he said grinning. "Got a new job. Chauffeur to her ladyship. Four a week and all found."
"What!"
Billy sat down beside her and made his report. Almee heard it, at first,

"What!"

Billy sat down beside her and made his report. Almee heard it, at first, with the air of Deademona listening to Othello. Then she rolled on the sand in helpless spasms of laughter.

"How absolutely gorgeous," she panted, sitting up and wiping her eyes. "You've done splendidly. I wish I'd been there to hear you bluff the fat policeman. But—what's the good of the chaufteur's job, Billy? That will hamper you."

"Not a bit! It's great. I just jumped at it. You see, I've got a sure berth now, right close here, where I want to be. I'm your aunt's man. And she's some old girl, too—she isn't taking anything from anyone. You should have heard her banding it to the policeman. I'm solid—so far. And." added Billy, gleefully, "I've two automobiles in my charge. Not bad ones either. We can't use the Sphinx. 'but, if we want to slift you quick an' vely, you've the call on those two "re,"

'I never thought of that! You're

And here's your blue dust-cloak from Ivy cottage. Put that on. It'll cover the tear in your dress, in case anyone came across you. I'll try an' raise a new skirt for you. An' now I've got to slide out and get to work."

He rose quickly, and was gone be-fore she could say a word. Aimee went to the cave's mouth and watched

"I wonder what he'll do," she said to herself. She reflected on the situation. The difficulty concerning Aniy Snooks, the new parlor maid, was uppermost in her mind.

A flash came into Aimee's eyes; it announced the birth of a brilliant idea. She hughed impishly, and then sighed.

"Can't be made and the sighed.

"Can't be worked, I'm afraid," she surmured. "Too far away, and

"Oh, great heavens, what an idiot
I am! Dad! I quite forgot—!"

The stress of the past ten hours had utterly driven from her mind one vital fact that now came back poignantly. Lord Scroope was coming to Jervaulx at 5 p. m. Georgian had said so. The burgiary, intervening, swamped all memory of it. But, after all, Lord Scroope's arrival would be worse than the burklary.

"It absolutely tears everything!" said Aimee desperately. "What am I to do? If only I'd told Billy! But even he wouldn't be able to do anything here."

She naced the floor of the cavethe bottom had dropped out of the entire scheme of things. Then her face lit up with a gleam of hope, and she stopped short, thinking swittly.

"There might be time. It's frightfully risky. But if I don't try it I'm done for."

She buttoned up the dust-cloak with nimble fingers.

"As well be hung for a sheep as a lamb," said Aimee.

She left the cave, ran up to the crest of the crappit, and looked round cautiously. Then she picked up the skirts of the dust-cloak and scudded across the common like a hare.

The Panhard was so through the lanes, with Mr. William Spencer at the steering-wheel, clad in a dark green uniform overcost with brass buttons. The time was 5:15 p. m.

The Panhard was running badly. In spite of Billy's overhaul, two of the cylinders missired; presently the car stopped with a cough and apluiter. Billy, using blood-curdling language anent the profligate hir. Boxall, late chauffeur of Jervaulx abbey, got down and opened the bonnet. It took him several minutes to start the Panhard again, and when finally he arrived at Stanhoe railway station, the train from Burnt Ash was alongside the platform.

plata clothes was founding in the sta-tion approach. He did not waste a second glance on Billy; the driver of the Jervaulx abbey car had no inter-est for him. Billy, anxious to pick up his passenger, the disastrous parior maid, hurried onto the platform. He sighted his quarry at once, A young woman in a cheap black tight-fitting coat was standing by the lug-gage-van. Baggage checks are un-known in England. At the trunk was hurled out of the van by a blind, in-visible force, and Billy, approaching the passenger, raised his peaked cap politely.

"Are you for Jervaulx abbey?" h

The young woman turned round,
"I'm the new parlor maid," she said primly in broad Eastshire dialect.
"You might carry my box for me, it that ain't too heavy."

Billy's head swam. His fingers opened, and feebly closed again. His opes bulged.

It was Almee. Aimee in a black coat over a print dress, and sensible boots. Her bronze hair was drawn straight back and plaited into a respectable knob, her eyes were preternaturally solemn.

They passed out. Billy took his place at the wheel, Almee seated herself beside him.

"I'll sit here," she said serenely,
"and you can tell me about the place as we go. What's it like? They say her ladyship is something chronic."

Billy ganced at her dazedly, and let in the clutch. The transit of Stanhoe was made at something ower the speed limit. When clear of the town, Billy gave the coughing Panhard a full throttle and roared along the Jervaulx road. He did not look at Aimee, who was staring straight in front of her.
Billy switched the car down a narrow lane, covered by overarching trees, and stopped the engine. He turned to face Aimee.

"Partner," he said, "what in thunder does this mean?"

Almee looked at him, and dissolved into spasms of laughter.

"What 'do you think of it, Billy?"
she said, "Aren't I the complete Amy Snooks?"

"It don't go!" said Billy, almost fiercely. "Let me in on this. What have you been doing?"

"When you left me this moraing, I remembered something positively awful. Dad was coming here this afternoon—at five o'clock."

Billy whistled with dismay,

"The police business had driven it right out of my head. And I couldn't consult you. I thought the only thing was to get to Scroope Towers and try to put it right. I knew there was a train about ten at Stanhoe, and I started for the station. But I never got there."

"Thank the powers you didn't!" said Billy fervently. "All the stations are watched. You'd never have passed through alone without getting pulled by the copp."

"Well, the train wasn't necessary.

A car overtook me on the roaddriven by a fast car, and he was rather new to driving. What's the matter with you?"

There was an expression on Billy's face that she had not seen there before. He was looking sour.
"Get on with the song and dance," he said shortly.

"Well, I was dropped near Scroope, and I got across to the Towers; creeping about like a Red Indian, so nobody saw me. I had a look in through the morning room window and saw Dad reading his letters. I had a mind to go in and kiss him, but, of course, that wouldn't do. He was looking pleased—I think he was reidling Aunt Erythea's letter approving of me. Of course he hadn't heard about the burglary. There's no telephone at Scroope—Dad won't have one.

"Then I stalked the garage, where old Grundle, our shover, had got the head off one of the cylinders, and I heard him grumbling to the gardener about having to drive Dad to Jervaulx and back the same evening. I hid in the laurels, till Grundle went to bis dinner, and then I attended to the car—especially the magneto. I did it artistically. You can take it from me the old bus will never leave Scroope today. Dad's visit is a washout. He's no time to get here except by car—I know he has to catch the ten o'clock mail train from Seabridge, He'll have to take the carriage there—and start early, too."

Billy emitted a stifled noise.

"It's all to save Dad pain and worry," said Almee complacently.

Hilly emitted a stifled noise.

"It's all to save Dad pain and worry," said Almee complacently.

"One must consider one's parents.
Never do to have him coming here just how."

"Great Christopher!" said Billy.

Never do to have him coming here just how."

"Great Christopher!" said Billy.
"But that doesn't explain how—"

"Tm coming to that. I made a circuit through the Home wood to the cottage where Amy Snooks lives with her old grandmother. I tacked up and down in the offing till I saw grandmamm toddle away on her usual after-dinner visit to the woodcutter's wife, and I nipped indoors to have it out with my dear old Snooks. I found her packing for Jervaux, and I told her what I wanted her to do.

"Amy Snooks is what you call stold, and I've broken her in very well—but I'm bound to say she was absolutely paralyzed this time. But she surrendered, before I'd done with her. She just came to heel. It may surprise you, Billy, but she simply adores my. Amy never refused me anything in her life.

"Having melted her into flexible condition, I borrowed one of her print dresses (she hadn't another black one) and her second-best coat, and did my hair like hers. I'm jolly good at doing hair.

"To cut it short, I cleared out and tramped across country to Pilbrook station and took the afternoon train. Amy joined it with her is of in boxes at Burnt Ash, and I got into her carriage at the next stop. I gave her all the money I had, and made her go on to Seabridge with one of the boxes. She'll get herself lodgings there and have a good time till further orders—she can last a week, anyhow. I took the other box and came on here. And now, partner—what about it? Wasn't it a brain-wave?"

Billy took off his cap and made disorder of his honey-colored hair.

"You mean to tell me," he said dizzily, "that girl fell for it—just because you told her to?"

"Ah, you don't understand the feudal spirit," said Aimee complacently. "There have been Snooks in the Home wood ever since there were Scroopes in Scroope Towers. They help each other. When Amy and I were kids and went birds-nesting, sha was always underneath when I fell out of the tree. She has irregular features, but a heart of gold. And, by the way, of course Aunt Erythea has never seen Amy—she engaged her on Dad's recommendation."

"But she's seen you!" exclaimed Billy, "when you crashed the Sphinx into her carriage."

"Only for half a second. She's blind as a bilt. She'll never know me. Isn't it great, Billy?"

He put on his cap with a bang.

"There's nothing else for it now. The boats are burned. Away for Jervaulx!"
He leaned over and opened the reardsor of the car. "Jump down, partaer, and get in behind."
"I sha'n't! What for?"
"Get down, I te!" you," said Billy, steraly. "I've been warned about this. If Fm seen talking to parlor maids I get fired. In with you!"
Alinee obeyed like a lamb. "This has got my nerve," groaned Billy, as he let in the clutch. "Here's

"This has got my nerve," groaned Billy, as he let in the clutch. "Here's where we get ours."

He drove at a furious pace till, turning into the park he approached the abbey and drew up at the side entrance. The door stood open, and Mr. Tarbeaux, seeing the car, came out as Amy descended.

"Miss Snooks?" he asked patronisingly.

Lady Erythea laid aside her knitting, and picking up a lorgnette, inspected the new parlor maid with icy deliberation. Aimee, though presenting an unmoved front, trembled inwardly. There was a faint chance that her aunt might recognise the female cyclist. Lady Brythea's lips tightened to a thin line.

"I was given to understand," she said in the voice of counsel for the prosecution, "that you were considerably less prepossessing in appearance than I find you."

"Yes, m' lady," said Aimee meekly.

"H'm!" said Lady Brythea.

The lorgnette continued to direct itself at the parlormaid's face.

"Really, Anthony should wear stronger glasses," muttered Lady Brythea. The neatness of the girl, however, her demure sir, and the hideons manner in which her hair was dressed, diluted her ladyship's disapproval a little.

"I need not examine you as to your capacity for your duties, or your character. These have been vouched for by Lord Scroope, My housekeeper will instruct you in the rules of the establishment, which all my domestics are leave for Closeminster tonight.

"Car broken down, Regret impossible arrive Jervaulx. No time. Must leave for Closeminster tonight.

"ANTHONY."

"There is no answer," she said to the butler. "Lord Scroope is prevented from coming, Cancel the orders I gave you regarding his arrival."

"Yery good, my lady."

Almee's heart leaped with joy. But her face remained unmoved. She continued to look demurely at the carpet. "I was about to warn you," said Lady Erythea, "that your predecessor was discharged at a moment's notice for allowing one of my menseryants to make advances to her of an amatory nature."

"I don't understand, my lady," said Almee taintly.

"She permitted," said Lady Erythea grimly, "my chauffeur to kiss her."

The startled look of horror and disgust which Almee's features respectfully expressed, carried conviction even to Lady Erythea's mind.

"It is an impleasant subject," said her ladyship, "which I should have wished to spare myself mentioning to gou. It was necessary, however, to clear the ground. I hope to hear good reports of you. You may go to the servants' hall."

looked at him timidly. Mr. Tarbeaux, with an air of mingled satisfaction and apprehension, conducted her to the women-servants' hall. The housekeeper was absent.

At Jervauix the male and famale servants were segregated in separate apartments for meals. Mr. Tarbeaux took his charge to a room next the vast kitchens, where a meat tea was in progress, presided over by a cook of vast adiposity. The pageboy was the only male in the room. Mr. Tarbeaux presented the newcomer in form.

"Ladies," he said gravely, "Miss any Snooks. Late of Scroope Towers," And took his leave.

Mackay Bill Vetced

Governor Bilser after vetcing the Mackay bill providing for a legislature-appointed elections bureau, for warded a message to the senate declaring the measure "was purely political," vicious, useless, unnecessarily burdensome and perhaps unconstitutional. The message in part follows:

"I can find no valid reason for approving senate (Mackay) bill No. 87.

No matter from what angle it is approached, its viciousness becomes apparent. Its purpose is to transfer from the hands of the prosecutors in first-class counties to superintendents of elections, the powers which have been exercised by the prosecutors under chapter 110 of the laws of 1918.

"Since the enactment of the law of 1918, Hudson county has been put to an expense of $129,807.79. The first year the expense was $16,448,74 and in 1923, $105,386.18. In Bases county the expense has been $42,797.25. A total of nearly $440,000 has thus been spent in five years under an act which foisted an army of office holders upon the tax-payers of these counties, without any expressed desire by either the voters in the officials of either county for any such bureau.

"So far as J have been administration of law been bettered in any way. On the contrary, this mandatory legislation has imposed numerous useless office holders upon the people, and burdened them with more taxes."

Hearing on Busses

uscless office holders upon the people, and burdened them with more taxes."

Hearing on Busees

The briefest hearing during the 1928 session of the Legislature was conducted in the Assembly on the bill introduced by Assemblyman Barkman of Morris, by request, allowing traction companies to operate auto busses. It required just about five minutes to complete the hearing before the House Railroad and Canals Committee. Elmer W. King of Morristown, counsel for the Morris County Traction Corporation, put up a vigorous little talk in favor of the measure. He declared that it would enable the trolley company to use busses in reaching parts of Morris county not touched by the company, owin to the great expense of erecting poles, wires, etc., and laying tracks.

James D. Carton of Asbury Park, representing the Atlantic Coast Railway Company, also spoke in support of the measure, stating that his company could operate busses into remote sections that were not touched by the trolleys.

The Public Service Corporation paid no ostensible attention to the hearing. It is quite likely that the measure will be reported out favorabl and without amendment by the committee.

The Bank at once investigated thoroughly the stock of this company and when the customer called a few days later and read the report which the Bank compiled from information received from very reliable sources, he very promptly informed the cashler—"Well, that stock certainly is everything but a desirable and safe investment and you can bet your last dollar those fellows—referring to the stock salesmen—will get none of my money."

Perhaps you also may be favored with a call from these same stock salesmen; if so, for your own sake, for your family's sake and for the community's sake, we urge you to follow the example set by the gentleman above and go to your Banking Institution and have the stock investigated before turning over your savings and Liberty Bonds to these stock salesmen.

Artisan's Big Night
The regular monthly meeting of the Artisans Order of Mutual Protection was held in Society hall on Tuesday

Artisans Order of Mutual Protection was held in Society hall on Tuesday evening.

It was designated "Every Member" night and there were close to 200 present. The meeting was an inspiration to all who attended.

Past Master Artisan Walter L. Schmidi, who is new master artisan of Pittsburgh Assembly, No. 53, was present and was much enthused over the growth of Palmyra Assembly.

Eleven new members were initiated. A joint meeting of Jersey assemblies of the Artisans will be held at the Y. M. C. A., Camden, on Friday, March 9th, at which the Most Excellent Master Artisan Charles H. Grakelow will be present, accompanied by theatrical stars from New York City. A bang-up entertainment is promised. A large class will be initiated and our own Master Artisan Harry L. Nichols will occupy the inspector's chair. A large delegation from Palmyra will attend, leaving Palmyra station at 7.30 sharp, by automobile. Members are urged to meet promptly at the hour mentioned. This will be a night well worth while. "This is the year."

ure area, where it rises, is condensed by the cold upper air and produces rain.

Cold waves are produced by cold air being drawn into the United States from northern Canada, while warm spells are produced by the air being drawn in from the Gulf of Mexico and other southern areas.

Abnormally warm seasons are produced by the so-called "Atlantic High" staying an unusual length of time on one side of the ocean, so that the warm currents from the Gulf rush in, and abnormally cold seasons are caused by this high pressure area staying on the other side, so that the Gulf currents are deflected and cold air pulled down from Canada instead.

Mr. Bliss said the theory that "the winters aren't what they used to be" is all wrong, but that accurate records for more than a hundred years failed to show any change in the average temperature. Of the three really severe winters in the last hundred years one of the worst was the recent one of 1917-1918, the other two being 1855 and 1875, while the longest period of mild weather ever recorded occurred for ten successive winters prior to 1850.

Mr. Bliss concluded his illustrations with a number of interesting slides on the curious work of tornadoes and a series of beautiful camera pictures he had taken all over the country.

The storm area may contract a bit in a few hours and leave this district rainless when Mr. Bliss predicted showers, or again it may where he predicted clear weather. The mistake may affect only a few miles of country, but the Weather Bureau isn't designed to keep heincheckers from getting drenched by a small thunderstorm on a summer whether they hold a lawn fete without interference from Jupiter Pluvins. It was originally organized more than 50 years ago as a part of the Army signal corps to protect hipping along throast and in the Great Lakes. And it performs the task with greatest efficiency. It used to be that scores of ships and hundreds of lives were frequently lost in West Indian hurricanes. In recent years the lost, has and such disasters as do occur are often the result of mariners refusing to heed the warnings.

the fead supparts and water formed juring the discharge are converted ack into lead peroxide and sulphuric cid. The formation of sulphuric cid during the charging process auses the density of the electrolyte o increase. The density of the elec-rolyte of a fully charged battery is setween 1.275 and 1.200, while the pen circuit voltage per cell is about 12.25 and 1.200 and 1.

Of course, a storage battery is not 100 per cent efficient, which means that the total ampere hours delivered to the battery during the charging period will always exceed the total ampere hours drawn from the battery during the discharge period. The voltage per cell and the specific gravity of the electrolyte are the criterion of the degrees of charge in the battery. However, due to the fact that some of the lead sulphate is not readily converted into, lead peroxide and sulphuric acid, it is necessary at times to give the battery an over-charge. That is, the charging current should be allowed to flow after the battery has reached the charged condition, until after several hours of constant charging, there is no increase in the voltage per cell or the density of the electrolyte.

The value of the charging current is determined by the manufacturers and should not be exceeded. An excessively high charging current will cause an increase in the rate of deterioration of the plates. Every time a battery is charged or discharged a certain amount of active material on the plates crumbles and drops to the bottom of the cell.

Assuming the same operating conditions, the life of a storage battery is bottom of the cell.

Assuming the same operating conditions, the life of a storage battery is a certain number of charges and discharges. An excessive rate of charge or discharge will cause the battery to heat, buckle the plates, and result in an abnormal amount of crumbling of the active material. In the extreme case of a short circuit, the plates of the battery might be buckled to such an extent that an internal short circuit is formed in the battery. To guard against short circuits it is well when using a lead plate storage battery to install a fuse in both battery lends right near the terminals of the battery. Don't under any condition spark the battery by placing a pair of pliers or a screw driver across the terminals. This will eventually ruin the battery.

The water will evaporate out of the latterite of a battery and should be

The water will evaporate out of the electrolyte of a battery and should be replaced. Always add enough dis tilled water to keep the electrolyte a least a quarter of an inch above the The voltage of a battery is also an indication of the degree of charge. JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

-How to Stand the Hardest Test.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

-Submission to the Pather's Will.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 80). He want from the upper room under cover of night to the garden of Gethsemana. Gethseman means oil press. It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. There is a striking significance in Jesus' coming to this place. Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this garden has yielded the largest blessings in the world. It has provided food for men's souls and light for their lives.

11. Mis Companione (vv. 39, 40).

and light for their lives.

11. His Companions (vv. 39, 40). Peter, James and John, who had been with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with Him into the deep shadows of the garden. He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be His sympathising companions. This was needed to prepare them as His witnesses. Then, toe, as a human being He craved sympathy.

pare town as his with a party.

Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. He Withdrew From the Disciples (v. 41). Even these disciples of the "inner circle" could not go with him. He tore himself away from them for He must be alone in this darkest hour. He kneeled down and prayed.

2. What He Said (vv. 42-44). "It thou be willing remove this cup from ma." The cup did not mean the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were very great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus stop short of His redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of His coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). It was rather the revelstion to Him by the cross which loomed before Him, of His identification with sin in becoming the world's. Redeemer. By virtue of the holiness and perfection of His nature, He could do nothing else than shrink from it. He saw is this bearing of the sins of the world the turning away of His Father's face. Knowing what was before Him, He cofine to Gethsemane for this hour, and in it He consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. Though the cup was bitter he bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was this agony that His sweat was as it were great drops of bleed falling down to the ground. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him.

School Board Discussor Better School Spirit and Improved Attendance

Improved Attendance

The meeting of the Riverton Board of Education Monday night was given over largely to a discussion of the report of Miss Chew, the supervising principal, and consideration of plans for further improving the school system. One of the problems confronting the Board is the lack of attention and effort on the part of some of the pupils in the Riverton school. Another is the same indifference on the part of several of the pupils attending Palmyra High School, to which is added very irregular attendance. The case of one boy, who has been out of the Palmyra school a great deal was turned over to the high school committee for investigation and action.

The property committee reported the purchase and installation of the new safe-cabinet in which school records are to be kept.

Miss Chew reported that preparations were being made to give a cantata on April 3, under the direction of Miss Lucas.

The following bills were ordered paid:

A citizens' movement to designate candidates for Borough Council and Mayor of Palmyra, which was started last week, has reached the point where mass meetings of voters from various sections of the Borough have been called for the purpose of making nominations.

where mass meetings of votes how been called for the purpose of making nominations.

The movement carries out the idea that the people themselves should choose and endorse candidates meeting popular approval instead of having various individuals start booms for themselves.

The promise made to the people last fall, before the Borough was voted upon at the general election, to the effect that the councilmen should be chosen from different parts of the town, is to be carried out.

The town has been divided into four sections. The first, No. 1, takes in the section north of the railroad from the middle of Cinnaminson avenue west to Pensauken creek. No. 2 is south of the railroad, comprising both sides of Parry and Cinnaminson avenues west to the creek. No. 3 is north of the railroad from the middle line of Cinnaminson avenue cast to the Riverton Borough line, and No. 4, south of the railroad, takes in both sides of Garfield avenue east to the Riverton line.

To the voters of the first district, as mapped out, a card is being sent calling a mass meeting in the High School auditorium for this Saturday evening, March 10th. The card is signed by A. S. King, Charles K. Mervine, William H. Cook, Frank Bua, M. J. Quinn and James T. Weart. No. 4 is also to meet this Saturday evening, the place being Society Hall. These cards are signed by Samuel Scteen, Ralph Rivers, Samuel Scott, Frank A. Mathews, Jr., and J. H. CLOVER DANCE ful Season Forecast at Feb-ruary Event

The Clover Dance Club held its February dance in P. O. S. of A. hall Wednesday evening, February 21st, and an exceptionally large percentage of the members of the Club was pres-of the memoris of the content.

Marked enthusiasm prevailed through the evening's programme, and a very successful season is anticipated. The renditions by Vogt's Imperial Novelty Orchestra were of the highest order, including the latest popular dance hits of the season, and the well-merited applause was welcomed with generous encores.

During the intermission ice cream and crackers were served as refreshments with the compliments of the club.

The executive committee of the club met on Wednesday evening of this week, and were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vile, 817 Cinnaminson avenue. The committee is composed of William H. Vogt, president; DeWitt Morris, secretary; Daniel M. Clifton, treasurer; George Winn, Howard W. Alloway, Elmer L. Jones, Howard Vile, and Joseph H. Tees. The wives of the members of the executive committee are the patronesses of the club.

At this recent meeting of the executive committee the plans were consumated for the March dance to be held Wednesday evening, March 21st.

Patrol System Successful

Patrol System Successful

The patrol system organized by the school authorities -to protect the smaller children crossing the railroad and Broad street on their way to school is giving splendid results.

The boys in the patrol are taking their duties very seriously and are performing their tasks with great efficiency. Chief of Police Beck and Officers -Wallace and Rodgers are backing up the boys with the full authority of the police department.

Some protests are still being made against sending the smaller children across the railroad. The school authorities recall when plans for the new High School building were first discussed, it was made plain that in order to give the grammar grades full benefit of the new equipment it would be necessary to concentrate the primary grades at the Spring Garden street school. The School Board feels that protest should have been made at that time instead of now, after the building has been constructed and all arrangements for the new system put in effect.

In event of the School Board receiving petitions against the present system, the protests will of course receive full and sympathetic consideration, but it will also be necessary to take up the situation with the partons of the grammar school curriculum, should it become necessary to take some of the grammar school curriculum, should it become necessary to take some of the grammar school curriculum, should it become necessary to take some of the grammar grades.

School Board Appreciates Resolution of Commendation

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education of the Borough of Riverton, held March 5, 1923, the following minute was adopted and ordered published in The New Era:

The attention of the Board has been called to a resolution passed at the annual school meeting, held February 13, 1923, reading as follows:

"Resolved: That the townspeople here assembled take this means of attesting to their appreciation of the excellent work of this School Board, and congratulate them on the efficient teaching staff, the clean and comfortable condition of the building, and the good showing of the students. We feel that they will be grateful for this expression of opinion, and hope their fine record may be maintained during the coming year."

Dreams do come true—that is dreams backed by a will to do and an unswerving purpose—that is why this dream has come true. Our State convalescent homes that have been planned for so long are near enough a reality, that a big rally is to be held at the Haddonfield Post, Sunday, March 11. Representatives from all posts and their auxiliaries of Burlington, Camden, Gloucester and Salem counties will be present. "Who is this?" he said sharply, stepping towards her. There was menace in his voice. "Who are you?"

Aimee, preparing to meet her destiny, turned composedly and faced him. She dropped him a small curtsey. "Please sir, the parlor maid," she said.

Almee, thoroughly roused, flourished the feather brush in his face. Mr. Lambe started back, a little pale. He placed his thumb on the bell-push.

"Almee," he said sharply, "go outgo out quickly! I will deal with her,"

"What are you going to do?" gasped Georgina. Instead of obeying him she came forward, trembling.

"Go out! I am going to give this woman in charge!"

"In pity's name, don't do that!" Georgina gulped, and struggled for breath. "She—she is your kik-kik-Cousin Almee!"

almost of gratitude: She had not ex-pected Alexander to do anything so sensible.

"I'll make it clear if I can," she said, and, looking Alexander in the face with an angelically simple expression, she told him the tale from the beginning, briefly, yet comprehensively. As she was speaking, Aimee watched Mr. Lambe's face. The waves of emotion that passed over his usually serene features made them interesting, suggesting some delicate instrument subjected to shocks for which it had never been designed. At the end he was gasping faintly, like a stranded but still dignified fish.

"And so," concluded Aimee, "you see it's a piece of my skirt the police have got. And it was I who tripped you up the stairs. I'm sorry—Cousin."

Mr. Lambe passed a somewhat un-

Mr. Lambe passed a somewhat un-steady hand across his forehead. He looked at Almee, and then turned slowly to Georgina. "Miss Berners—" he said.

Georgina's answer was a sob. Immediately Aimee stepped across, raised her from her chair and, with an arm round her waist, faced Alexander,

"Stop! Not a word from you to Georgina!" she said defiantly. "There's no one to blame but me. Everything she's done, I made her do. She want-ed me to own up. All this, she's done to try and save me. Georgie's the best thing that ever happened."

Alexander looked at Almee.

"My dear child," he said gently, "I have only one wish and that is to help you."

Almee's lips parted; she stared at him incredulously. She saw the most human sympathy in the clean-shaven, priestly face; the kindliest light in his

"No," said Aimee decisively, "it is impossible."
Alexander's eyes became keener. He looked a little contemptuous.
"Are you afraid?" he said, "Do you not see that you must face the consequences of this foolish thing you have done? Once the truth is told, you have nothing to fear from the police."
"The police!" said Aimee scornfully. "Tm not afraid of the police. Tm not much afraid of Aunt Erythea. It isn't that at all. It's—the other thing."
"What other thing?"

"What other thing?"
Aimee looked at him with growing

"Oh!" she said at last, desperately, "have I got to put it in so many words? My staying at Ivy cottage! Didn't you understand what I told you? I was there—two nights."

Mr. Lambe, to her surprise, did not look forbidding or censorious. Instead, he looked a little puzzled. And in that moment Almee conceived a liking for Alexander.

"Now that I have seen you, and heard your story," he said, "I attach no importance to that incident, whatever."

"Ah," said Almee sadly, "but other people will, you see."

"Ah," said Aimee sadly, "but other people will, you see."

Alexander suddenly flushed crimson, and he avoided Aimee's eye. But his face grew peculiarly grim.

"I have only this to say. That man—that Spencer—who dared to expose you to such a situation, is the culprit I wish to see. He deserves—"Aimee's heel smote the floor.

"Not a word against Billy! It's he who saved me, right from the beginning. He begged me to let him own up. But he has kept my secret, at his own risk, because I wanted it kept. He is a gentleman!"

Alexander winced. At that moment, out of the tail of her eye, Aimee caught sight of a tall figure in overalls crossing the gravel-walk beyond the lawn.

Mr. William Spencer looked towards

The two men turned and faced each other.

"They Must Be Told." Mr. Lambe's serious eyes had be-ome hard and penetrating as a pair of crystal lenses. They gave the im-pression of piercing the exterior of the man before him, and reading his mind. Alexander looked, at that moment, rather like an inquisitor of Torque-mada's court.

"You are Mr. William Spencer?"
said Alexander Icily.

said Alexander icily.

"That's so. You don't know me? I guessed you wouldn't. But I remember you very well, though I never connected your name till now," said Billy calmly. "You were chaplain to the Tenth Rutlands, in 1918. Came from China to join 'em, I heard."

Mr. Lambe was silent.

Mr. Lambe was silent.

"I was a sub in the Ninety-seventh of the line, lying next the British Seventieth division at Arras," added Billy. "I remember you because you brought in six wounded who got left, after the raid on the pillboxes. Two of them were ours. You got the military brass,"

Almee stared at Alexander in blank amazement.

"That will do," interrupted Mr. Lambe impatiently. "We are not dealing with the war. Do you realize," he said in his grimmest tone, "the postition in which you have placed this lady?"

Billy looked straight at him.

"You are Miss Scroope's cousin," he' said quietly, "and a parson. I guess i'll take lying down, from you, anything you choose to say or do. Of course I realize it, and it's why I'm bere. I've been a fool. I didn't seem to know. But I ought to have known." He sighed.

He took Billy by the arm, led him to the window, and turned him so that the sun shone full on his face. Mr. Lambe looked at Billy for some moments in silence, with a peculiar intentesss.

Lambe looked at Billy for some moments in silence, with a peculiar inteniness.

"Mr. Spencer," said Alexander, releasing him, "I will see you presently. I shall have something to say to you. For the moment, leave me with my cousts. And—go quickly!"

Billy nedded. He turned to Aimee with a smile.

"Don't you worry," he said quietly, "the padre's white."

Billy disappeared with extreme suddenness through the window. Alexander came slowly up to Aimee.

"That young man," he said, "has the heart of a child. It is a good thing to have. And rare, at his age. That does not alter the fact that your situation is dangerous, and even terrible. My decision is final," he said earnestly, "There is but one thing to do. The plain, honest course. Aunt Erythea must be told immediately. Then you will be safe."

"And I repeat it's impossible," returned Aimee quickly, "Can't you see? You understands. But there is one who will never understand. My father. He doesn't belong to our time. He'll consider only one thing—that his daughter has been disgraced before all the county. Her name a by-word among the rabble. That's how he'll take it. It will simply be Dad's finish."

Aimee smiffed miserably.
"I never thought about it. But Georgie told me what it would mean to my father. And she's right. You don't know Dad."

Alexander had turned rather white. He walked to the door and back, in some agitation.

"It is some years since I have seen your father. But I knew him very well. And I believe you are right. This would be a heavy blow to him. But—it has got to be faced."

"And I will not let Dad face it!" said Aimee hotly. "I don't care, for myself. But I'm not going to have him made miserable—for all the parsons in the country!"

"You have no choice. You do not suppose for a moment this thing can be concelled and overceme!"

Aimee turned to him with supreme confidence.

"Of course I do. Billy will see it.

Almee turned to him with supreme condence.

"Of course I do. Billy will see it through!" she said triumphantly.

Alexander gasped.

"I cannot countenance deceit. The whole thing is known to me—my position is impossible," he said. "I should be abetting a lie."

"There's no need for you to do anything at all. Nobody wanted you to butt in, Alexander. The secret is mine, not yours. Go to Aunt Erythea if you must!" said Almee bitterly.

"Oh, I'm not complaining—I can see that you must. Only you'll do it without my sanction. Go to her, and tell her all you know about me."

Alexander groaned. For awhile he was silent. The perspiration stood out on his forchead. The anguish in his face was so plain that even Almee felt compunction.

his face was so plain that even Almee felt compunction.

Alexander sighed aloud.

"I shall keep silence," he said. "It is impossible for me to betray a woman's secret without her consent—or to utter one word that may affect her reputation. But what will come of it—"

it—"
"Ah!" said Aimee eagerly, "you need know nothing at all. Whatever happens, I'll keep you out of it."
"On the contrary! I implore you, whatever difficulty arises, to come to me. I—I will do all I can." He gulped.

"I want to help you, Almee."
Almee selzed his hands in hers.
"Alexander," she cried breathlessly,
"I am sorry I knocked you down!"
The next moment she had fied through the window.

The next moment she had fied through the window.

Half an hour later Aimee, a somewhat furtive figure, was dodging to and fro on the path near the little arbor in the rose garden, keeping an affixious eye on all the approaches from the house. She was still feeling a little confused.

"Who would ever have dreamed he was such a good sort as that!" she said to herself. "It's a delirious sort of mess I've got them both into, I hope he won't jump on poor Georgie. Why on earth doesn't she hurry up? There she is—ch bether!—Alexander urain!"

Almee retreated out of sight into the arbor.

Georgina came slowly along the path, her countenance pale and down-cast, like a recalcitrant novice who fears the Lady Superior. Mr. Alexander Lambe, looming through the forest of standard roses, quickly overtook her.

"Miss Berners!"

Georgina turned to him with frightened eyes.

"I wish to speak with you," said Alexander with suppressed agitation. "Shall we be seated?" He led her to a rustic seat close against the arbor. "If distresses me," said Mr. Lambe earnest!"

a rustic seat close against the arbor. "It distresses me," said Mr. Lambe earnestly, "to see, as I cannot help seeing, the effect this has had upon you. The shock to your sensibility. Let me set your mind at rest, as far as I can. I hardly dare to think how it will all end. But your cousin is as innocent as an infant of any real intent to deceive. She has behaved as inconsequently as a child—that is all. One—one must try to make allowances for her. She should be still at school. That is what I think of her." "Yes," murmured Georgina miserably, "but what must you think of—me!"

school. That is what I think of her."

"Yea," murmured Georgina miserably, "but what must you think of—me!"

"Of you!" said Mr. Lambe with strong feeling. "Your loyalty—your unflinching attachment to that young madeap, stirs my admiration. It is dreadful to think of what you must have suffered. Purely to protect Aimee. You faced my aunt." Mr. Lambe clasped his hand and drew his breath in sharply. "Yea, you risked the displeasure of my aunt! And—of course, the police. For days this sword of Damocies has been hanging over your blameless head. You—you have not been guilty of deceit. No, no! Only of stience. I think you have behaved, on the whole, admirably.

"Oh!" gasped Georgia faintly, hardly daring to believe her ears, "you cannot mean it!"

"I do mean it!" exclaimed Mr. Lambe warmly. "Miss Berners, from the first hour I saw you, I was convinced of your—your essential goodness! It betrays itself in all that you do. Anything that is underhand or questionable, gildes away from you—proclaimed Mr. Lambe, with a sweeping movement of his hand, "as the turble stream flows over the riverhed of white marble, leaving its purity unsuilled. My admiration for you is greater, if that is possible, than ever."

"Mr. Lambe, when I first knew you, I thought you my ideal as a churchman. I think so more than ever. When I was in trouble, and consulted you, I seemed to find you a little hard. Poor Aimee had enough to bear. But now," gasped Georgina, quite carried away, "I consider your conduct noble—really noble! I admire you more than ever."

"Miss Berners," said Alexander, husky with emotion, "If only you knew what a relief it is, that I have not forfeited your regard! I have only known you a few days, but your kindness, your sympathy—" his hand closed almost convulsively on hers—"Miss Berners, may I call you Aimee—I—I mean Georgina—!"

A stified, explosive sound caused Mr. Lambe to start violently and look round him.

to her feet; her eyes shone somewhat viciously.

"It sounded to me more like a cat!" she said in acid tones, and walker away down the path.

Mr. Lambe followed her.

When they were out of sight, the parlor maid emerged from the little arbor, her face crimson, her shoulders shaking, a handkerchief pressed to her streaming eyes.

"I think," continued Alexander, with growing enthusiasm, "that you exist to sacrifice yourself for others, Miss Berners. You have more than plety—you have charity. It is one of the sweetest qualities in a woman."

Georgina turned to him with swimming eyes.

"Oh, Mr. Lambe!" she murmured with delicious confusion.

Alexander answered her with a hollow groan. She was startled at the sudden distress in his face.

"The question is not what I think of you," he said bitterly, "but what you think of me! You know the principles I profess, and that I impressed on you. Out of my own mouth I am condemned. How can you feel anything but contempt for me! I have consented to connive at this mad escapade of Almee's and all its consequences. To keep silent. To—to bolster it up," he said with a gulp, "I have passed my word."

"Georgina'e eyes shone.

"You have done that!" she cried eagerly. "Why, now that you are on her side, she may be saved from exposure after all! I think it is splendid of you—absolutely splendid!"

"How can you think of me, but as a hypocrite? You do not mean, Miss Berners, that you feel any respect for me now?"

Trenton, March 7.—The anti-climax to the Highway Commission controversy, expected since the arrival of Senator Edge, failed to develop. The conference of Republican Senators closed early without any new aspect to the situation.

concerence of Republican Senators closed early without any new aspect to the situation.

Senator Parry emerging from the conference room stated that while some efforts to revive the highway issues were made, the matter is the same as it was six weeks ago.

It is the contention of Edge supporters here that a canvass of Senators on the one-man board bill showed at least eleven and possibly thirteen in favor of it, but Senators approached challenged the assertion.

An unsuccessful attempt was made by Senator Pierson of Union county to have the senate pass his measure for the standarisation of a loaf of bread. The roll was called three times, but the Union representative was compelled to request that the measure be laid over temporarily.

Following a prolonged and heated discussion Senator Agans of Hunterdon was compelled to sak that the senate postpone temporarily consideration of the bill repealing the law providing for teachers' tenure. The measure, Mr. Agans said, had the backing of all agricultural societies and civic organisations in the rural districts.

Senator Tooder of Gloucester persuaded the senate to pass his bill which will enable the city of Woodbury to borrow sufficient funds on a bond issue to build an additional grammar and high school. The measure would permit cities of third class to increase from 6 to 9 per cent the amount of bonds for school purposes.

State Board of Health to give instructions in cases of tuberculosis. In advocating the measure Dr. Barber devocating the measure Dr. Barber de-clared that more than 100,000 people in New Jersey were afflicted with the "white plague," and that the measure to a considerable degree would be beneficial to persons so afflicted. The measure carries with it an appropria-tion of $20,000. It, however, was im-possible for the Warren Republican to obtain a sufficient number of sup-porters to approve the bill.

Appointments by Silzer General Lewis T. Bryant, Republican, of Atlantic City was renominated by Governor Silser as commissioner of labor. He was first appointed to that position by Governor Murphy when the labor department was reorganised in 1904. He was reappointed by Governor Stokes and Governor Fort, both Regublicans, and Governor Wilson, Democrat.

In the Fielder administration, when it was proposed jo appoint a Democrat, the legislature passed a term extender, which continued General Bryant in office.

Another nomination sent in was that of George R. Green of Cape May Court House as prosecutor of Cape May county. That office has been in charge of John Bolan, who was designated from the attorney general's effice to act because of the failure of the legislature last year to confirm the appointment made by Governor Edwards.

Other nominations sent to the senate were as follows: Common pleas

Highway Board Bued

Coincident with the filing of a suit in the court of chancery by Attorney General McCran, alleging fraud in purchase of land for the Amboy bridge by the State Highway Commission, Republican Senate Leader Stevens announced a legislative committee would pursue an independent investigation of the oust d board. The suit was brought at the instance of Governor Silser.

The highway board was dismissed

The highway board was dismissed January 32. Republican State Chairman E. C. Stokes suggested the legislative probe, which was indorsed by majority senators. Mr. Stevens said a committee of three senators and three assemblymen would undertake the work, with Attorney General McCran as counsel.

The attorney general charges that the highway commissioners and the

The attorney general charges that the highway commissioners and the W. J. Conneil Lumber Company of South Amboy combined and conspired to defraud and cheat the state.

The information charges that the commission, through its agents, obtained appraisals of the company's land, consisting of seven and one-half acres, for $12,000 an acre, or a total value of $80,000. The commission paid $330,000 for the lands.

Other Accusations
Other allegations are:
That the commission purchased adjoining lands from other owners for a price approximating the appraisals obtained in the Donnell case.
That the commission on March 28, 1923, authorised the condemnation of the lands of the Donnell Lumber Commany and subsequently rescinded such man George L. Burton of South River at a meeting of the commission called to the attention of the commission:

"That it was not possible to make considerable progress with the construction of the Amboy bridge and suggested that some disposition be made of the property matters." The attorney general says Burton further advised the commission "that it would be desirable to acquire all the property of the Donnell Lumber Company in order that the state highway department may make such use of the additional property as may be necessary for storage space, the excess property to be disposed of by the state if it was found that it could not all be used for road purposes."

The bill charges Burton further advised the commission that he had secured appraisals upon the Donnell property, and he "therefore felt that the amount of $230,000 which was asked by the Donnell Lumber Company was not exorbitant."

The bill then recites:
"That the State Highway Commission, with full knowledge of the appraisals obtained by its agents and with full knowledge of the appraisals obtained by its agents and with full knowledge of the property of the Donnell Lumber Company for the purchase of land continguous to the property of the Donnell Lumber Company at a price of $12,000 per acre, did adopt a resolution authorizing the purchase of the entire property of the Donnell Lumber Company for $230,000.

"That the Donnell Lumber Company at a price of $12,000 per acre, did adopt a resolution authorizing the purchase of the entire property of the Donnell Lumber Company for $230,000.

"That the Donnell Lumber Company did convey to the state of New Jersey on June 23, 1923, the said

"That the Donnell Lumber Company did convey to the state of New Jersey on June 23, 1932, the said lands, and the State Highway Commission did pay therefore the full sum of $230,000; that the deed of the Donnell Lumber Company to the state of New Jersey was acknowledged before State Highway Commissioner George L. Burton as a master in chancery."

Individuals Named

The information expressly charges that Mr. Burton, as chairman, when he informed the commission that he had secured appraisals of $240,000 and $227,000 respectively on value of land, knew that the same were untrue and that the said appraisals were appraisals secured by the Donnell Company at its special instance and request. The information further charges that the members of the State Highway Commission present charges that the members of the State Highway Commission present at the meeting had knowledge that the statements were untrue. The bill charges the commissioner knew the price was exerbitant an

Fifty Thousand Share Offer Public Service Corporation of New Jersey 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock

PALMYRA, N. J.

Oversubscribed More Than Fifty Per Cent

Public Service Corporation of New Jersey on February 1 in formed the customers of its subsidiary operating companies, bý means of a printed circular, that beginning March 1, there would be available for subscription under its Customer Ownership Plan, some 50,000 shares of its 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock.

Customers desiring to purchase the stock were told that reser vations could be made, to the amount of stock available, through any of the corporations' employes or commercial offices, in advance of the selling date, in lots of from one to twenty shares for each per son, on terms of $100 par value, per share, plus accrued dividends.

whom the corporation is privileged to serve that the management takes great pleasure in announcing that on Thursday, March 1, the day the sale was to begin, there were actually in hand reservations from 18,974 persons for a total of 75,179 shares of stock, a virtual admirably situated in one of the oversubscription of more than fifty percent, of the number of shares

> Because of the interest manifested and the confidence displayed the corporation by so many thousand persons, it is extremely gratifying to be able to state that the total issue authorized by the Board of Directors was not limited to 50,000 shares, but was an equivalent of fifteen percent, of the entire capital stock outstanding at the time the authorization was made, or 72,622 shares.

> This fact, happily, makes it possible for the corporation to gran he requests of all those who made reservations up to and including February 28, under the terms of its offer, and additional reservations already made will be honored on the principle of "first come, first served," to the extent that shares of stock are available, but no more subscriptions for this issue can be accepted.

> With Customer Ownership as a fixed Public Service Policy other opportunities for participation in the stock of the corporation

> The money derived from these stock sales goes into the extension and betterment of the properties of the subsidiary operating companies in order that more service and, where possible, better ser vice may be made available for all the people of the many communi ties for which these companies provide such essential utilities as electricity, gas and street railway transportation

> The management takes this opportunity of expressing its profound appreciation of what it may be pardoned for construing as tantamount to a substantial vote of public confidence and it gives assurance that it is fully cognizant of the obligations of the operat ing companies in their respective spheres of activities, to serve the people to the utmost of their ability and capacity. This they wil continue their efforts to do.

Editor Receives Account of Public Sale and Report of Wedding of Fashionable Young Lady

"Radio News" gives the following account of the situation:
Radio bugs and perhaps bugs-to-be should appreciate this "air" story reported by the "Radio News" to have been picked up by a country newspaper which had installed an outfit. It seems that the paper was expecting a report of the wedding over the radio and also of an important farm sale. The two stories came in together and following is the receiver's finished copy.

Beginning at nine o'clock amidst attractive decorations of spring flowers, Mr. Ann-Drew A. Lemon and Miss Helfer Eatin were disposed of at public auction on my farm, which was one of the most charming events one and one-half miles east of her father, who is located at a vantage point, near the Logan-Nelsonville pike.

The bride was gowned in a becompoint, near the Logan-Nelsonville pike.

The bride was gowned in a becoming tarpaulin 10 feet by 16 feet, with large oval shaped mounds of good baled straw and the following property to wit: One Jersey bull, two years old, led the procession down the aisle and scattered other articles too numerous to mention before a background of farm implements and cathedral candles of pink. The impressive ring ceremony was said by six Poland-China pigs, registered and tubercular tested, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Floodwood. One set of single buggy harness with drop effect of trailing arbutus and her bridesmaid, complete with tugs and bridle, made it one of the most complete and charming events of its kind that will work single or double of the season. The groom was handsome in seven tons of clover and alfalfa mixed hay and diamond studded drag harrow with forty-two teeth. His best man was one DeLaine ewe, a former schoolmate at Ohio University.

Only intimate friends of sixteen milch cows were present, including fourteen registered Holsteins, the father and mother of the groom, six mules, and one good road scraper. Many beautiful and useful household articles such as sixteen quarts of tomato preserves, one brass kettle, beautiful and charming auctioneer, A. M. Mooney. The decorations of alls kinds, one churn, one baby crib, one electric toaster and six bushels of eating potatoes were received by the beautiful and charming auctioneer, A. M. Mooney. The decorations of also one six-cylinder uncle and two white calves will be served on the grounds by the members of the Ladies' Ald of the Floodwood church. The wedding took place at high noon and will last until all goods are sold. Terms—nine months' time with approved security as is the custom at sales of this kind, with interest at six o'clock dinner at the Ambrose Hotel, Logan.

After the nuptial knot had been tied with 200 feet of hay rope, the happy couple left on one good John Deere manure spreader, for an extended trip through sixty shocks of fodder, to be hauled

Artisans Plan Big Time
A large delegation of local Artisans will attend a combined meeting of the New Jersev Assemblies in the Camden Y.M.C.A. auditorium on Friday evening- of this week.
The officers of this meeting have been selected from the various assemblies in Jersey, and Harry L. Nichols, Master Artisan of Palmyra Assembly, will occupy, the inspector's chair.
After the opening of the meeting and the initiation of a large class of candidates, the program will be in charge of the Most Excellent Master Artisan, Charles H. Grakelow, who has arranged to have the entire staff of Most Excellent officers in attendance.
At the conclusion of the meeting a has arranged to have the entire staff of Most Excellent officers in attendance.

At the conclusion of the meeting a wonderful entertainment will be staged by the New York Theatrical Stars, accompanying the Most Excellent Artisan on his official visits to the various Assemblies of the order. The purpose of this meeting is for the M. E. M. A. to meet as many individual members of the Jersey Assemblies as possible. Personal invitations have been extended by him to all members, and without doubt this will be the largest and best meeting of Artisans ever held in the State of New Jersey.

Special music will be furnished by the Artisan Band, of Philadelphia, numbering over fifty pieces, and numerous attendance prizes will be awarded to those holding the lucky numbers distributed at the door.

Arrangements have been-concluded for the Palmyra delegation to leave Palmyra station at 7.30 sharp on Friday evening, and various members will furnish the use of their automobiles for the occasion.

It is also understood special permit has been secured from the Commissioner of Police of Palmyra for this delegation to return at any hour desired.

BOY SCOUTS' ANNIVERSARY

out the entire country celebrated the week of the thirteenth anniversary of the movement February 8-15. Dem-onstrations of scoutcraft, rallies, paronstrations of scoutcraft, rallies, parent-and-son meetings, radio messages of indorsement of scouting by prominent people, and the taking of the scout oath by well-known men had a place on the program. Fifty thousand cards containing a splendid indorsement of the movement were placed in street cars throughout the country. Thousands of billboard posters picturing scout training appeared in the different cities. The car cards and posters were the donation of stanch supporters of the movement to help bring scouting's message to every American porters of the movement to help bring scouting's message to every American man, woman and child.

One of the most impressive acts of the entire week occurred on the evening of February 8 when every scout and scout leader throughout the country reaffirmed the scout oath:

"On my honor, I will do my best!

"I. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the scout law;

"2. To help other people at all-times;

"2. To help other people at all times;
"3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."
In many communities the respective days of anniversary week were devoted to scouting in connection with the school, the church, the home, and the community. Special demonstrations were given showing what scouting is doing to co-operate with each of these institutions.

ing is doing to co-operate with each of these institutions.

As the public grows more familiar with the scout program of character building and citizenship training, it demands—"Why are there not more boy scouts?" In response to this question, the Boy Scouts of America made an extraordinary effort to make room in the ranks by anniversary week for 100,000 new members. This effort was termed the anniversary round-up. In this connection every scout the country over had an opportunity of doing a national good turn, by bringing to the ranks one more boy to advance in the work of good citizenship. Indications point to an oversubscription of the quota of 100,000. With the increase proposed, the total boy membership of the Boy Scouts of America will reach the helf million America will reach the half million mark.

America will reach the half million mark.

President Harding, in his appreciation of the work of the Boy Scouts of / terica and his interest in seeing more boys members of the organization, authorized the presentation, in his name of a large silk American flag to each region attaining its quota of increase in membership for the anilversary roundup; ha handsome set of silk streamers—red, white and blue—to each of the 600 local councils that reaches its goal; and a similar but smaller set of streamers to each troop that enrolls the specified number of new members. President Harding is the honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America.

HAS FAITH IN BOYS

A group of scouts unsolicited, recently took the responsibility of guarding a certain dangerous crossing, of getting little children over in safety. These boys didn't tell anybody of what they were doing. They weren't looking for credit—they were just doing. Last winter a scout stood guard over a live wire for several hours on a freezing night. In passing, he had seen the danger, and on his own inlitative guarded passersby until the repairmen came. He from his own inlitative guarded passersby until the repairmen came. He from his own inlitative guarded passersby until the repairmen came. He from his own inlitative guarded passersby until the repairmen came. He from his own inlitative guarded passersby until the repairmen came. He from his own following its chief scout executive, aid: "We claim there are no naturally bad boys, though there are idle, misdirected or undirected, mischlevous, heedless or mistaken boys," it based that assertion, and the following one on just such facts as these quoted:

"We claim that if you give a boy plenty of interesting, worthwhile things to do in his out-of-school or after-work hours, that the chapses are he will have little inclination to mailclous mischlef or vicious anusement."

of the old established manufacturers of radio apparatus were wondering how they would dispose of their stock. Many dealers were just making a bare living at selling radio apparatus, Just about 300,000 radio amateurs scattered throughout the United States constituted the field for sales of radio goods and apparatus.

Since then a great change has taken place. Radio has come upon the coun-try as a tide. Old apparatus, instruments manufactured under patents 15 years old, ordinary double slide crys-tal detector sets were becoming im-mensely popular.

It is said that there are almost 600 incorporated manufacturers of radio apparatus in the United States today. It is impossible to estimate the number of dealers. There are some two or three million tans who have bought and installed radio receiving sets.

These sets receive music and other broadcast matter from some 500 or more broadcasting stations located in every state in the Union. Every state but one has one or more stations, and some states have as many as 20.

With the establishment of more With the establishment or more solid radio regulations, with the ad-vent of fair competition and intelli-gent manufacture of radio apparatus of good design the infant radio baby is growing lustily.

Select Receiving Set Carefully.
When making a purchase, ask the dealer to show yow the inside of the set. If all connections are not soldered the wires will become loose and reception will be impossible. Paste or acid, if syread carelessly over the wiring, or dirt inside the receiving box will cause trouble. If filings have been allowed to get into the telephone receiver, the attraction of the magnets will gradually cause them to make their way through the insulation and render the phones worthless. Watch out for these difficulties and avoid the disappointment that comes when a radio enthusiast gets all set to listen in, but can't.

Schools Compete in Radio.

New Jersey public educational institutions have hit upon the idea of competition among the various schools and grades in the construction of radiophone sets. Thus far more than 4,000 complete sets, some of them of the more complicated nature, have been turned out in the schools. The authorities say that boys are learning more through wireless about electricity, circuits, batteries, the telephone and ether than any textbook could ever teach.

Reason for Short Wiring.

The reason that you are urged to use short wiring and right-angle turns in connecting a set is a simple one. Every wire carrying an electric current has a magnetic field; if two wires are placed near each other they will absorb current, but if placed at right angles they will oppose each other which is just what they should do. If you run the wires long, they will, of course, meet with other long leads and there will be adverse induction.

Owners of receivers using spide web inductance coils of fixed position web inductance coils of fixed position are restricted to a particular wave fength, and even if the coils are mounted for coupling, the range is still limited unless variable condensers are used. The best errangement is to place one variable condenser in series with the primary and shunt anethor across the secondary. This affords results equal to those obtainable with a variocoupler.

BIG STATION FOR HOLLAND

During the late war Holland was cut off from all direct cable communication with her colo-nies. In order to avoid possible repetition she is to establish a very powerful radio station at Kootwyk equipped with appara-tus to reach as far as Java, 7,500 miles.

Wireless invades Arctic.
Wireless has invaded the Arctic territory, a powerful radio station having been established on the Norwegian island of Jan Mayen. It communicates with Norwegian, English and Swediah meteorological stations and was designed for service to sealing and whaling vessels that put in at Jan Mayen.

Government Has Ten Stations.

The federal government now maintains ten broadcasting stations for the purpose of sending out crop and market news.

AID INJURED SOY

While playing, Robert McKnight of Bowling Green took a big jump and his foot landed upon a broken bottle. A large artery was cut and began to bleed profusely. Seout Norman Loomis, was present. Following his first aid instructions, he promptly stopped the flow of blood by use of a tourniquet. He then took the injured boy upon his back and carried him to his home.

ROTARY USES SCOUT MOTTO

In conformity with the scout slogan, "Do a Good Turn Delity," boy scouts of Tampa, Fia, have performed excellent service to their community. The boys declare that the old saying, "Give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you," is especially significant in their case. For now come their friends, the Rotarians, at a recent state convention with a memento community of the convention with a memento community of the property of the convention of the motto, "Top g Good Turn Dally to Some Boy."

What Do They Buy?

People often refer to buying certain things, but what they actually buy is something else. For instance, they don't buy a morning or evening paper, they buy news. When they go to a theatre box office and procure a couple of printed pieces of colored cardboard, what they actually buy is entertainment or amusement, not theatre tickets. They don't purchase an automobile, they buy transportation. They don't buy coal, they buy B. T. U.'s or heat

They don't buy printing from a printer-what they buy is skill, ability, technique. What he delivers is printed matter, but they pay for brain work, not merely mechanical product.

Some printers place a higher value on their skill and ability, the product of their brain, than others do. When this is the case, it is usually because the product is worth more. Just as the executive whose services cost $50.00 a day, is worth more than the laborer whose services cost 50c an hour.

The difference is Knowledge of Paper, Presswork, Ink, Typography Layout, Art Engraving.

The greater portion of printed matter has for its primary object selling merchandise or service, and the effectiveness with which it accomplishes this purpose alone determines its value to

Printing cannot be purchased as they would buy goods over the counter, where they can see the thing itself, or order from a sample of the actual goods, for the simple reason that they are buying something that does not exist; something that must be created.

The effectiveness of the printed matter that is ultimately created, is determined by the quality of knowledge, skill and ability, as well as the integrity of the printer. That is what they really buy.

Where did you get this delicious cheese? asked Mrs. Blank at the luncheon.

46 At Fields'" said her hostess. "You know, the new Delicatessen shop in Palmyra. 115 East Broad street is the number, I think."

66 Yes," said another guest, "I got the most wonderful Fruit Salad there the other day. And they have a lot of things I have been buying in the city. What I like about the store particularly is that it is so neat and attractive—and the service is a treat."

Davis, of the highway committee, said that the borough engineers had been asked for a plan to correct this evil. He said that it may be necessary to run a gutter down the middle of the roadway, as the lanes are too narrow to permit of a gutter at the side.

Mr. Lynch further reported that the outside firm alarms were not kept in condition. Mr. Showell, chairman of the fire and water committee, said that the telephone company's trouble man had been directed to put them all in first-class condition.

Chairman Davis, of the lighting committee, reported a resolution which was unanimously passed, authorizing the Public Service to change the arc street lights now in use in the borough to the new light known as Type C Mazda lamps. These lamps, which are enclosed in opal globes, and give very satisfactory light, have recently been installed in Trenton and Revery township. The cost per lamp will be the same as the present arc lights, and the service will be much more satisfactory. It is expected to have the change completed within three months.

LESSON FOR MARCH 18

JESUS CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT-Luke 23:33-36,
GOLDEN TEXT-He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our inquities; the chastissement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed.—Isalah SiS.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Pan. 22:1-31; I Cor. 1:23, 34; Gal. 6:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Selvation Costs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Christ's Death.

-The Meaning of Christ's Death.

We now face the greatest tragedy of all time. No record in the annals of history approaches it. It is the very climax of all history. Though unique in its blackness, from it flows streams of liberty and life for all the world. Let every teacher have the personal experience of Christ's death for him, and then get his pupils to see that Christ's death was Instead of their own death.

L. The Place of Grapifyton (v. 83).

i. The Piace of Crucifixion (v. 83).
They led Him away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem resembling a skull. Calvary is the Latin word and Golgotha is the Hebrew. This is a significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt picture of man's condition as the result of sin—life and intelligence are gone, leaving only the dark empty cavern which once contained them. Jesus was not crucified in the city for He was to suffer without the gate (Heb. 18:12).

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 83).

(Isalah 53:12).

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 84).

He cried, "Father, forgive them."

He doubtless had in mind not only the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews who in their blindness were ignorant of the enormity of their crime. He had no hatred in His heart.

2. The Indifferent (v. 85). The people stood beholding. The great mass of the world gaze upon the crucified Christ with stolid indifference.

fied Christ with stolid indifference.

3. The Scoffers (vv. 35-39). (1)
The rulers reviled Him for His claim to being a Savior. They wanted a Savior, but not a crucified Savior.
Many today are religious, but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in a blood atonement. (2) The soldlers reviled Him for claiming to be a king. The title, "King of the Jews" had been placed over him in bitter irony, but it was true, for by right of the Davidic covenant He shall be King over Israel (II Samuel 7:8-16). (3) The Impenitent Thief (v. 39). This brutal man joins in reviling the Savior even Impenitent Thief (v. 89). This brutal man joins in reviling the Savior even when he was under condemnation.

4. The Penitent (vv. 40-43). The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The salvation of this penitent thief is a remarkable picture of the saving power of Christ. The man confessed his sin as against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying man was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin as against God showed that he was penitent. His request for Christ to remember him when He came into His kingdom shows that he recognized that the one who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin and that he would come to reign as King. His salvation was immediate. Christ sald, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 40-46). So shocking was the crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the Godless crowd. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. When the price of sin was paid He cried with a loud voice showing that He still had vitality—that His death was not through exhaustion but by His sovereign will.

Johnson" marks him as the greatest biographer of all literature, did nothing but gossip and not always with the kindliest motives.

Come right on down to the present day and you will find even the adwriters gossiping their heads off.

"How Mrs. X Helped Pay Off the Mortgage" is gossip. Maybe it was peddling soap, maybe it was knitting stockings, maybe it was putting in "a few hours' work each week" soliciting subscriptions. What do we care? We know what a mortgage is, and we know how hard it is to pay off, so Mrs. X's struggle becomes our litera-Mrs. X's struggle becomes our litera-ture, and we read to the end and like That's it—struggle! Action and struggle and success against odds; or if it's failure, what caused it and how we can dodge the same evils—they are the things we want to hear, and if that be gossip give us more of it.

Gossip got a bad name when it was accused of being the resort of little minds. "Having nothing else to talk about, they sit around and talk about one another." And yet the man who said that was gossiping about his fel-

When or women? Don't try to answer. You can't.

The fact is that nearly all grown people are gossips, and women are equally right when they say that all women are gossips, and women are equally right when they say that all women are gossips, and women are equally right when they say that all women are gossips in the smoking car, the billiard room and the business office. The new thing that people can never know enough about is what other people are saying, what they are doing, how they got the way they are. And why not? The world will never come to an end nor will it cease to improve a long as folks are interested in one another.

AUTO CRASH HURTS TWO Car Hits Trolley Tracks and Over-turns After Collision

turns After Collision

As the result of a slight collision between a Ford touring car, driven by Jacob Hopps and a truck belonging to Druggist Faunce, of Riverside, the Hopps car ran into the trolley tracks near the East Riverton bridge and turned over several times Saturday night.

Joseph Cooper, who was in the car, was badly cut about the head and face, and Miss Viola Hopps, another passenger, was also seriously cut and bruised. She was taken to the Riverside hospital by Edward Bowers.

After Jacob Hopps had his injuries dressed by Dr. Witte, he was taken home by Officer Quigley.

The Hopps family had just moved to Palmyra from Riverside and were carrying a few articles to their new home when the accident occurred.

Shortly after this accident, a cardriven by George DuBell, of Palmyra, struck George Morrison, colored. DuBell picked up the injured man and took him to the office of Dr. Rogers, in Riverton, where it was found he was not badly hurt.

A Bible class for men and women is held every Sunday afternoon in Calvary Presbyterian Church, William Carson, teacher. Come and encourage us with your presence and take a blessing home with you.

the evening train."
"Diana!" said Mr. Lambe. "I had quite forgotten that she was due here."
Georgina started slightly, and looked perturbed.

Georgina started slightly, and looked perturbed.

"She is coming," said Lady Erythea, "to investigate the Jervaulx ghost. Certainly, she might have done it before. But I believe she has only recently become a member of the Psychical Research society. She is quite enthusiastic about it—so far as Diana can be enthusiastic about anything. Indeed, her letter is so technical as to be unintelligible to me."

"I did not know there was a ghost here," said Georgina, wide-eyed.

"I should not like to say that there is. But it is a tradition in the family, and has been well vouched for. I have never seen it. Diana seems to imply," added Lady Erythea a little acidly, "that only those who are advanced, and in tune with the infinite, see such things. If she thinks she is more spiritual than I, she is welcome to try. She will discover nothing whatever." Lady Erythea turned to her nephew. "Bertrand de Jussac is coming also."

"De Jussac?" cried Alexander, staring at her.

"Yes. You know him, I think."

"I have met him, of course," said Mr. Lambe dryly, "I should have thought this was the last house that so frivolous a person would wish to visit. Why is he coming? Surely he is not interested in the ghost?"

"In the ghost—no," said Lady Erythea, with a faint yet serene smile, "but possibly his interest may arise. I approve him. A young man of excellent standing and irreproachable descent."

"Descent is the word," said Mr.

well, I've never pretended to like her, either. She's perfectly pittless; she'li give me away like a shot, and flatten me out. She'll be all over it!"
"Let us hope," said Georgina breath-lessly, "that Monsieur de Jussac will rather a—a rip. I expect that means ie's a good sort. But Diana—heaven reserve us! Well, she probably won't know me in this rig, but she'll know you're the wrong horse. And then zizz! boom!—up we all go in the air! You and Billy, and me—and Alexander!"

Georgins sat down

Alexander!"

Georgina sat down and pressed her hand to her forehead.

"Aimee," she said faintly, "the burglary, and all the rest of it, has upset me. I don't feel well. I—I have headache, and I can't come down to dinner. I shall go to bed."

"What a trump you are!" said Almee, kissing her with intense affection. "It's the very thing. I'm so sorry, Georgie. It'll be beastly dull for you in bed, dear."

"I shall like a little duliness," said Georgina pathetically, as she left the room, "it will be restful. Goodby, dear. "You will have to keep out of Diana's way as best you can."

"I'll take Jolly good care I do," murmured Aimee fervently, as she put her cap straight. "Even Billy can't help this time!"

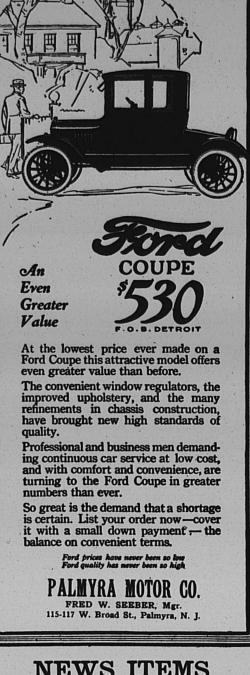

CHAPTER XVIII

"Cold Lambel"

Lady Diana might have been the original of that tedious young woman who was described by the poet as "divinely tail and most divinely fair." She was without doubt strikingly beautiful, a type of the large and very pale blonde. But an atmosphere of frigidity surrounded her, which many people found repellent.

"My dear aunt," she said calmy, entering the drawing room and kissing Lady Erythea, "so good of you to have me for this flying visit. Alexander, how are you?" She touched her brother's cheek with her lips.

"You will have a clear field for your investigations, my dear." said Lady (Continued on fourth page)

With a production of 5,400
Model T's daily, the Plants of the Ford Motor Company are working on a schedule of 129,000 cars for February in which there are but 24 working days.

This production schedule is the highest ever set by the Company at this time of year.

The greatest number of Ford cars and trucks to be built in a day's work was in August, last year, when 5,699 cars were turned out. Comparing this high mark with the February schedule gives an excellent idea of the extent of Ford business in all parts of the country.

The winter demand for Company products is touching figures that formerly represented production in the summer months. This Erythea, "and I hope the advances you have made in psychic science will—ah—bring you to terms with the ghost. But I deubt it. By the way, your cousin Aimee is here, as I told you. But she is unwell and is keeping her room. I am rather anxious about her. Incidentally, we shall have another guest; I expect Monsieur de Jussac today."

"Monsieur de Jussac!" exclaimed Diana. She paused. Lady Erythea watched her somewhat keenly. "What brings him here?" said Diana.
"He is very anxious," said Lady Erythea gilbly, "to examine the Lambe collection of armor. We have a suit of mail which is believed to have been captured at Creey; there is a tradition that it belonged to one of the De Jussac family."

Lady Diana looked incredulous.

Lady Diana looked incredulous.

"And I understand he is interested in psychic matters, and anxious to improve his knowledge."

"That is something in his favor," said Diana with suspicion.

"I expect that is his car," said Lady

"I expect that is his car," said Lady Expthes.
A rakish automobile of semi-racing lype was observed sweeping along the park drive. The Vicomte de Jussac had motored direct from town.
A minute later he presented himself. Bartrand de Jussac was tall, and for his age, rather full-hodied. His complexion was healthily ruddy, he had a little black mustache and a jolly, roving dark eye. In spita of his very material appearance, he had undoubtedly the bel air. He raised Lady Exythea's skinny fingers to his lips.
"Enchanted, dear lady, to pay hotage to you sur vos terres. How very amiable of you to invite me!"
Lady Erythea bestowed on him the smile she reserved for elder sons. "Charmed to have you. You know my niece, surely?"
Bertrand's little start.

Bertrand's little start of surprise was admirably done. He bent low over Diana's hand, but refrained from

"But this is delightful!" exclaimed Bertrand. "You told me in town, Lady Diana, that you were interested in the ghost. Happy ghest! I, too, am de-veloping rapidly an interest in the paychic. I hope."

"I thought it was armor that at-tracted you here," said Diana frig-idly.

"Helas, mademoiselle," said Ber-trand, allowing his dark eyes to meet her pale blue ones, "there are weap-ons against which armor is of ne ons against which armor is of ne avail."

"With your bent for ancient histery, Diana," interrupted her aunt, "you should know more of the Lambe armor than I do. Why not show it to Monsieur de Juesac, so that he may commence his studies. You will find most of it in the hall."

"I think Monsieur de Jussac had better pursue his own investigations, for I shall be fully occupied with mine," said Diana, "and for the present I will retire to my room, if you will excuse me, Aunt."

She glided majestically through the doorway.

doorway.

The Vicomte's eyes followed Diana's departure.

"Adorable blonde!" he mused. "The invincible phlegme brittanique. But it is the icy, inaccessible peak that apurs the courage of the mountaineer!"

He sat down and made himself particularly pleasant to Lady Erythea.

When the party of feur assembled for dinner, Lady Erythea was amiable and resplendent in purple, Diana frigid and ethereal in pale yellow, while Alexander at first wore the air of the Jackdaw of Rheims molting under the abbot's curse. But Estrand de Jussae, looking like a revived D'Artagnan in evening dress, centrived to chase heaviness away.

His merry, infectious laugh and quick sallies uplifted the spirits of the others. He made a deeper impression than ever on Diana Lambe, and with the usual perversity that seized her when in mixed company, she felt it due to herself to become the more openly hostile.

"I do not understand how you can defend the spirit of the age," she said coldly, in answer to a sally that made even Alexander smille. "The days of chivalry are dead. What romance can one attach to the modern young man? But in the days of heraldry, when men were splendid in heim and gorget and camali—ah, then," she exclaimed, with a rare touch of enthusiasm, "romance flourished indeed—"

"Talking of mail," said Lady Erythea blandly, "the ghost always appears in a complete suit of it, though his coming is noiseless as a breath of mist. I regret to tell you, Vicomte, that he came to a bad end through a romantic passten."

"Why regret?" protested Bertrand. "I will wager 'twas worth it."
"Because he was reputed—or disreputed—to be an ancestor of yours; a De Jussac taken as hostage by SirPiers Lambe—after a most gallant resistance," said Lady Erythea smiling. "While here he engaged the affections of a daughter of the house, and being discovered, was permitted to don his armor and debate the matter with Eir Piers. His end was—tragic."

"No end can be wholly tragic, if reached by the path of a great passion. To every rose its thorn. I appland him!" Bertrand raised his glass. "To you, nameless ancestor!" He replaced the glass appreciatively, and Mr. Tarbeaux refilled it. "Touching this ancestor. Lady Diana..."

But his hostess had given the signal, the ladies rose, and the two men were left alone—a custom that still lingered at Jervaulx. De Jussac did not find Mr. Lambe a very exhilarating companion, but Alexander, though drinking only water, kept him at the table an unconscionable time. When eventually they reached the drawing room Alexander departed at once to his library, and Bertrand found that Diana had retired.

"I must apologize for my niece, Vicomte, but she has gone to her room; to achieve the proper psychic attitude, or whatever she calls it, for her inquiries as to this absurd ghost," sold Lady Erythea. "She can, of course, do nothing tonight. And as it is late, and you will not wish to sit up talking to an old woman..."

"Most spirituelle of hostesses," protested the Vicomte, "I should like to sit and talk to you all night, if you will allow me..."

Diana put her head inside the door.

"Most spirituelle or nostesses," protested the Vicomie, "I should like to sit and talk to you all night, if you will allow me—"
Diana put her head inside the door.
"I told you, Aunt," she said, "that my stupid maid lost herself at the terminus, and I cannot retire unattended. May I have yours?"
"My own incumbrance has been away for two days," said her aunt, "but we have a parlor maid who really attends to one's hair very soothingly; she did mine last night." Lady Erythea pressed the bell.

The butter appeared, "Tarbeaux, you will tell Snooks to attend Lady Diana in her room."
"Very good, m' lady."
Mr. Tarbeaux found Aimee on her way upstairs to bed, and gave her the order. Aimee was astonished, and secretly panic-stricken.

"This has absolutely finished it!"
"""" "I wight as well her and once." Suddenly she came to a resolution. "But—I'd better go. I shall run against her sooner or later. And anyhow she'll be alone. Di's such a fool she may not know me."

Almee reached the bedchamber, where Lady Diana had just arrived. She scarcely gianced at the parlor maid, and donning a light wrap, seated herself before the mirror.

"Take down my hair," she said curtly, "and if your fingers are cold, warm them first at the fire, I abhor being touched by cold lingers."

Almee's fingers itched to warm themselves by a totally different method. But she held them to the fire, and then set about her task. She had hardly commenced when Diana's pale blue eyes, catching sight of her

"Whom did they say you were?"

she said in a grating voice.
"S-Snooks, in lady," said Aimee, dropping a curtsey.
"Snooks! You are Aimee Scroope!
Don't deny it!" said Diana fiercely.
"Yon't attempt to deceive me. I should know you in a thousand. What is the meaning of this—masquerade?"
Aimee surrendered.
"Yes, Di—It's me! For goodness' sake don't shout." For once Aimee lost her head. "Aunt doesn't know I'm here, you see. Don't give me away. I'll try and explain—"

"I don't want your explanation. You will explain to Aunt!" rasped Diana. "I can see by your manner there is something more in this than mere folly! I've had my suspicions, from what Aunt has said—"
"Di," exclaimed Aimee imploringly, "there's no use trying to hide it now—I'm in trouble—real trouble. If you give me away now you'll get me into a fearful row with Dad. You don't want to do that, do-you? It—it will simply finish him!"
"Very likely! It is high time he knew the truth about you. I know a little more of your character than he does, Aimee. His absurd leniency to you up till now—"
She moved swiftly between Aimee and the door, and pressed the bell.
"Let me out!" said Aimee, rather white and her eyes gleaming. "Get away from that door!" She strode toward Diana.
"I shall not!"
There was a knock at the door. Diana opened it, and the housekeeper appeared.
"Was that your ladyship's bell?"
"Yes!" said Diana. "Ask Lady Erythea to come here immediately. Do you hear? Immediately!"

"No," she said curtly. "You can go," When the housekeeper had left the room, Diana turned to Aimee.
"You will come with me now—to Aunt!"

Aunt!"

"Til do nothing of the sort," retorted Almee defiantly, "Go and speak to her yourself, if you want to. Rouse her out of bed now, and tell her all you know. I shall get it hot; I'm used to that—but there's one consolation, she'll jolly well flatten you out, too!"

Again Diana hesitated. She saw herself roaring accusations into the ear-trumpet of an infuriated aunt newly aroused from slumber.

"I am tired, and I do not wish for a scene at this time of night," she said, fixing Almee with a malignant eye. "On consideration, I shall leave this affair till the morning. And now—you may go."

She stood away from the door.

"I have no desire to listen to a discreditable story, at which, no doubt, I could give a very good guess. As for your father, he must face the consequences of having allowed you to chave as you do. I have no more to say," replied Diana with cold disdain.

to say," replied Diana with cold disdain.

Almee's eyes blazed at her.

"You utter beast, Di!" she said,
and flung out of the room.

For half an hour Aimee mused upon the situation, and mentally pronounced it hopeless. The dreary bedroom became impossible to her. She opened the door; the house was in darkness; everyone, apparently, had retired. Almee made her way to Georgina's bedroom door, and rapped stealthly for some time, for the door was locked. It seemed impossible to arouse Georgina, and after a lengthy effort Aimee desisted. Lady Erythea's room was mext door, and even the deaf hear when they are not wanted to.

Finally, Aimee crept down into the hall, where the suits of armor loomed grimly in the half-light, a silent, threatening host. It was impossible to get out of the house. All conceivable outlets were secured, since the burglary. Aimee passed through the paneled dining hall. The darkness got on her nerves. She switched on a single electric light, and looked round her hopelessly.

"Two or three more days, and I believe Billy would have pulled me through," she said dully. "I know he would. Now, it's all up. I'm done.
And I can't get to Billy."

Almee dropped into an armchair, burted her face in her hands, and began to cry. She cried like a child that has hurt itself.

A large figure stole into the room with a remarkably noiseless step. It has hurt itself.

A large figure stole into the room with a remarkably noiseless step. It was the Vicomte de Jussac. He started as he caught sight of the foriorn figure in the chair, and stared in surprise. The spectacle of a damsel in distress at once roused generous sentiments in the beau sabreur.

He crossed the room and scated misself on the arm of the chair.

"Away, dull care," murmured Bertrand. "Such eyes as those—I cannot see them but I am sure they are adorable—were never made for weeping. Tell me your serrew, ma petite," he said gently; "it shall be sweet away!"

tite," he said gently; "it shall be swept away!"
"Tm in awful trouble!" sobbed Aimee.
"Alas! But let me help you. Here am I, a big, gross fellow, but very capable, sent by the gods to aid you. It is what I am for!"
Aimee dropped her hands and stared at him, startled.
"Are you Monsieur de Jussac?" she stammered.
"Infinitely at your service, mademoiselle."
Aimee's eyes searched his face. It

The question of protection for the school children crossing the railroad came 'up and Mr. Weart explained that the Safety Patrol plan was to be changed and the work of guarding the crossings given to the Boy Scouts. This plan seemed to meet with general favor.

Mr. Hartman advised his hearers to cat less meat, drink more milk and eat whole wheat bread if they would be healthy and live long. He advocated especially that the milk be clean, pure and wholesome.

The speaker, as well as some of the members of the Chamber, related some amusing observations on the old farm methods of dairying, which were not designed to create an appetite for milk.

Several members asked questions as to their own particular diets and Mr. Hartman gave them very valuable advice.

James T. Weart was called upon to report on the fire company's plans for a new building. Rub Backache away with en trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oll."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

The visitors had the advantage over the locals in that they had been playing all season on a floor similar in dimensions to the new gym while the Palmyra boys had only one day's practice in which to get acquainted with their new floor. Those who witnessed the contest realized what a difference the change from the Temple gym made for the locals.

Collingswood played the game through without a foul.

Mr. Weart Is Candidate for Mayor

Mr. Weart Is Candidate for Mayor James T., better known as "Jim" Weart has tossed his hat into the ring for Mayor of Palmyra.

This is the most important and interesting event of the past week which was somewhat crowded with political developments in connection with the coming election of officers for the new borough government to be held on April 3rd.

Mr. Weart's candidacy has been hailed with general approval. He has long been president of the school board where his crowning achievement was the building of the splendid new high school building just completed. Otherwise, "Jim's" local activities have been largely connected with the fire company, where he stands ace-high with all the boys.

Mr. Weart had always refused to aspire to any township job and his decision to enter the mayoralty race created some surprise among his friends who had often tried to get him to run for Township Committee. His candidacy gives proof of one of the arguments used in favor of the change to borough government, that it would bring out men for office who would never consider township positions.

FAVORS THREE PERCENT

enator Edge Will Introduce Bill to That Effect at Coming Session of Congress

Senator Edge plans to introduce in the next congress a bill to provide for the manufacture of beer of three percent alcoholic content. This was announced on Saturday, following a conference between Senator Edge, Attorney General McCran and others who are closely associated with the senator in the Republican organization in New Jersey. It also was announced that Senator Edge will run for another term.

The senator stated that is was too late to introduce the bill in the congress which just closed, but he is prepared to do so at the coming session, believing there is a strong sentiment for amending the law so that beer can be sold.

The bill, Senator Edge explained, is based on the premise that three percent, of alcoholic content, is non-intoxicating and therefore constitutional. A preliminary draft of the measure has been made and a large amount of supporting data has been collected. Wine will not be coupled with the 3% beer proposal.

The news that Senator Edge will put in such a bill and thus run for re-election on a wet platform is of the more interest in view of the fact that Senator-elect Edwards is a wet and the further fact that Senator Frelinghuysen, whose term ends March 4, is expected to run for the senate in 1924 against Senator Edge, Senator Frelinghuysen, however, may run as a dry.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Robinson in Palmyra

The Rev. E. A. Robinson, who has been pastor of the Epworth M. E. Church in Palmyra for the past five years, was transferred to the Ballard Memorial Church in Asbury Park by the New Jersey Methodist Conference which met last week.

Mr. Robinson enjoys the distinction of being the only pastor who ever held the charge here as long as five years, and only one other, the Rev. Marshall Owens, of Bradley Beach, stayed as long as four years.

Mr. Robinson was very popular with his congregation here and he departs amid many regrets, but with best wishes for his success in another pastorate.

YMCA Program

The Camden YMCA concert band which met with marked success at it initial concert in the YMCA auditorium on January 22nd, has been preparing the second program of the series of concerts to be given this winter. The date has been set for Monday evening, April 9th. The program has been carefully selected and will, as at the first concert, consist of the very best of band arrangements including such favorites as "Katinka," "Zampa," "Lucia Sextette," and others of like character.

PROTEST MAIL DELIVERY

Communion will be celebrated at the Thursday evening service.

Those who attended the birthday party given last Saturday evening in honor of John Yeagel, of Kensington, were Mrs. Swain and son, George, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schuck, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bender, George Schuck, H. Smith and William Phelan, all of Parry. Guests were also present from New York, Perth Amboy, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

William McNall has purchased a home in Camden and expects to move into it within the next two weeks.

A special Lenten service will be held in the Moravian Church Good Friday afternoon at 2.30.

The new fire signal of the Parry Fire Company was tested last Sunday and it worked so well that the Palmyra Company responded. While the Palmyra Company was out at Parry the two trucks collided. The rear running boards on both trucks were somewhat damaged and the chemical tank of the Palmyra truck also was dented.

Mrs. Swain, who has been spending the winter in Philadelphia, returned to her home in Parry on Tuesday.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. Nelson Sperling were guests of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Romig, of Philadelphia, returned to her home in Parry on Tuesday.

It was impossible to deny anything to the conquering Bertrand. Lady Diana permitted herself to imbibe a little of the wine; it restored the color to her cheeks.

"And now," said the Vicomte tenserly, "light of my soul—"

A piercing shrick from Diana jarred jainfully on his aerves. Bertrand started and spun around.

In the doorway stood the unspeakable parlor maid, capless, her bronzt hair flowing over her shoulders. Wicked laughter convulsed her, her eyes shone with triumph.

Georgina's assumption of astonishment at hearing Lady Erythea's news was wholly assumed, and not assumed badly. The announcement was, in fact, no news at all to her.
Having an excellent seuse of direction, Georgina soon discovered Mr. Alexander Lambe walking on the sheltered paths of the old yew garden beyond the chapel-at-ease. He looked quite as relieved as Georgina. And his eyes lit up wonderfully when he saw her. He hurried forward to meet her.
"Mr. Lambe—I" exclaimed Georgina.
Mr. Lambe haited, and looked desply pained.

"Alexander," murmured Georgina, flushing very attractively.

"That is better," said Mr. Lambe, regarding her with grateful eyes.
"Have you seen your cousin?"
"Yes," said Georgina pathetically.
"Aimee came into my room very early this morning; she sold me the dreadful thing that had happened—that your sister had discovered her and was going to tell Lady Erythea—and then, when I was nearly frantic with terror, Aimee explained that it was all right, and Lady Diana wouldn't say a word about it. Oh, what a relief it was!"

"She told you that!" cried Alexander, amazed. "How could she have known? It was not till an hour or two ago Diana informed me that De Jussac had just proposed to her, and she was so happy—she felt she could not get Aimee into trouble!"

Georgina stammered in confusion. She had nearly made a serious blunder—Aimee had told no one but herself about the encounter with the exhect.

"She must have felt confident, I suppose, of Diana's g-g-goodness of heart!" faltered Georgina. "Are you pleased about the engagement? I do hope you are. I was afraid—" Alexander paused. .
"I am not displeased," he said. "De Jussac is a good fellow. I did not always think so. But—I have come to see that he is a very good fellow indeed. The love of a good woman is just what he needs."
"I hope they will be very happy."

just what he needs."

"I hope they will be very happy," said Georgina softly.

Alexander was looking at her with an expression that made her heart beat.

"Isn't it splendid," she said quickly, "that Aimee won't be suddenly betrayed! She'll have a chance now. She—"

"Aimee!" Mr. Lambe almost explod-"Aimee!" Mr. Lambe almost exploded. "It is nothing but Aimee! It is you I am concerned about, Georginanot Aimee! It wrings my heart, the position you are placed in—through no fault whatever of your own. It cannot go on—it is bound to be known very soon now. And when that happens—""Yes," said Georgina, forlornly. "It will be dreadful. I shall have to face it. They won't defend me."

Alexander took her hands quickly in his.

"Give me the right!" he said.

"Give me the right!" he said. Georgina caught her breath. She looked up at him. There was a wonderful tenderness in his eyes; his face was the face of a man inspired. "Georgina, you have known me only a little while. But I love you. You are the only woman in the world for me. I love you! Do you think you could care for me—just a little?" Georgina tried to free herself. "It is impossible!" she said, turning her face away.

Lady Erythea beamed. It seems an impossible term to apply to that austere countenance. But it was so. When Georgina entered the drawing room at noon—after nearly twenty-four hours exile in her bedroom—ahe found her alleged aunt as near to beaming as her features permitted.

"I am glad you have recovered from your temporary indisposition, my dear Almee," she said amiably. "During your absence an event has occurred, both romantic and desirable. How seldom the two things go together?"

"Indeed! What is it?"

"Your cousin Diana and Monsieur del Jussac are about to contract an alliance. They became engaged this morning."

"How perfectly delightful!" breathed Georgina, after a pause of dramatic astonishment. "I am sure you are pleased—Aunt?"

"Indeed I am. I have not concealed from you my desire that this very thing should come about. It is the word of the standard of the standard of the standard of the standard of the said almost sternly. "Do you believe that any human passion would cause that any human passion would cau you would not."

"Come to me, then, Georgina," he said, gently. "What good there is for us to do in the world, let us do it hand in hand. I will make the years wonderful for you. Just tell me that you care."

Alexander raised her race and kissed her.

"I never hoped to hear you say it," he said. She felt his heart beating strongly. "You love me!"

"I have loved you," said Georgina, her voice stifled in his coat, "from the first day I saw you."

There was a long pause.

"It is greater happiness than I dreamed of," said Alexander, humbly. "I have not deserved it."

'Suddenly he released her and held her at arm's length.

"One thing neither of us shall endure. No subterfuge—no secrecy about this. It is too sacred. We shall make it known at once. It is you I am thinking of. Our betrothal must be announced," said Alexander decisively, "and then..."

Weart Leads for Mayor

Weart Leads for Mayor

The "Citizens' Ticket" for the coming borough election was virtually completed and put into the field last Saturday evening.

The candidates endorsed at the final meeting of the general committee were: for Mayor, James T. Weart; for council, northwest district, John Sacci and Harry Curry; southeast district, W. H. Buck or John E. Morton (district committee to make final decision); southwest district, Charles Buckholtz. James H. Hartley was the only other candidate for Mayor nominated in the general committee meeting and the elimination vote stood: Weart 13, Hartley 9.

A meeting of the southwest district preceded that of the general committee in Society Hall. For this district John Renshaw and Mr. Buckholtz were nominated for council and the latter won by a vote of 12 to 10. Mr. Renshaw moved to make it unanimous. In a vote on the Mayoralty candidates from this district Weart won over Hartley by 13 to 6.

LINKED WITH WATER BILL

It With Governor-May Oust Special Engineer.

Trenton, March 30.—The battle that raged over the spring primary bill in the Assembly, with charges that Leader Corlo had been double-crossed in the deal on the Evans water bills, will be renewed after the Lagislature considers Governor Sileer's vetoes. The primary bill was defeated in the House, after the Senate had passed it, but by such a narrow margin that Mr. Corlo changed his vote and moved reconsideration. He had been assured, he said, that in return for his own and another vote or two on the water bill by Assemblyman Crawford of Hudson county for the addition to the measure, in which United States Senator Edge is interested, and which a good many other leaders on both sides favor.

Whether the arrangement will carry

Another interesting item of the com-

whether the arrangement will carry depends upon the humor the Senators are in when they get back after the five-day relief from the oppressive heat of battle. The final adjournment resolution provided for get-away day, Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, with business stopped last Friday night at 10. Business did not stop then, however, although the official clocks pointed to that hour. It went on till nearly daybreak Saturday morning, and the fate of the primary bill will depend upon whether the Senate will consent to transacting any other business than that connected with vetoes.

The presumption is that Mr. Corio has had some assurance that it may,

The presumption is that Mr. Corio has had some assurance that it may, and this will offer an opportunity to rearrange the deal on the water bill, in the hope that it may eventually get by in the Assembly and be sent to the Senate as part of the unfinished work of the session. Foes of both bills, however, are alert and say they will use every effort to prevent further action, so that one of the finest ittle fights of the session is looked for as the climax to sine die adjournment. The three-day session is necessary by reason of the constitutional requirement for vetoes to lie over trement for vetoes to lie over ity-four hours in the House in h the disapproved measure origi-waien the disapproved measure originated.

Lassen Nails One
One of the stories circulated with abandon during the historic blockade upon the State Highway Commission was that Governor Silser had anchored the support of Senator Morgan F. Larsen of Middlesex County, one of the eight Republican insurgents, by arranging to have him made chief engineer of the new board, a post which pays $12,000 a year. Senator Larsen pumped the story full of holes at his home in Perth Amboy, saying:

"If the job was offered to me I would have to refuse it as a matter of principle. If I accepted this lucrative position it would indicate that the $12,000 appointment was the price I would receive for my stand in favor of the four-man board. I voted for the four-man board because I believed it best for the interest of the State."

Governor Silser has before him more than 100 bills for approval or veto. Under the constitution all must be disposed of by midnight Thursday. Much of the legislation was enacted during the strenuous day and night sessions last week. Of the bills more than sixty originated in the Senate, including the Stevens measure making State Controller Bugbee State Boxing Commissioner, and autherising him to appoint a chief inspector of boxing and as many assistants as may be deemed necessary. As the bill automatically displaces three Democrats who now constitute the Athlette Commission, it is believed the Governor will veto it. However, the Legislative is overwheimingly Republican with votes enough to repass all bills which may be vetoed.

To Fight "Open" Specifications
When the new State Highway Commission met Monday, one of the subjects of consideration was the "open" specifications bill passed by the Legislature, the measure introduced by Senator Maths of Ocean county.
The commission refused to give out any information as to the nature of the discussion sor the opinion of the commission on the utility of the bill to secure the object aimed at. This refusal of the commissioners to talk was construed to indicate lack of faith in the measure.

The bill is one of those now awaiting action of the governor and the commission decided that it would be advisable to discuss it with Governor Siliser. The fact they wanted to discuss it with Governor Siliser. The fact they wanted to discuss it manufacent to attain real open specifications.

Some important Bills

Among other bills awaiting exceptive action are providing money for purchase by the state of a right of way for the proposed New Jersey ship canal; requiring permits for the sale and use of pistols and other fire arms; prohibiting employment of women in industrial plants between 19 p. m. and 6 c. m. after December 31, 1924; provide for a referendum on the city manager form of government; survey for a tunnel or bridge connecting ferth Amboy and Tottenville; open providing companies to submit books to the Public Utility Commission in rate meating attons of subsidiaries.

changed from no to aye, giving the required majority. The other Republicans who "bucked" the party line were Barkman, Clift, Campbell, Harboart, Hoffman, Lyons, Parker, Powell, Robbins, Soxsmith and Stiles. It came up in the form of a report from the Committee on Miscellaneous Business of the Roegner resolution calling upon Congress to modify the Volstead act, but with a substitute providing a referendum at the polis at the next election. Demicratic Leader George at once attempted to get, in another substitute calling upon Congress to call a constitutional convention to amend the Bighteenth amendment, and in support of it he flayed the Republicans for evading a clear duty to the people, who had clearly expressed a desire for such legislation.

Assemblyman Negus, Republican, of Passaic, said he desired to vote "wet" as representing the voters of his county, but that it was necessary to find the real sentiment of all the people of the state in this respect and the only way to get that was by the referendum. Assemblyman George came back with the assertion that the people had given voice on the question last fall and he prodded the Republicans with continued fear and domination of the Anti-Saloon League, with not enough courage or backbone to take a stand upon their own be-

Senate Passed Appropriations
The Senate passed the appropriation bill without a dissenting vote, although it was necessary for its sponsors to make a number of explanations. Senator Simpson asked Senator Bright, a member of the Appropriation Committee, what was the total amount granted the Department of Institutions and Agencies, and the answer was that it was $5,650,000. It then was shown that the annual appropriation to this department had been doubled in five years. Senator Bright said, however, that of this amount $230,000 was for building extensions.

Scriptures is the death and restion of Christ. It is ignorance Scriptures and unbelief of the wful and complete redemption with by Christ that robs us of many joys and power and efficiency as workers for Christ. Christ will be the teacher of all who will open their hearts unto Him.

2. Jesus Recognized (v. 31). While sitting at meat with the disciples their cyes were opened as they saw Himbless the bread and distribute it to them. We, too, can see the Lord on such common occasions as eating a meal if we have open eyes. Indeed we ought to see Him when eating, selling, buying and in our recreations for He has promised us His presence.

1V. The Effect Upon the Disciples (vv. 32-35). They were so filled with joy over this revelation of the Savior that they hastened back to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of the word of His resurrection. Those who have had the Scriptures opened to them touching the death and resurrection of Christ cannot help-but hasten to make it known to others.

Test-Mile National Swim in Riverton on July 21st

The entry blanks are being made up for the ten-mile National swim, to be held here July 21, and for the four big championship events to be staged by the Little Egg Harbor Yacht Club, Beach Haven, N. J., on the following Saturday, the 28th. These races promise to attract more attention than ever.

C. B. Durborow, who is chairman of the swimming committee of the Riverton and Little Egg Harbor Yacht Clubs, has also been put in complete control of the swimming destinies of the new Penn Athretic Club, of Philadelphia. This club is going to go out strong for water events. Already a rowing team is practicing on the Schuylkill and such renowned stars as Jack Kelly, Paul Costello and Harry Penn Harke are in charge. Most of the big swimming championship events have been awarded for 1923, so Mr. Durborow will not be able to launch the club's swimming program until next summer. Two swims the Club wants to rob the Riverton Yacht Club of are the ten-mile National for men and the three-mile for women. A New Partnership.

"It rains all the time in this country," said Billy, discontentedly, "except when you want it to."

He addressed the remark to the dry and unresponsive soil. Billy's attitude at the moment was unusual. He was close to the footpath along which he had wheeled the Sphinx, after, the encounter with the motorcycle thieves on the night of the burglary.

That event was now many days old, yet no rain had fallen in the meantime and here and there the track of the Sphinx's tires was faintly visible in the dried mud—to anyone who had unusually good eyes.

"If they've got a Scotland Yard sharp down here now," reflected Billy, "and he goes over the ground, it's just possible he might see what that fool luspector at Stanhoe never tumbled to. That there were two motorcycles, and not, one, at the place where Jáck the Climber got ditched. If they were to track up the Sphinx now it would be mighty awkward. They'd soon connect her with Almee and me. But I guess it's an outside chance."

The slight impression of a tire mark, a little to the right of the path, caught his eye. It had passed over a soft mole hill, and was clearly defined. Billy paused, and inspected it with a new interest. The fashion of his countenance changed; he went down on hands and knees, and looked very closely indeed.

"Snakes!" exclaimed Billy. He rose, and quartered the ground carefully for a considerable distance in either direction. The ground was too hard to show any continuous track. But mole bills are absented.

a considerable distance in either di-rection. The ground was too hard to show any continuous track. But mole hills were plentiful, and some way far-ther on he found another one, also showing the print of a tire. "It's the same. And not the Sphinx's tire, by a mile!" said Billy, knitting his brow. "This one was steel-studded." With growing perspective he made a brow. "This one was steel-studded."

With growing perplexity he made a close examination of the soil, and presently discovered other traces. There were a few footprints and, faint though they were, they bore some very marked characteristics.

Billy stood up straight and gave a liquid whistle. The furrows in his brow deepened. He carried his investigations still farther afield, but toward the healthy common the soil was light, wind-blown sand that shifted with every fresh breeze. There were no tracks left. The seeker was at a loss.

loss.

Billy stopped and reflected rapidly.

"It came this way, whatever it was,"
he said. "But why on earth did it—and how? Let's start from the beginning."

He struck across country and, breaking through a hedge, came out into the blind lane where Jack the Climber's machine had crashed on the fateful night; the spot where he had recovered the emeralds, and made acquaintance with Calamity Kate's resourcefulness.

The muddy lane still showed alight traces, very much mixed up and trampled, of the place where the thieves' machine had fallen; the ruts were now machine had fallen; the ruts were now dried and hard. Billy also recognized what were evidently the hoof marks of the Stanhoe police.

"A herd of steers wouldn't have made more meas," said Billy. "And Panke found nothing after all, or he'd have—Well, I can't blow much, either. I've been here twice since, but never got wise to it till now."

He turned hack down the lane toward the highway, his eyes noting the smellest details of the ground.

"Here's my track; pretty near washed out. And here's the other's. That cycle was a big Indian, by what little I saw of it And likely it was half crippled when it got away. And on the brink, Billy's face was rather pale, and his eyes troubled.

"Great Caesar's ghost!" he said.

"Who'd have expected this? Now—if I can pick up the other track, I'll have the game in my hands!"

He hurried in the direction of the distant crag-pits, then suddenly pulled up short and glanced at his wrist-in a rough serge walking-cleak and a fincoles hat trimmed with calice violets. In spite of the costume she looked vividiy lovely.

"Mr. Chauffeur," said Aimee, severely, "I don't know if you think I want to waste my afternoon off like this. You're late."

"I'm sorry," panted Billy. "Came as quick as I could."

"What are you looking excited about?" she said, eyeing him suspiciously.

"Oh—just seeing you," blurted Billy. That isn't true. I've never seen you look excited before. You've found out something. What is it?"

Billy paused.

"It's true. I have found out something," he said quietly, "but there's more to do, and I haven't quite all the cards in my hands. It's the most amasing stunt yet. Fil bell you about it the moment I've got it set."

Aimee looked at him wistfully.
"I don't think you ought to have any secrets from your partner," she said. "I always tell you everything."

"Give me till tonight," pleaded Billy. "I hate to talk about it now. It's ugly.

Aimee seated herself on the turf beneath the sweetbriars.

"All right then," she said happily.
"Let's forget our troubles for a bit.
sit down—you look so tall, towering up there, that I can hardly see you—and I'll tell my news. It's much more interesting than yours. Do you know that Alexander has got himself enanged to my dear fat Georgie, and they're idiotically happy?"

"Has he?" cried Billy, dropping beside her. "Good for him! She's a real trump of a girl, that. And the parson's as white as they make them—he's a line fellow."

"Yes. Georgie will exactly suit him.

"Yes. Georgie will exactly suit him. I shouldn't have, a bit."

"You!" exclaimed Billy.

"Exactly. Aunt Erythea's idea is that Alexander's marrying me. You're not very bright today, Billy. They'll have a funny tangle to straighten out, when the crash comes."

"Geel They will. We'll have to help them somehow."

"Of course we shall. But I wonder how we'll do it. And that's not all—the Vicomte has suddenly become betrothed, as he calls it, to Alexander's sister—Cold Lambe."

"She'll tone him down," said Billy.
"Not a bit. He'll tone her up," replied Aimee confidently, "and a jolly

SHORTEST MONTH BRINGS NEW SALES RECORD

Acute Situation Certain As 6,000 Cars a Day Production Fails to Meet Demand

Detroit, Mich., March 25.—
With 116,080 Ford cars sold at retail in February a new record for the shortest month in the year has been established. February sales exceeded those of January by more than 15,000 and marked the eleventh month in which Ford sales have topped the 100,000 line.

This sales record bears out predictions made at the opening of the year that an acute shortage in Ford cars is certain and this shortage is expected to be felt within the next two months with the increased volume of car buying which is always attendant upon the spring months.

Even the high production schedule set at the Ford Motor Company's factory here, which will reach 6,000 cars and trucks a day about April 1, will be unable to meet the apparent demand for Ford products.

Anticipating a great increase in the demand for Ford cars during months with drops in the fall and able to meet the apparent demand for Ford products.

Anticipating a great increase in the demand for Ford cars during the present year the factory here laid plans for increasing production to the 6,000 car a day schedule and since January first had been constantly speeding up manufacture to reach this figure. Demand so far has been of such great proportions as to absorb nearly all production, and stocks and the speeding up the story of the Ford dealer organization which has raised the "peak" line to include every month in the speeding up war. Two gentlemen were standing in an alcove examining some prints. As the words ceased, one of them looked at his companion quiszingly.

""That's for you, Tom," he said in a low voice. "Tm out of the race. She made that plain a week ago."

"Oh, I don't know," said Tom Fallon, carelessly. "The words were rather sweeping, and the Toms, Dicks and Harrys are numerous. Miss Westlake is a very popular girl, and as she says herself, has opinions. I am too hopelessly sluggish to even come within range of her benevolent leverage."

his pleased expression showed that the words were still on his mind, and that he did believe he was within range of her thoughts. Indeed, of late he had fancied there had been a new look in her eyes and a new tone in her voice when he was near. But

In her voice when he was near. But they had been elusive.
Westlakeville was very a istocratic, very small, and very remote from commercial centers. A hundred miles of uncomfortable railroad traveling, and two days' absence, were the necessities of out-of-town shopping; so the two dry goods stores and the one small millinery establishment were to a large extent the sources of supply as the last court of appeal of local factories which we was a supply as the last court of appeal of local factories. fashing the magnines and robin's-egg blue and the local stock was uncompromisingly dark, then it was dark that set the fashion then it was dark that set the fashion until the stock changed.

A thought of this flashed into Tom Fallon's mind as he was passing the leading dry goods store, and he paused suddenly. The show window was filled with a display of neckwear, all greens and stripes, with many combinations. This style had been having a run in the metropolis the past three or four months, after which, the demand slackening, the drummers had hurried their remaining stock out to such places as Westlakeville, with specious words and mysterious allusions to being just a little ahead of the times.

Tom Fallon's tie was cream, with a leaning to gray; and this shade he had worn for a year, without change. He liked it, and believed it peculiarly

He liked it, and believed it peculiarly suited to his style and complexion. And just as thoroughly he hated green and all its ramifications.

But only a few days before, in one of their semi-confidential moods. Helen had spoken disparagingly of the tie, and commended the progressiveness of the other young men, who had already adopted green combinations.

Suppose we draw up the papers at once. There's a lawyer next door."

Billy stared, then laughed increduiously, and with some relief.

"It's you who're talking now," he rejoined. "You've never done a day's work in your life, and you couldn't run a store if you tried. Besides, you've got too much money to fool with business."

"I'll have a try at it, anyhow—unless you back down on your word."

"Oh, I won't back down," dolorously; "if you really mean it."

A half hour later the papers were made out and signed, and the money pussed. Then Tom turned briskly to the late proprietor.

"What are you going to do now, Billy?"

"What are you going to do now, Billy?"
"Don't know," miserably, "unless I get a clerkship somewhere until I can find a place to start again. I'd never have said what I did to a regular business man. It'c enough money, I suppose; but I didn't want to sell. I couldn't live away from the counter."

You know more about buy'ng things than I do. We'll make such a display of cream and gray as Westlakeville never knew before."

"But—good Lord, man!" in dismay. "That would ruin the store! Green is fashlonable now, and cream gone out."

"We'll force it back, then," coolly. "We'll force it back, then," coolly. "We'll, hurry things along, and then rush the new goods down from the city. And say, watch the other store, and cut prices freely. We want brisk competition. "ut some of the new goods at cost, and dazzle the town

Significance of Easter Egg.

The colored Easter egg, which is today chiefly a means of entertaining children, has in reality a profound sacred significance. The egg has from the remotest ages been regarded as the symbol of creation or new birth, and all the ancient religions possessed ceremonies in which the egg figured in this emblematic sense.
The Christians adopted it as the symhol of the resurrection of Christ and, in the early ceremonies, it was colored red in allusion to His blood shed for sinners on the cross.

Through the centuries since the beginning of Christianity various games and contests have been played everywhere in Christendom in which the egg held a prominent part.

Egg-Rolling is Old Custom.

The custom of coloring eggs, relling them, battling over them is really as old as the goddess Eostre and is among the inheritances common to all Germanic tribes whether on the continent or in the British archipelago.

In this country the Pennsylvania Germans were enthusiastic followers of the ideas and customs of Eastertide from the days of William Penn. In 1850 and until 1805, in Philadelphia on Easter hill—now leveled, lost and forgotten among the thickly builtup residences on Broad street north of Girard avenue—rolling colored up residences on Broad street north of Girard avenue—rolling colored eggs, picking them when held in hand and fighting joyfully in the egg con-tests made up an annual feast of mer-

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

$1 Down

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, clse you have backrache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemen juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Sunday Afternoon YMCA

Last Sunday afternoon, March 25, at 4 o'clock, the local YMCA organization held a men's meeting in the Legion rooms, which was addressed by Rev. Frederick Blaser, of Camden. This gentleman is a forceful speaker and gave a splendid address, and it is to be regretted hat he did not have a larger audience to hear his message. These meetings will be held monthly under the auspices of the local YMCA of which William T. J. Purnell is president. The religious committee is headed by William McConnell. The speaker was secured through his efforts.

Two more applications received Monday night helped swell the number who will enjoy the second Producers' Banquet.

From the present indications we look for about forty to take part and will be glad to entertain more.

Class initiations will be held April 2nd, 16th and 30th. From now until the close of the term there must be some lively work if we are to cross the 1100 mark.

Brother Charles Schapelle, of Camp 3, Phillipsburg, gave am interesting account of the progress of our old-time rival and stated with over 800 members they were still stepping.

Pinochle winners were Brothers Winstein and Fish.

MOTHERS HEAR DR. SWIFT

Those who attended the first lecture of the Social Hygiene series given in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Palmyra Parent-Teacher Association are unanimous in the belief that a wonderful opportunity was lost to the women of the community who did not attend. It is hoped they will not miss the remainder of the series.

Dr. Edith Hale Swift, who spoke on "The Need, Nature and Scope of Sex-Social Education," handled the subject with such logic, sympathy and understanding, and with such whole-someness that all who listened were impressed, not only with the need of this welfare work in the human family, but also the beauty and dignity of it. Her cause was supported by a scientific background, but also had a closer bond than that—she, too, is a mother.

Dr. Swift traced the development

Moravian Church

Moravian Church

So large was the attendance at the Moravian Church last Sunday that a number of people were unable to be seated. One reason for such a large attendance was that the pastor, the Rev. C. Nelson Sperling, had baptism of infants, confirmation and received a number of new members by letter.

Those confirmed at this service were: Harry B. DeMore, Lester Hercher, Wilafon A. Morris, Edward H. Shea, Carl M. Bohs, Joseph E. Schafer, Elton P. Hercher, Alexander James Greer, George E. Malley, Kenneth W. Winner, Eugene H. Griffith, Carl W. Schaffer, Erma B. Morris and Anna M. Martinberger.

The adults baptised were Ruth D. Aydelotte, Alfred R. Whiteraft and George F. Dorworth. John G. Bauer was received by letter and Mrs. Mildred F. Coles, Mrs. Palline Sohuck, Mrs. Florence F. Frank and Mrs. Lena B. Schuck were taken into the church by "The Right Handed Fellowship."

The following infants were baptised: Helen B. Wood, Virginia M. Coles, Edwin W. Schmierer, John W. Schmierer, Clara M. Bauer, David W. Bauer and William M. McNall.

Holy Communion was celebrated at the Moravian Church on Thursday evening. Good Friday service will be held in the church Friday afternoon at 2.30.

Sunrise service will be held this Sunday morning at 5.30. If the weather permits the service will be his on the word of the carecises. The program for this service is taken from the book called "Life Eternal." There will be a number of selections by the Sunday School orchestra and choir.

The Men's and Ladies' Bible Classes of the Moravian Church will hold their monthly meetings and joint social next Wednesday, April 4, at the church. The ladies will serve the refreshments this month.

SENATORS CRITICIZE SILZER

Fight Divorce Sit'

The only measure which was endangered was the Blackwell divorce bill, which came in for some strong opposition from the three womenmembers of the house, who lined up against it. Majority Leader Corio took a peculiarly active part in rounding up votes for the measure and brought in members from the corridors and ante rooms to get the necessary total. It was finally passed by the house, $2 to 18. In the senate it passed, 14 to 2. It permits divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty within six months after the commission of the cruel act.

At the suggestion of Mr. George all Democrats refrained from voting no on the elections bureau ripper. Mr. George denounced the bill as vicious and a plunder of the treasuries in Hudson and Essex counties. He asked the minority members not to vote at all on the bill as an evidence of their disdain and condemnation of the bill.

It was suggested by the majority members that the sergeant-at-arms of the house could force the Democrats to vote, but Mr. George declared,

British custom, too—sometimes."
With two such recent examples at hand, her ladyship felt unable to contradict him. She looked at him steadily, wondering why she felt no resentment. There was something so remarkably disarming about Billy.
"What you tell me, Spencer," she said at last, "places a new aspect on the case. It is, I suppose, within your discretion to engage yourself to a young weman if you wish to do so.
The situation in which I found you led me to suspect mere irresponsible philandering—a thing most stringently forbidden within the precincts of of your intentions," she continued with returning indignation, "I am still unable to consider your behavior decerous."

New Jersey Chief Executive Happy as Legislature Dies—Think Their Seesilon Was the Most Note—worthy in History.

Trenton.—The final gang of tha 1923 legislature came Friday night with a lack of sensation in marked contrast with the constant friction of the ten weeks of bitter battles in the senate and house. All the excitement dropped cut when in party conferences it was decided to attempt no other action than that apon the vetoes of Governor Slier, and in this program only part of the large number of disapproved bills were put over.

Before sine die adjournment the legislature passed 29 of the 58 bills which had been returned to both houses on Thursday night by Governor Blier. Added to this total worth the final score up to 25.

Among the important vetoes over-ridden was cenate joint resolution No. 5, which provides for a probe of the deposed highway board's transactions in the matter of the purchase of the Amboy and Hackensack river bridges. Others follow:

The Pasce water bills.

Hadson and Essex county elections bursan ripper.

The Blackwell bill making extreme cruelty grounds for divorce.

The Mathis open specifications bill. Two elections bills preventian from adding names to registry lists on election day.

The boxing ripper.

Benator Mackay's bill permitting private corporations to build tunnels in competition with state owned tubes.

Both houses cancused early in the day and decided what bills are to be passed over the governor's beat being and the decided what bills are to be passed over the governor's beat of the deposed over the governor's beat of the decided what bills are to be passed over the governor's beat of the decided assemblyman Keln's built, one to establish a family court and the other a traffic court in first class cities. There were but 35 Republican members in the conference, and the vote was 31 to 14, ten shy of the required majority to make success possible. Very reductantly the tollers for the primary measure gave up the ghost at that stage of the game, accepting defeat with what grace they possessed.

blyman John Fallon as prosecutor of the pleas of Hudson county.

Governor Names Another
The governor withdrew Fallon's name and substituted that of former Corporation Coinsel John Milton, and he at once was confirmed. He also appointed John N. Butler of Atlantic City as prosecutor of Cape May county, as the senate had rejected George Gries of the latter county. John J. McGowap, a newspaper man of Elizabeth, was appointed state commissioner of reports to succeed William Sweeney, and these appointments were confirmed. The senate also confirmed the appointment of Clarence Petiti as district court judge of Atlantic City, W. P. Kremer as a member of the Camden County Tax Board and Julian A. Gregory as a member of the Commission on Port Authority.

Majority Leader Stevens of the senate, who had stood with the governor all through the jam on the new Highway Commission, was very much peeved at the veto of the resolution for the highway investigation and issued a statement severely criticaling the action. He sai he was astonished and could not understand why the governor had assumed such an attitude.

"The veto is not only a disappointing, but an astonishing act of the governor," said he. "The reasons which he gives in his veto ressage do not justify anyone who wishes to see the probe inserted into matters which, on their face, savor of corruption and staft."
